Abstract: The Department of Energy (DOE) Debt Collection Regulations (10 CFR 1015) are being updated to include provisions of the revised Office of Management and Budget Circular A-129 and to implement the Federal Tax Refund Offset Program. This update supports the objective of 10 CFR 1015, which establishes the overall regulations under which DOE collects claims owed to the United States including the implementation of the Federal Claims Collection Act (31 USC 3701-3719) as amended by the Debt Collection Act of 1982 (PL 97-365). DOE's Debt Collection Regulations also incorporate the Federal Claims Collection Standards (4 CFR 101-105) published jointly by the Department of Justice and the General Accounting Office. The preamble to the Federal Claims Collection Standards states that each Federal agency is required to develop its own implementing regulations based on and consistent with these standards. The Debt Collection Act specifies that each agency must prescribe regulations on certain aspects of the debt collection process. Furthermore, the Department of Treasury's Regulations (26 CFR 301.6402) which implement the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 (31 USC 3720A) (cont)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 100-408; 42 USC 2273(c); 42 USC 2282a

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 820 to 826

Abstract: The Price-Anderson Act of 1988 contains provisions subjecting DOE contractors (and subcontractors and suppliers thereto) who are indemnified under the Price-Anderson Act, to penalties for violations of nuclear safety rules, regulations, or orders issued by the Department. The Secretary has authority to compromise, modify, or remit penalties and to prescribe regulations as necessary. The Secretary is required to determine by rule whether nonprofit educational institutions should receive automatic remission of civil penalties.

The penalty provisions of the Act were directed toward increasing DOE safety related control over contractors through financial penalties. These regulations implement the penalty provisions of the Act and will include, as an appendix, a General Statement of Enforcement Policy.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7131; 42 USC 7231; 42 USC 7254; 28 CFR 50.15 (a)(7)(iii)

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 1012

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department of Energy does not have a policy for indemnifying its employees who are sued personally and suffer an adverse judgment as a result of conduct taken within the scope of employment. Lawsuits against Federal employees in their personal capacity can constitute a major impediment to the effective conduct of the public's business, since employees faced with the potential of being held personally liable may be inhibited in discharging their duties. To deal with this problem, the Department proposes to establish a policy permitting, but not requiring, the indemnification of an employee who suffers an adverse verdict, judgment, or other monetary award when the actions giving rise to liability were within the scope of his employment and indemnification is in the interest of the Government. This policy would be modeled on a similar policy already adopted by the Department of Justice for its employees.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7254; 5 USC 301; 28 CFR 1621

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 202

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The intent of this regulation is to establish an agency-wide procedure for processing and responding to subpoenas or requests for Department of Energy records or testimony by Department of Energy officers and employees. A regulation intended to fulfill this purpose currently exists. However, relocating its position in the Code of Federal Regulations and some minor language changes would clarify its applicability. In addition, efficient application of the regulation will be promoted by more closely modeling it on the comparable Department of Justice regulation, since the Department of Justice is usually responsible for representing the Department of Energy in such matters. The cost of this action is expected to be de minimis and could effect a savings, since clarification and recodification of the existing regulation may avoid needless litigation.

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, HHS.

ACTION: Publication of unified agenda of regulations.

SUMMARY: The President's February 17, 1981, Executive Order (12291) and the Regulatory Flexibility Act of 1980 require the Department to publish an agenda of significant regulations being developed and an indication of those regulatory actions that are being analyzed for their effect on small businesses. The Department published its last agenda on April 23, 1990.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For further inquiries or comments related to specific regulations listed in the agenda, the public is encouraged to contact the appropriate responsible individual. Questions or comments on the overall agenda should be sent to: Mrs. Charlotte E. 781. REVISIONS TO "QUALITY OF CARE" EXCLUSION AND PAYMENT DENIAL REGULATIONS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1320a-7(b)(6)(B); 42 USC 1320c-3(a)(2); 42 USC 1320c-5

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1001; 42 CFR 1004; 42 CFR 466

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would revise and consolidate, where feasible, the principal regulations pertaining to "quality of care" exclusions from Medicare and other health care programs. Such exclusions may be based on the furnishing of excessive services, the failure to furnish care that meets professionally recognized standards of medical care, or the failure to properly document medical services. This rulemaking would attempt to make the various OIG regulations relating to such quality of care exclusions consistent with each other, consistent with HCFA's PRO payment denial regulations at 42 FR 466, and consistent with the case law that has been decided in the U.S. Courts of Appeals in recent years.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 74, Appendix E; 48 CFR 76

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will revise the Department's current cost principles for research and development activities under grants and contracts with hospitals to make them compatible with cost principles issued by OMB for State and local units of government, educational institutions and nonprofit organizations.

Action	Date	FR Cite
Next Action Undetermined

Small Entities Affected: Businesses, Organizations

Government Levels Affected: Local, State

Additional Information: The current OMB project to completely rewrite its Circular A-87, "Cost Principles for State and Local Governments" includes proposed revisions of the interest allowability provision. OMB is considering the possibility of adopting uniform provisions on interest in each of its Circulars on Cost Principles, A-87, A-21 for Educational Institutions and A-122 for Nonprofit Organizations. If this occurs, HHS will consider adopting the same provisions for interest costs incurred by hospitals under Federal research and training awards.

Abstract: This rulemaking would standardize the procedures for imposing civil money penalties and related sanctions authorized by statutes incorporating provisions of section 1128A of the Social Security Act. In addition to standardizing OIG's existing CMP procedures, this rule would include provisions for CMPs and related exclusions for various Medicare Part B violations resulting from OBRA '86, OBRA '87 and PL 100-360, including (1) those who bill Medicare beneficiaries on a non-assigned basis for services of a certified nurse anesthetist or a physician assistant; (2) non-participating physicians billing for actual charges above permitted charges; and (3) certain instances of failure to provide appropriate diagnostic codes with a request for payment for an item or service provided by a physician.

769. REVISIONS TO THE PRO SANCTIONS NOTIFICATION PROCESS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1320c-5(b)(2)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1004

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would provide for an alternative to the method of public notice currently used by the OIG in informing the general public of its decision to sanction a practitioner or other person under section 1156 of the Social Security Act as a result of a PRO recommendation. The rule would allow each sanctioned physician or other provider an opportunity to elect to inform each of his or her patients of the sanction action rather than having the OIG provide notice to the general public by publishing a notice in a newspaper.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the current regulations governing the operation and funding of Medicare Fraud Control Units by (1) clarifying the full-time employee rule; (2) providing staffing enhancements; (3) notifying units that the OIG may use performance indicators as one measure to evaluate units for recertification; (4) requiring units to refer cases to the OIG; (5) setting forth a 12-month consequence for denial of recertification; and (6) clarifying Federal Financial Participation for fraud detection activities.

777. AUDITS OF NON-GOVERNMENTAL GRANTEES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 74.62

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will implement OMB Circular A-133 which was issued on March 8, 1990. The Circular provides governmentwide standards for non-Federal audits of colleges and universities and other nonprofit recipients of Federal grants and contracts and requires such audits for fiscal periods beginning on or after January 1, 1990. The Circular exempts hospitals not affiliated with institutions of higher education. The HHS implementation of the Circular will contain a definition of affiliation on which the public will be afforded an opportunity to provide comments. The Circular and these amendments replace the audit requirements currently contained in OMB Circular A-110.

Additional Information: It is uncertain at this time how this interim final rule will be finalized. For some time, OMB has had under consideration a revision of the A-102 Common Rule contained at 45 CFR Part 92 to apply it to the types of recipients covered by Circular A-133. When issued, that revision would likely contain the requirement that recipients comply with Circular A-133 and the HHS implementation of the Common Rule would revise 45 CFR Part 74 accordingly. IF OMB decides not to revised the Common Rule, Part 74 will be appropriately finalized but in a different manner. In either event the timing of the final action on this rule is dependent on the timing of OMB's action.

Abstract: These final regulations provide for the imposition of civil money penalties and exclusions against physicians billing the Medicare program or program beneficiaries for services of an assistant at surgery for cataract operations where prior approval has not been granted. Legal Authority: 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 74; 45 CFR 92

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Fiscal and Administrative requirements governing grants and cooperative agreements to non-governmental recipients are presently codified in an HHS-specific regulation (45 CFR Part 74). This rule would move those requirements (with many changes and additions) to a new rule (45 CFR Part 92) that would be virtually identical to the rules of 26 other federal agencies. The same action would also create a mechanism for applying a new set of liberalized rules to research grants. Since all Federal agencies' grants and cooperative agreements would henceforth be subject to identical rules, there should be administrative benefits for multi-award recipients and better understanding of the terms and conditions of awards.

Abstract: The Equal Access to Justice Act requires agencies to pay attorney fees to parties prevailing against the Government in certain types of administrative proceedings. It requires each agency to issue rules implementing the Act as it applies to these proceedings. As originally enacted, the Act had a sunset clause. A recent statutory amendment eliminated the sunset provision and made other changes in the Act. The instant regulation would amend 45 CFR Part 13 (HHS's regulation implementing the Act) to eliminate the corresponding sunset provision and to make other changes conforming with the statutory changes.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9801 et seq

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 1301

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Head Start Bureau will propose amendments to 45 CFR 1301.32 to provide additional clarification to Head Start programs in meeting the requirement that the costs of developing and administering a Head Start program not exceed 15 percent of total costs. The rule will also clarify that training and technical assistance funds awarded to a grantee are included in the total costs of the program and must be matched at the 20 percent match rate as required by statute.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 1383; 42 USC 405
CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.1500ff Appendix 1
Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Sections 4.00 and 104.00 of Appendix 1 of the Disability regulations [404.1501 through 404.1599] describe cardiovascular impairments considered severe enough to prevent an individual from doing any gainful activity or, in the case of a child under age 18, age-appropriate activities. Because of the advances in medical technologies and practice in this area we are revising the criteria in the Listing of Impairments to bring these sections up to date. The Supplemental Security Income program incorporates by reference and uses the same medical criteria as the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance program.

Abstract: Sections 3.00 and 103.00 of Appendix 1 to the Disability Regulations (404.1501 through 404.1599) describe those respiratory impairments which are considered severe enough to prevent a person from engaging in any gainful activity or, in the case of a child under age 18, age-appropriate activities. We are proposing revisions to require consideration of the nature and clinical manifestations of respiratory disorders and the limitations such disorders impose on the individual's ability to function. Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Sec. 2615 of Pub. L. 96-369 amended sec. 1127 of the Social Security Act to eliminate windfalls that permitted some people who were paid Old-Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance (OASDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits retroactively to receive more in total benefits for the same period than if they had been paid the benefits when regularly due. The two main changes are: (1) SSI benefits will be reduced where retroactive OASDI benefits have been paid before the SSI benefits. Under prior law, reductions could be made only in retroactive OASDI benefits and only when the retroactive SSI had been paid first. (2) OASDI or SSI benefits payable upon reinstatement following a period of suspension or termination will be reduced by the amount of SSI benefits that would not have been paid if the OASDI benefits had been paid when regularly due. We will amend our regulations to conform to the statutory changes. The program savings to SSA are estimated as $5 million a year.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 402(x)(1); 42 USC 405

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404D

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing regulations at 20 CFR 404.468(d) provide a vocational rehabilitation exception to the nonpayment of benefits to prisoners provision described at 20 CFR 404.468(a). Under the exception, the nonpayment provision does not apply if a prisoner who is entitled to benefits on the basis of disability is actively and satisfactorily participating in a rehabilitation program which has been specifically approved for the individual by a court of law. In addition, the Secretary must determine that the program is expected to result in the individual being able to do substantial gainful activity upon release and within a reasonable time. No benefits will be paid to the prisoner for any month prior to the approval of the program. The proposed regulations would set out more definitive criteria for applying the exception and would define terms, such as "rehabilitation program," "court of law," and "reasonable time," for purposes of applying the exception.

Abstract: Section 8 of Pub. L. 99-643 provides that effective for benefits payable for months after May 1986, an underpayment shall be paid to any surviving spouse of a deceased SSI recipient whether or not the spouse was eligible for SSI, if such spouse was living in the same household with the recipient at the time of death, or within the 6 months immediately preceding the month of death, or to the parent(s) of a deceased disabled or blind child who was an SSI recipient if the child was living with the parent(s) at the time of death or within the 6 months immediately preceding the month of death. These proposed regulations would also reflect a policy change that would continue the appeals process (versus automatic dismissal), at the Administrative Law Judge or Appeals Council level, for the survivors' entitlement to an underpayment if they meet certain conditions. The cost estimate for these provisions is estimated to be $2 million per year in program costs and less than $1 million and 30 workyears in administrative expenses.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 1382(a); 42 USC 1382c(f)

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 416.1165

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the current SSI rules, three different formulas are used to calculate the amount of income deemed to an eligible child from his or her ineligible parent(s) when they are living together. The formulas produce different results depending on the type of income (earned versus unearned) and the number of children in the household. This sometimes creates anomalies. The rule would resolve the anomalies by providing that one formula be used regardless of the type of parental income. The formula to be used is the formula now used when the parent(s) has both earned and unearned income.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 1383b

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.1624; 20 CFR 416.1024

Abstract: These proposed regulations would place a limitation on the rates of payment a State may pay for laboratory tests purchased by State agencies. Under these proposed regulations a State agency would be required to limit the amounts it pays for laboratory tests to the maximum payment level contained in the Health Care Financing Administration's (HCFA) National Limitation Amounts for Laboratory Fee Schedules. Currently the only payment requirement is that the rates of payment not exceed the highest rates paid by Federal or other agencies in the State for the same or similar types of services.

817. SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME PROGRAM; PROCEEDS OF A LOAN, PAYMENT OF PRO RATA SHARE OF HOUSEHOLD OPERATING EXPENSES

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 416.1103; 20 CFR 416.1133

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: It is our policy that money borrowed (a loan) is not income for SSI purposes and therefore has no effect on a person's SSI benefits. These proposed regulations will state that only cash transactions may be considered loans. These proposed regulations will also provide that the one-third reduction rule which applies when a person who lives in another's household and receives in-kind support and maintenance will not apply if the SSI recipient pays his or her pro rata share in cash and no later than the month under consideration. No additional costs or savings are anticipated since these proposed regulations will codify existing policy.

Abstract: These regulations would reflect recently enacted statutory changes that extend social security coverage to work situations not previously covered. These newly covered work situations include: (1) Inactive duty training in the uniformed services; (2) Certain agricultural labor situations; and (3) Work for a spouse or parent. Additionally, the year for reporting corporate directors' income has been changed, and Medicare coverage is provided to many previously uncovered State and local government employees. Also, a recently enacted statutory provision (section 8017 of PL 100-647) further revised our coverage provisions relating to agricultural wages.

820. OLD-AGE, SURVIVORS, AND DISABILITY INSURANCE PROGRAM; REVISION OF CONTRIBUTIONS FOR SUPPORT RULES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.366(a)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would change one of the requirements for determining whether an insured person is contributing to the support of a child at a specific time. The requirements that contributions be made regularly and be large enough to meet an important part of a child's living expenses would be replaced by a requirement that consideration be given to the economic circumstances of both the insured person and the child and that recognition also be given to the child's needs. Because of the minimal number of persons who would be affected by these proposed changes any additional program costs would be negligible.

Abstract: The proposed rules contain procedures for determining when a State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations in accordance with applicable Federal law. If it is determined that a State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with Federal regulations or other written guidelines, the Social Security Administration, in accordance with section 221 of the Social Security Act (42 USC 421), must assume the responsibility for making the disability determinations. The costs or savings likely to result from implementation of these regulations are not predictable.

Abstract: This proposed change would exclude from the definition of resources, in the Supplemental Security Income program, for one calendar month following the month of receipt, certain cash payments made to an ineligible spouse or parent for providing medical or social services to the eligible individual. Current rules exclude such amounts paid to the eligible individual for one calendar month following the month of receipt. This proposal would broaden the exclusion to include similar payments made to certain other individuals whose income and resources are deemed available to the SSI recipient.

Abstract: We propose to amend our regulations on redeterminations of Supplementary Security Income eligibility. Our current policy does not include in the redetermination period the month of eligibility, the month of application, or the month of the last redetermination or eligibility update. The redeterminations omit these months and, as a result, we do not have an accounting of all living arrangements, income, and resources for the period of eligibility. We propose to change our policy to include in the redetermination period the month of eligibility, month of application, or month of eligibility update for the first redetermination and the month of the last redetermination for subsequent redeterminations. However, for redeterminations that have a period of review that extends beyond the rules of administrative finality, we propose to limit the verification of retroactive information on factors of eligibility to no more than what the rules of administrative finality allow.

Abstract: We are issuing these rules to govern the Blood Donor Locator Service, which we will establish and conduct, as required by section 8006 of P.L. 100-647. Under these rules, we will furnish to participating States, at their request, the last known personal mailing address (residence or post office box) of blood donors whose blood donation shows that they are or may be infected with the human immunodeficiency virus which causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome, if the State or an authorized blood donation facility has been unable to locate the donors. If our records or those of the Internal Revenue Service contain an adequate personal mailing address for the donor, we will provide it to the State so that the State or the blood donation facility can inform the donor of the possible need for medical care and treatment.

Abstract: To be considered in "full-time" attendance under the existing regulations, an elementary or secondary student must be enrolled for at least 20 hours of scheduled school attendance per week. Legal Authority: 42 USC 415(f)(2)(A)

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.285; 20 CFR 404.287

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Social Security Administration automatically recomputes the primary insurance amount of a beneficiary who has wages or self-employment income for a given year. Generally, recomputations are advantageous to workers and their families because benefits are increased. However, there are unusual situations where benefits are decreased as a result of a recomputation. Under current regulations, we process the recomputation and notify the beneficiary of the decrease in benefits, but will automatically withdraw the recomputation if the beneficiary so requests in writing. We propose to revise the regulations to waive administratively a disadvantageous recomputation and notify the beneficiary of that action and that he or she may nevertheless request that the recomputation be processed if he or she so desires.

Abstract: These proposed regulations require HHS to determine that an applicant for Social Security or SSI has applied for benefits (deemed filing date) when those individuals have been provided misinformation by an employee of SSA on the later of (1) the date the incorrect information was provided, or (2) the date the individual met all the requirements for entitlement. These proposed regulations apply to misinformation provided after 12/82 with respect to Social Security claims. With respect to SSI claims, the proposed regulations apply to misinformation furnished on or after the date of enactment of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 (OBRA), i.e., December 19, 1989, and to benefits for months after the date of enactment of OBRA.

Abstract: This proposed regulation implements the requirement that HHS, beginning not later than 10/1/90, provide individuals aged 25 or older, who have a social security number and have wages or net self-employment income, with a social security account statement upon request of the individual. Starting September 30, 1995, statements would be automatically provided to all such individuals who attain age 60 (but are not yet receiving benefits) before October 1 of the previous year and for whom HHS can determine a current address. Starting in October 1992, statements would be automatically provided on a biennial basis to those under age 60 as well. (Retirement benefit estimates would not be required in the case of persons under age 50 although a general description of benefits available upon retirement would be required.)

Abstract: We are proposing to revise our rules on reducing the Social Security spouse's benefits of a person who is also receiving a Government pension based on noncovered employment. The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (PL 100-203, sec 9007) requires that a Federal Government employee who elects to be covered under Social Security after December 31, 1987 must work for at least 60 months after that date in order to avoid the reduction after he or she becomes entitled to Social Security spouse's benefits. That requirement is extended to the foreign service pension system by the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988 (PL 100-647), which also provides that under certain circumstances the reduction does not apply to any individual who retires before his or her coverage election becomes effective.

Abstract: These proposed rules reflect sec. 9110 of Pub.L. 100-203. They extend Interim Assistance Reimbursement to cases in which assistance is provided by a State while an individual's Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments are suspended or terminated and then subsequently reinstated. Current regulations provide for reimbursement to a State only for interim assistance payments made while an individual's initial application for SSI is pending. No additional program costs are anticipated since the amount reimbursed to the State is later deducted from the individual's SSI payments.

862. SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME PROGRAM; EXCLUSION FROM INCOME OF PAYMENTS RECEIVED FOR AND USED TO PAY LAST ILLNESS AND DEATH

Legal Authority: PL 100-203, Sec 9120

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 416.1121; 20 CFR 416.1207

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulation reflects the provisions of section 9120 of Pub. L. 100-203 by providing that payments to an individual (including gifts and inheritances) occasioned by the death of another person are not considered income for Supplemental Security Income purposes to the extent that such payments are expended by such individual for purposes of the deceased person's last illness and burial. Also, the regulations propose a policy change to not consider the same payments as resources for one month following receipt. Any increased costs will be negligible.

863. OLD-AGE, SURVIVORS, AND DISABILITY INSURANCE PROGRAM; SUPPLEMENTAL EARNINGS REPORTS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 403

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.455

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: We have learned that certain old-age and survivors' insurance beneficiaries tend to underestimate or fail to report their work for the next year which results in overpayments. We are proposing an addition to the current regulation which will clarify that our interpretation of Section 203(h)(3) and (h)(4) of the Social Security Act permits SSA to request estimates of earnings for the next taxable year as well as the current taxable year. If a beneficiary does not furnish the requested future year's earnings estimate, we will use the estimate for the current year to determine whether to withhold benefits for the next year. We estimate savings of $3.5 million per year.

Abstract: This proposal amends the regulations to provide that when it appears that a person who represents claimants in dealing with the Social Security Administration (SSA) has violated one of our rules, the SSA's Deputy Commissioner for Programs, or his or her designee, will initiate proceedings to suspend or disqualify the representative. Under the existing regulations the Office of Retirement and Survivors Insurance performed this function.

Abstract: This final regulation requires that an estimate of deferred compensation for determining the taxable earnings base be included in average wages for 1988 and 1989, so that the 1990 taxable earnings base would reflect the inclusion of deferred compensation in average total wages. Actual deferred compensation amounts would be used beginning with the year 1990 wages. With respect to benefit computations and other program amounts, actual deferred compensation amounts would be included beginning with 1990 wages, and would be reflected in benefit computations and other program amounts beginning in 1993.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 100-690

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 96

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 3027 of Public Law 100-690 amends Section 1916 of the PHS Act to require States to spend at least 55 percent of their mental health allotment under the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Block Grant for FY 1991 for new mental health programs and services. The Secretary may grant a waiver to any State, under certain circumstances, including a State being in financial crises, and providing certain criteria are met by States prior to their requesting a waiver. Such a waiver would reduce the requirement to 35 percent in 1991 (increasing to 55 percent by 1994). This rule implements the statutory requirement that the Secretary promulgate standards for determinations of "financial crisis" and resolves such issues as: a) how to determine when a State is in a financial crisis; b) what information States must provide to assure that a waiver is needed to avoid disruption to existing and planned high priority services; c) how to determine the extent of relief to be granted for approved waivers; and d) imposing requirements that are cost effective.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This is a proposed revision in the regulations for the medical examination of aliens. The regulations were developed to provide for the physical and mental examination of aliens within the United States or in other countries as required by the Immigration and Nationality Act. This proposal would update the regulations in accordance with current epidemiologic concepts and medical diagnostic standards. Specifically, we propose that five sexually transmitted diseases (chancroid; gonorrhea; granuloma inguinale; lymphogranuloma venereum; and syphilis, infectious stage) and infectious leprosy no longer be classified as dangerous contagious diseases, and that these diseases no longer be considered grounds for exclusion of aliens to the United States. Additionally, we propose to change the term "tuberculosis (Active)" to "infectious tuberculosis." We do not propose to remove human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) infection from the list of dangerous contagious diseases at this time because doing so would require prior repeal of section 518 of Public Law 100-71, the Supplemental Appropriations Act of 1987.

Abstract: The proposed rule addresses three major problems of the current regulation by (1) substantially upgrading laboratory performance tests for certifying respirators; (2) adding quantitative face seal performance tests; and (3) replacing current certification tests that are design- or application-specific with tests that are performance-based. The first NPRM for revising 42 CFR Part 84 was published in the Federal Register on August 27, 1987 (52 FR 32402). In response to the many comments on the first proposal, NIOSH is in the process of developing a second NPRM.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 300aa-26; PL 99-660, Sec 311(a)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 110

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 22, 1988.

Abstract: This new regulation is required to implement the statutory requirements of Section 2126, Title XXI, Public Health Service Act as amended. The statute requires the Secretary to develop and disseminate vaccine information materials for distribution by health care providers. These materials will be published as an appendix of this regulation. The regulation describes the vaccine information materials and the health care providers' duties to disseminate a copy of the materials to any adult to whom the provider intends to administer vaccine and to the legal representative of any child to whom the provider intends to administer vaccine. The 90-day comment period was extended to 180 days. Public and internal comments are currently being processed.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 216; 42 USC 264; 42 USC 271

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 72

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The revised regulation will clarify the requirements for packaging and shipping material containing etiologic agents. Some users have had difficulty applying the current regulation, particularly with respect to the definition of material covered. The revised regulation is not expected to have a major impact on the cost of shipping these materials and is expected to result in increased conformance so that those handling such packages will have an even lower probability of exposure to potentially infectious material.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Acceptable evidence and information exists to show that a subgroup of asthmatics is at moderate to severe risk for a severe reaction upon exposure to sulfites. The agency's primary tool for handling a situation where population subgroups may be at increased risk from a food ingredient that is safe for most people is to use labeling to inform those persons who need or want to avoid the ingredient. The agency issued a final rule, effective January 7, 1987, that requires that when a sulfiting agent is present in a finished food at 10 parts per million or greater, the sulfiting agent must be declared on the label. In addition, FDA issued a final rule, effective August 8, 1986, prohibiting the use of sulfiting agents on raw fruits and vegetables intended to be served or sold raw to consumers (e.g., in salad bars). On December 10, 1987, FDA announced its tentative conclusion that there is no longer a basis to find that the use of sulfiting agents on "fresh" potatoes served or sold unpackaged to consumers is GRAS. On December 19, 1988, FDA proposed to affirm, with specific

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: On the same date, the agency also proposed to establish labeling requirements when sulfiting agents are used in standardized foods.

On March 15, 1990 (55 FR 9826), FDA issued a final rule prohibiting the use of sulfiting agents on "fresh" potatoes that are intended to be served or sold unpackaged and unlabeled to the consumer because this use is not generally recognized as safe (GRAS). On August 3, the United States District Court for the Middle District of Pennsylvania declared the rule to be "null and void" based on perceived procedural defects in the rulemaking proceeding. Thus, the rule is not now in effect. The Government appealed the district court's decision to the Third Circuit, and asked for a stay of the district court's decision during the appeal. The Government's request for a stay pending appeal was denied. On March 15, 1990 (55 FR 9834), the agency published a notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER requesting data and information concerning the use of sulfiting agents on frozen potato products the information will aid the agency in evaluating the GRAS status of this use of sulfiting agents.

502. DRUG EXPORTS

Legal Authority: PL 99-660 Drug Export Amendments Act of 1986

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Drug Export Amendments Act of 1986 authorizes the export for commercial marketing abroad of veterinary and human drugs not approved for marketing in the United States. Under previous law, the export of new human and animal drugs for marketing was confined to drugs that were approved by FDA for domestic use. The law establishes three separate pathways for the export of unapproved products. Under each pathway, FDA approval is required before export is permitted. As a prerulemaking activity, FDA is developing guidance material for manufacturers instructing them as to what information must be submitted to the agency to obtain approval for the export of unapproved products. The guidance material will also identify FDA sources of information on agency practices and policies concerning the implementation of the Drug Export Amendments Act of 1986. The agency will then decide what, if any, regulations are necessary for the efficient implementation of the amendments, and establish timeframes for the development of those regulations.

503. COMPUTER PRODUCTS; POLICY GUIDANCE

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 321(h)

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 800

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: As a prerulemaking activity FDA is developing guidance for manufacturers respecting how FDA would apply existing statutory requirements to the regulation of computer products (i.e., both hardware and software) when such products meet the definition of a medical device under the act.

On September 25, 1987, FDA made available a draft policy guidance intended to clarify how FDA would apply existing statutory requirements to the regulation of such products to provide opportunity for public participation in this activity.

Upon analysis of the public comments on the complex issues pertaining to the regulation of computer products, the agency will decide whether any additional steps are necessary to clarify which computer products meet the definition of a medical device and what level of regulation, if any, is appropriate under the act.

Abstract: Based upon an evaluation of an action issues report, the agency has concluded that it will recommend that the Secretary propose revision of the existing regulations in a manner consistent with the current procedural regulations for human drugs where appropriate. The New Animal Drug Application (NADA) revisions would articulate general requirements in regulations containing performance standards and would complement them through detailed guidelines on, among other matters, appropriate ways of meeting requirements for submission of chemistry, pharmacology, and statistical data that would better address the intricate scientific issues involved. A separate proposed rule would provide for reporting requirements for marketed animal drugs.

896. PROPOSED RULE TO IMPLEMENT THE ORPHAN DRUG AMENDMENTS TO THE FEDERAL FOOD, DRUG, AND COSMETIC ACT

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 97-414 Orphan Drug Act; PL 100-290

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Orphan Drug Act is intended to provide incentives for drug companies to invest in the development of drugs for rare diseases or conditions. Certain incentives are necessary because "orphan drugs" are unlikely to be profitable. The agency is required to carry out provisions of the Orphan Drug Act, e.g., by designating a drug as an orphan drug, by providing protocol assistance, and by granting seven years of exclusive approval status. The proposed rule would establish procedures whereby drug sponsors can take advantage of the incentives to encourage development of orphan drugs. Several provisions of the Orphan Drug Act call for promulgation of regulations to provide the framework and guidance for implementing a program of incentives to drug sponsors and manufacturers.

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351 to 360k; 21 USC 374; 42 USC 262 to 264

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The agency currently requires that all blood and blood components intended for the manufacture of any product be tested for antibody to human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). In instances when the blood of a donor is found to contain antibodies to HIV, some blood centers have initiated a program of voluntary "look-back" in which recipients of blood and blood components obtained from the donor's prior donations are traced and tested. A well-conducted look-back program can provide an effective mechanism for identifying, testing, and counseling transfusion recipients who are at increased risk of HIV infection--those who receive blood from a donor later found to be infected with HIV. The agency is considering a proposal to establish a mandatory look-back program. The proposal would require blood collection facilities to develop a procedure to notify consignees promptly whenever a blood donor who has previously donated blood or source plasma is found to be positive for the antibody to HIV or exhibits the signs or symptoms of AIDS; and to keep appropriate records when such notification has been made. The purpose of the proposal is to ensure that either (cont)

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 101

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The agency issued an advance notice of proposed rulemaking on August 8, 1989, requesting public comment on possible changes in the labeling of food products regulated by FDA. The agency sought public comment on five areas: 1) whether to revise the requirements for nutrition labeling; 2) whether to change the nutrition label format on food packages; 3) whether to revise the requirements for ingredient labeling; (4) whether to formally define commonly used food descriptions and/or reconsider the use of standards of identity for foods; and (5) how to reasonably permit the use of messages on food labels that link food components to the prevention of disease. The agency also held four public hearings (see September 20, 1990; 54 FR 38808) to gather first-hand the views of consumers, industry, health professionals, and State and local government officials about labeling revisions. The agency issued three proposed regulations on July 19, 1990, that addressed nutrition labeling.

Small Entities Affected: None

Government Levels Affected: None

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: for "Antimicrobial Products." NPRM for "Alcohol (Topical) Products" to be included is revised NPRM for "Antimicrobial Products." The NPRM for "Antimicrobial Products" is being revised because it is being updated and split into two sections: first aid products and health care products.

SMALL ENTITIES AFFECTED: The effects, if any, vary depending on the individual rulemaking. However, the agency anticipates that the rules would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities as defined by the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 606; 21 CFR 640

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: FDA is responsible for issuing regulatory standards for blood and blood components to ensure the continued safety, purity, and potency of such products. Since 1975, CGMP regulations have been in effect that provide standards for facilities, personnel, and manufacturing procedures for blood and blood components. In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, FDA has conducted a retrospective review of its CGMP regulations for blood and blood components, to determine how the regulations may be revised to relieve regulatory burdens and increase flexibility without adversely affecting the public health. Part of the retrospective review of the CGMP will be completed through FDA's implementation of an efficacy review of blood and blood derivatives which responds to recommendations of a Committee of scientific experts—the Panel on Review of Blood and Blood Derivatives. To complete the remainder of the retrospective review program regarding the CGMP, FDA will issue a proposed rule to revise the CGMP regulations.

904. REQUIREMENTS FOR ADVERSE EXPERIENCE REPORTING FOR LICENSED BIOLOGICAL PRODUCTS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 352 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 355 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 371 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 374 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 42 USC 262 Public Health Service Act

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 211; 21 CFR 310; 21 CFR 600

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulatory action is being taken to improve the safety of marketed drug products by a reporting scheme that will require serious adverse reactions associated with licensed biological products to be reported to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

The purpose of the regulatory action is to require prompt reporting to the agency of serious adverse experiences for all licensed biological products.

The regulatory action being considered by FDA would be consistent with the agency's requirements regarding adverse reactions reporting for approved new drugs under 21 CFR 314.80 (see February 22, 1985; 50 FR 7452). These biologic regulations would require that all "serious and unexpected" adverse experiences and any "significant increase in frequency" of a serious expected event be reported to the agency within 15 working days. Known and nonserious adverse biological product experiences would be required to be reported to the agency at quarterly or annual intervals, depending on the length of marketing experience with the product. 905. ABBREVIATED NEW DRUG APPLICATION REGULATIONS (TITLE I OF THE "DRUG PRICE COMPETITION AND PATENT TERM RESTORATION ACT OF 1984")

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 98-417, (Title I)

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 10; 21 CFR 310; 21 CFR 314; 21 CFR 320

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Until the passage of Title I of the "Drug Price Competition and Patent Term Restoration Act of 1984," abbreviated new drug application (ANDA) procedures were only available for generic products equivalent to pioneer drugs approved before 1962. Title I opened up the ANDA policy to generic copies of products approved after 1962. On July 10, 1989 (54 FR 28872), FDA proposed regulations to implement Title I. The proposal provides for the submission of abbreviated new drug applications for generic versions of drug products first approved after 1962. These new provisions will benefit consumers by making generic drug products available more quickly.

The agency is reviewing the public comments submitted in response to the proposed rule and preparing a FEDERAL REGISTER document that will respond to these comments.

906. FOOD LABELING; HEALTH MESSAGES AND LABEL STATEMENTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1453 Fair Packaging and Labeling Act; 15 USC 1454 Fair Packaging and Labeling Act; 15 USC 1455 Fair Packaging and Labeling Act; 21 USC 321 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 331 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 342 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 343 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 348 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 351 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 352 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 355 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 371 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 101

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In the FEDERAL REGISTER of February 13, 1990, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) reproposed to amend the food labeling regulations to provide for the use of health messages on food labeling. The purpose of this reproposal would be to establish procedures for permitting valid and reliable consumer information on food labels about the value that ingestion (or reduced ingestion) of a dietary component, as part of a total dietary pattern, may have in either lowering the risk, or forestalling the premature onset, of a particular chronic disease condition. In light of this reproposal, FDA withdrew the August 4, 1987 (52 FR 28843) proposal on health messages on food labels. FDA also outlined how it is likely to enforce its regulations that bear on health messages during the period that it is receiving and considering comments on the reproposal. The agency also provided information on the proposed functions and responsibilities of the Public Health Service Committee on Health Messages; on the agency's proposed plan to utilize health messages as a consumer education tool; (cont)

907. FOOD LABELING: DEFINITIONS OF CHOLESTEROL FREE, LOW CHOLESTEROL, AND REDUCED CHOLESTEROL

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 321(n) Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 331 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 342 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 343 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 348 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 371 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 101.9; 21 CFR 101.25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In the FEDERAL REGISTER of November 25, 1988, the agency published a proposed rule that would provide a mechanism to allow relevant, truthful, and nonmisleading claims about cholesterol and fatty acid on product labeling for consumers. This proposed rule resulted from the medical and consumer interest in the association between dietary fat and cholesterol and the occurrence of coronary heart disease, the leading cause of death and disability in the United States today. The proposed rule would allow industry voluntarily to provide consumers with cholesterol and fatty acid information currently prohibited by regulations by permitting the use of meaningful descriptors of the cholesterol content of foods as established by regulation (e.g., "cholesterol free," "low cholesterol," and "reduced cholesterol"). Additionally, the proposal would allow the use of comparative claims (e.g., 50 percent less cholesterol than our original product), provided quantitative cholesterol content information is supplied.

909. COMMON OR USUAL NAME FOR DILUTED FRUIT OR VEGETABLE JUICE BEVERAGES OTHER THAN DILUTED ORANGE JUICE BEVERAGES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 21 USC 321(n) Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 343 Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 371(a) Federal Food, and Cosmetic Act

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In 1980, FDA published a regulation (21 CFR 102.33) to require the declaration of the percent of juice contained in all diluted juice beverages. This regulation was published to extend the percent juice declaration required for diluted orange juice beverages (21 CFR 102.32) to all other diluted juice beverages. These two regulations were developed to provide consumers with information as to the various amounts of juice in the diluted juice beverages offered for sale. The regulation regarding percentage juice declaration for diluted orange juice beverages had been in effect for several years and functioning well before the regulation addressing all other diluted juice beverages was published. With publication of 21 CFR 102.33, a controversy developed over the applicability of the regulation to diluted cranberry juice beverages. The controversy centered around the fact that cranberry juice is a high acid juice and is not normally consumed as a single strength juice. Due to this unresolved controversy, 21 CFR 102.33 has not been made effective. In the Federal Register of July 16, 1987 (52 FR 26690), the agency proposed to revoke the common or usual (cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: name regulation (21 CFR 102.33) for diluted fruit or vegetable juice beverages other than diluted orange juice beverages. The revocation of this regulation will allow voluntary percentage labeling of these diluted juice beverages at the discretion of the manufacturer and according to the demands of the marketplace. Diluted orange juice beverages would continue to be subject to the percentage labeling requirement that has been in effect for diluted orange juice beverages since 1973. This proposed action also withdraws the proposed rule published in the Federal Register of June 1, 1984 (49 FR 22831), which, among other things, exempted cranberry juice products from percentage ingredient labeling requirements. On January 31, 1990 (55 FR 3266), FDA requested comments on a petition received from the National Food Processors Association (NFPA) to initiate a new action to revise 21 CFR 102.33. The comment period closed on April 2, 1990. The comment period was reopened on June 4, 1990, and closed on July 5, 1990.

Abstract: In the Federal Register of June 3, 1988 (51 FR 20204), the Office of Science and Technology Policy (OSTP) issued for public comment a proposed Model Federal Policy for the Protection of Human Research Subjects. This Model Policy is to enhance uniformity in the implementation of a common core of regulations governing research with human subjects. FDA has concurred in the proposed Model Policy to the extent permitted by law. FDA has proposed (53 FR 45678) to amend its regulations to eliminate certain inconsistencies with the proposed Model Policy.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On June 1, 1989 (54 FR 23485), FDA proposed to establish a regulatory limit for ceramic food-service pitchers, excluding creamers, that would limit the leaching of lead from the glazes and decorations on the food-contact surface of these pitchers to no more than 0.1 microgram per milliliter (ug/mL) of test solution. FDA also proposed to provide that decorative ceramicware that appears to be suitable for food use will be deemed to be for food use unless it bears a conspicuous, permanent label statement molded or fired onto the ceramic piece that states that the piece is not for food use, or a hole is bored through the possible food-contact surface of the piece. FDA proposed this provision to ensure that decorative pieces are not confused with food-contact ceramicware. Finally, by means of the notice, FDA solicited comments and information on several other matters, including the need to decrease leachable lead from other ceramicware (flatware, cookware, and large and small hollowware other than pitchers) and appropriate measures for achieving any needed decrease.

Abstract: The Food and Drug Administration and the National Institute on Drug Abuse have proposed to revise the conditions for the use of methadone in the maintenance treatment of narcotic addicts. The proposal would allow programs to provide minimum service (interim) maintenance treatment to patients awaiting placement in comprehensive maintenance treatment and require programs to provide counseling on avoidance of human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) transmission. These requirements are being considered in response to the HIV epidemic and are intended to allow more narcotic addicts into treatment more quickly, thereby decreasing the incidence of intravenous drug abuse and the transmission of HIV. Comments on the proposal revealed a large number of differing opinions on both the desirability of adopting interim maintenance standards and on a number of related issues. Because it was necessary to improve the administrative record before making a decision regarding any final action based on the proposal, FDA and NIDA held a public hearing on February 28, 1990, to solicit additional information. After careful review of the administrative record, including information received (cont)

Abstract: In the Federal Register of October 21, 1988 (53 FR 41561), FDA issued an interim rule effective upon date of publication, with opportunity for public comment, that set forth procedures designed to speed the availability of new therapies to desperately ill patients, while preserving appropriate guarantees for safety and effectiveness. These procedures are intended to facilitate the development, evaluation, and marketing of such products, especially where no satisfactory alternative therapies exist. These procedures reflect the recognition that physicians and patients are generally willing to accept greater risks or side effects from products that treat life-threatening and severely-debilitating illness. These procedures also reflect the recognition that the benefits of the drug need to be evaluated in light of the severity of the disease being treated. The procedures apply to life-threatening or severely-debilitating illnesses. The agency is Abstract: This proposed rule will amend the agency's regulations governing investigational new drug (IND) applications to include additional grounds for placing an investigation on "clinical hold" and for terminating an IND. Under the amendments, FDA may require a sponsor to cease distributing an experimental drug in an open, nonconcurrently controlled investigation if any of several specified conditions exist. These amendments will help to implement a proposed PHS policy on expanded availability of INDs through a parallel track mechanism for people with AIDS or HIV-related disease.

Abstract: The National Vaccine Injury Compensation program, administered by the Secretary, and governed by Subtitle 2 of Title XXI of the Public Health Service Act, provides that a proceeding for compensation of a vaccine-related injury or death shall be initiated by service upon the Secretary and the filing of a petition with the United States Claims Court. It is the purpose of this proposed rule to set out the amount to be deducted from the award of compensation which would reflect the average cost of a health insurance policy.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1320b-8 Section 1138 of the Social Security Act; 42 USC 201 Section 372 of the Public Health Service Act

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 1138 of the Social Security Act requires Medicare and Medicaid participating hospitals that perform organ transplants to be members of and abide by the rules and requirements of the Organ Procurement and Transplantation Network (OPTN) as established by section 372 of the Public Health Service Act. Section 1138 also requires that for organ procurement costs attributable to payments to an Organ Procurement Organization (OPO) to be paid by Medicare or Medicaid, the OPO must be a member of and abide by the rules and requirements of the OPTN. No other entity (for example, a histocompatibility laboratory) is required to be a member of or abide by the rules of the OPTN under the provisions of the statute. It is the Department's position that no rule, requirement, policy, or other issuance of the OPTN will be considered to be a "rule or requirement" of the Network within the meaning of section 1138 unless the Secretary has formally approved that rule. The OPTN is currently in operation and these rules will impose no further cost or provide any benefit other than that which now exists.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 291i; 42 USC 300s-1a

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 124.705

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulations at 42 CFR Part 1 Subpart H provide for recovery of funds by the United States when a health care facility that was constructed with the aid of a grant under Title VI or Title XVI of the Public Health Service Act is, within 20 years, sold or transferred to an entity that would not have been qualified to receive a grant. The regulations also provide for recovery where, within the same 20-year period, an assisted facility ceases to be a health care facility to which a grant could have been made. The regulations authorized the Secretary to waive the recovery rights of the United States if the Secretary determines that there is good cause for waiving such rights with respect to a facility. (Sec. 124.708.)

The Department proposes to amend this section to include, in determining good cause for a waiver, instances where a facility has been acquired from an agency of the United States. No cost will be incurred as a result of this regulation.

Abstract: The Public Health Service Amendments of 1987, PL 100-177 amends the Public Health Service Act adding a new section at 336B of the Act authorizing the Secretary to establish the NHSC Loan Repayment Program. PL 100-177 also amends the PHS Act by adding a new section 338H authorizing the Secretary to establish a program of matching grants to support state loan repayment programs similar to the Federal Loan Repayment Program. PL 100-177 also establishes a new program which is not part of the PHS Act which provides a time limited opportunity for persons in default of their scholarship obligation as of November 1, 1987 to repay these obligations through service or through a combination of service and monetary payment. The publication of the regulations beyond the statutory date will not have any impact on the funding or implementation of the programs affected by these regulations.

Abstract: Public Law 93-638 passed in 1975, requires the IHS to turn over administrative responsibility to tribes so requesting, using the mechanism of contracting. Public Law 93-638 also authorizes the IHS to make grants to tribe(s) for the planning, development, and/or operations of health programs. Public Law 100-472, enacted October 5, 1988, significantly expands the scope of programs covered beyond those administered by IHS. This Act further provided that all contracting requirements be contained in regulations promulgated in final within ten months of enactment. The Law provides for tribal consultation and participation in the development of the regulations.

Additional Information: This is a procurement-related action for which there is a statutory requirement. There is a paperwork burden associated with this action.

1. The Act (P.L. 100-472) provides that except for construction contracts, the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act and Federal Acquisition Regulations shall not apply to self-determination contracts. Therefore, implementing regulations for the Indian Self-Determination Act amendments will include a subpart on construction contracts, which, unlike other self-determination awards will be made subject to certain procurement rules (e.g., FARS, HSARS, FSARS). 2. There is a statutory requirement to implement P.L. 93-638 regulations. 3. There is a paperwork burden associated with the action. It will be included with the overall clearance package.

Abstract: This NPRM proposes to revise the regulations under 42 CFR Part 67 Subpart A governing grants for health services research made by the former National Center for Health Services Research and Health Care Technology Assessment (NCHSR). Public Law 101-239, enacted on December 19, 1989, established the Agency for Health Care Policy and Research, replacing the NCHSR, and provided the new agency with a much expanded role in health services research. The NPRM will incorporate applicable provisions of the new law.

Abstract: This proposed rule would implement section 9401 of Pub.L. 99-272, which provides that, under Medicare, a physician must request from the Peer Review Organization (PRO) preadmission review for certain surgical procedures. Under section 9401, if the PRO determines that the procedure is not appropriate and medically necessary, the PRO will deny payment under Medicare. If the PRO cannot determine whether a surgical procedure is medically necessary and appropriate, the beneficiary would obtain an opinion from a second physician, or where the opinion of the second physician differs from the first physician, the beneficiary may obtain an opinion from a third physician. In addition, as required by section 4086(b) of Pub. L.100-203, if an assigned claim by a physician or supplier or any claim by a provider is denied because the services furnished are not reasonable and necessary or constitute custodial care and the physician, supplier or provider, but not the beneficiary, knew, or reasonably could be expected to know, that the services were not covered by Medicare, (cont)

Abstract: This rule proposes to establish optional prospective payment rates for routine services furnished by certain skilled nursing facilities. The prospective rate would be on a per diem basis and would include payment for the cost of furnishing general inpatient routine services and associated capital-related costs. Ancillary services will be paid on the basis of reasonable cost. This rule would propose instructions for determining eligibility for payment under this system, and the methodology for calculating the prospective payment rates. Abstract: These proposed regulations would establish home health aide supervision and duty requirements applicable to all home health agencies (HHAs) and hospices that provide home health aide services under the Medicare program. In addition, these regulations would codify longstanding policies concerning the limitations and exclusions applicable to home health services covered under the Medicare program. The proposed rule would also clarify policies concerning exclusions for drugs and biological and prosthetic devices and institute discharge planning as a requirement for HHAs.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend or establish regulations relating to appeal rights and procedures for Medicare beneficiaries who are enrolled in health maintenance organizations (HMOs), competitive medical plans (CMPs), and health care prepayment plans (HCPPs). Specifically, the proposed rule would extend to HMO and CMP members the right to request review by a PRO of early hospital discharges; impose a 60-day limit for HMOS and CMPs to process requests by beneficiaries for reconsideration of decisions on denied services or claims; and require HCPPs to establish appeal procedures for enrollees who are Medicare beneficiaries. These changes are aimed at improving efficiency and at providing beneficiaries equitable appeal rights, regardless of their enrollment status.

Abstract: This proposed rule would implement several provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987, other than those implemented through the final rule published on February 2 1989 governing long term care facility participation in the Medicare and Medicaid programs effective October 1, 1990, and State requirements for FFP. The provisions include Federal standards for evaluating State waivers of nursing facility nurse staffing requirements, use of physical restraints and psychopharmacologic drugs for nursing facility residents, notices of Medicaid rights to be given to persons admitted to nursing facilities, and other technical changes.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These proposed regulations would add requirements for certification of Medicare supplemental (Medigap) policies under the Federal voluntary certification program or for approval under State regulatory programs that are deemed to have standards that are equal to or more stringent than those of the Federal program. The new standards would include: required submission of advertising to the State; reporting of actual loss ratio information under both the Federal and State programs; a uniform 30-day free-look standard; and procedural requirements for the direct claim transmittal of bills submitted for services furnished to Part B beneficiaries by participating physicians and suppliers from Medicare carriers to Medigap insurers. Insurers would be required to pay user fees for the transmittal of claims. The regulations also would require conformance with the most recent model standards adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

Abstract: This proposed rule would make the requirements for physician certification and development of a plan of care general State plan requirements. States would no longer be required to make quarterly showings that they had determined compliance with those requirements or with utilization review. A quarterly demonstration to the Secretary of an effective program of medical review as demonstrated by a satisfactory utilization control program would be limited to Inspections of Care (IOCs) in participating ICFs/MR and mental hospitals. The IOC team would be required, as part of its review, to ensure compliance with State plan requirements regarding certifications, recertifications, plans of care, and utilization reviews. The team would also be required to ensure compliance with admission review requirements. This rule establishes review criteria specifically for ICFs/MR and mental hospitals that ensure essential client protections and focus on the provision of active treatment.

Abstract: This proposal would eliminate the requirement that HCFA publish in the Federal Register a proposed notice with opportunity for public comment and then a final notice for any changes in MMIS requirements, performance standards and other conditions for approval and reapproval. Instead we would use well established communication arrangements under which States provide input during the development of revisions, and we would issue revised manual instructions well in advance of implementation changes. This change will increase the efficiency of the administrative process by eliminating lengthy time frames associated with a formal notice and comment procedure thus allowing an expeditious means of developing and communicating changes.

Abstract: These rules would propose to require States to include in their State plans payment of Medicare cost-sharing for low income Medicare beneficiaries, Qualified Medicare Beneficiaries (QMB). The territories have the option to do the same. We would define cost-sharing, specify criteria for determining QMB status, propose requirements and options for payment amounts and limitations, and provide for Federal financial participation in State payments for Medicare cost-sharing on behalf of QMBs. The changes would implement provisions of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 as modified by the Family Support Act of 1988, the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988 and the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989. These provisions went into effect January 1, 1989.

Abstract: This rule proposes coverage criteria and payment methodology for the drug Epoetin Alfa (EPO). The FDA approved EPO on June 1, 1989. Medicare covers EPO for the treatment of anemia for patients with end-state renal disease (ESRD) or chronic renal failure who are not on dialysis. EPO stimulates the bone marrow to make new red blood cells and prevents the need for blood transfusions.

Abstract: This proposed rule would revise the procedure used to calculate the Medicare Economic Index (MEI) in order to more accurately reflect year-to-year economic changes affecting the cost of providing physician services, thus insuring that Medicare payments for those services do not increase more than is justified. The proposed rule would also amend current regulations to specify dates of services to which the revised MEI would apply and to provide a procedure for further revisions of the MEI methodology.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, January 1, 1989.

Abstract: Sections 1819(b)(3) and 1919(b)(3) of the Social Security Act, as amended by PL 100-203, require that in order for an institution to qualify to participate as a skilled nursing facility in the Medicare program, and, before October 1, 1990, as a skilled nursing facility or as an intermediate care facility in the Medicaid program, and effective October 1, 1990, as a nursing facility in the Medicaid program, it must conduct a comprehensive, standardized assessment of each resident's capability to perform daily life functions. The assessment must also describe significant impairments in the resident's functional capacity and be based on a uniform minimum data set specified by the Secretary. Sections 1819(f)(6)(A) and 1919 (f)(6)(A) of the Act require the Secretary to specify a minimum data set of core elements and common definitions for use by nursing facilities in conducting the assessments. This proposed rule would specify this minimum data set and establish guidelines for using it.

Abstract: This notice proposes to revise Medicare operating guidelines on "prosthetic devices" to delete from the listing of covered services, corrective eyeglasses for aphakic patients with intraocular or contact lenses, and contact lenses used in lieu of eyeglasses in combination with intraocular lenses. Available evidence shows that corrective eyeglasses and lenses provide the same refractive benefit for aphakic individuals who have prosthetic intraocular lenses or contact lenses as they do for nonaphakic individuals for whom corrective eyeglasses are not covered under Medicare. We are proposing to provide a uniform Medicare policy concerning the exclusion of eyeglasses from coverage.

Legal Authority: PL 101-239, Sec 6024; 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 413.3(b)(2)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 6024 of PL 101-239 requires the Secretary to update the skilled nursing facility (SNF) cost limits effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1989 in accordance with regulations that require the use of cost reports submitted by SNFs for cost reporting periods beginning not earlier than October 1, 1985. Many of the cost reports that HCFA uses to update limits on SNFs' costs are "as submitted" and therefore not "settled." Since using only "settled" cost reports is not feasible, due to the lengthy time needed to receive and audit cost report data, HCFA will continue to use the most recent data available. HCFA is proposing that adjustment factors be applied uniformly to all "as submitted" cost reports, contained on the SNF data base and the home health agency data base to adjust for the overstatement of costs that occurs in those reports. This rule sets forth the proposed adjustment factors and the methodology used to complete the factors.

Abstract: This rule amends the fire safety standards for hospitals, long term care facilities, and intermediate care facilities for the mentally retarded and would affect only those facilities. It would delete references to the 1967 and 1973 editions of the Life Safety Code of the National Fire Protection Association and require compliance with either the 1981 or 1985 editions depending on the date when the facility was first certified to participate in Medicare or Medicaid. This rule creates a uniform policy for all types of facilities that participate in the Medicare and Medicaid programs. The revision of the 1967 and 1973 editions of the Life Safety Code is intended to ensure that Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries and recipients have the benefit of the most current fire protection standards.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 6113 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 (OBRA '89) provides coverage for the services of clinical psychologists (CPs) and clinical social workers. It removed the community mental health center site of service restriction on CP services. It requires CPs to agree to consult with the patient's primary care or attending physician. Also, it eliminates the dollar limitation that previously applied to all mental health services. OBRA'89 defines the term "clinical social worker services" and places two exceptions on where such services can be performed. These exceptions include services provided to inpatients of hospitals and skilled nursing facilities that are Medicare participating. Additionally, clinical social worker services are no longer subject to the dollar limitation, although the 62.5 percent limitation still applies to all incurred expenses for mental health services.

Abstract: These regulations will reflect provisions of section 948 of Pub. L. 98-499 and section 2307 of Pub. L. 98-369. This legislation deals with certain problems that have arisen in the Medicare program with respect to payment for physicians in the teaching setting. Specifically addressed by Congress is the problem of distinguishing between the services a physician furnishes to individual patients as a teaching physician and services furnished to the provider, as well as the method of payment for these services. These rules will set forth the conditions under which physicians in teaching settings will be paid on a reasonable cost basis or, alternatively, on a reasonable charge basis. It also describes the methods used to determine the customary charges for the services of those physicians. The rules will also clarify related physician payment issues.

Abstract: This final rule will require Medicare participating hospitals with emergency departments to provide upon request medical examinations and treatments for individuals with emergency medical conditions and women in active labor. Further, a participating hospital that has specialized capabilities or facilities (such as burn, shock trauma, or neonatal intensive care units) must accept appropriate transfer if they have the capacity to treat the individual. Hospitals failing to meet those requirements may have their Medicare provider agreements terminated. In addition, the hospital and the responsible physician may each be subject to a civil money penalty for each such violation. Under section 9122 of Pub. L. 99-272, Medicare participating hospitals are required to accept CHAMPUS and CHAMPVA payment as payment in full for services provided to CHAMPUS and CHAMPVA beneficiaries. These regulations will also implement section 233 of Pub. L. 99-576, which requires Medicare hospitals to give patients a notice of their discharge rights.

Abstract: This final rule amends the Medicaid regulations to provide for mandatory categorically needy eligibility for individuals who, although severely impaired, work and demonstrate ability to perform substantial gainful activity and who are considered to be Supplemental Security Income (SSI) beneficiaries by virtue of Section 1619 of the Social Security Act. It also specifies how States electing the option under Section 1902(f) of the Social Security Act to provide Medicaid under criteria more restrictive than SSI, will treat the "1619" individuals. It also specifies how SSI payments made to certain institutionalized individuals are to be disregarded as income under Medicaid for up to two months. The amendments conform the regulations to provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 and the Employment Opportunities for Disabled Americans Act.

Abstract: The purpose of this final rule is to implement section 9403 of Pub. L. 99-272, 9353(c) of Pub. L. 99-509, and section 4086(a) of Pub. L. 100-203. Under section 9403 of Pub. L. 272, Peer Review Organizations (PROs) are authorized to deny Medicare payment to a physician or hospital for services furnished that are of substandard quality. The PRO determinations to deny Medicare payment for these services will be made on the basis of criteria that are consistent with guidelines established by the Secretary. Under section 9353(c) of Pub. L. 99-509, PROs will conduct an appropriate review of all written complaints from beneficiaries or their representatives about the quality of services not meeting professionally recognized standards of health care. Under section 4086(a) of Pub. L. 100-203, beneficiaries are protected from liability for the cost of physician services where payment is denied because services were of substandard quality.

Abstract: The rule will establish in regulations generally applicable standards and procedures for determinations as to whether and under what circumstances specific medical items and services should be paid for under Medicare. It establishes and explains the criteria relied upon for determining whether an item or service is "reasonable and necessary." The objective of the criteria and procedures set forth in this rule is to assure that Federal funds are expended only for medical services that are properly covered under the Medicare program.

Abstract: Under this final notice, hospital-based home health agencies accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation for Healthcare Organizations and home health agencies accredited by the National League for Nursing are "deemed" to meet the Medicare conditions of participation. Thus, these agencies will not ordinarily be subject to an inspection by State survey agencies to determine their compliance with Federal requirements. As a result of the home health agency's deemed status, a State also can choose to permit the agency to participate as a provider under the Medicaid program.

Abstract: These rules will amend the Medicaid regulations to incorporate numerous eligibility groups for Medicaid coverage: pregnant women; children in adoption and foster care; certain disabled widows and widowers; certain disabled children being cared for at home; and certain other qualified children. The rules will also provide for extended care for pregnant women after termination of pregnancy and add a condition of eligibility relating to third party liability. The amendments will conform the regulations to provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (Pub. L. 100-203), the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (Pub. L. 99-272), and the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (Pub. L. 97-248). States have been informed that these provisions of the statute are self-implementing. Abstract: Section 9320 of Pub. L. 99-509 provides for payment on a fee schedule basis for services of certified registered nurse anesthetists (CRNAs) furnished to Medicare beneficiaries on or after January 1, 1988. The payment amount will be equal to the least of 80 percent of a fee schedule established by the Secretary (and adjusted annually by the change in the Medicare economic index), 80 percent of the prevailing charge for an anesthesiologist; or 80 percent of the actual charge. CRNAs will be required to accept assignment for all Medicare services and civil monetary penalties could be imposed for violations of this requirement. Alternatively, the hospital or physician could bill for and receive payment for services of CRNAs where an employment relationship or contract so stipulates. The hospital or physician could not bill more for CRNA services than the amount the CRNA could bill directly.

Abstract: This rule, issued jointly by HCFA and OIG, will prohibit Medicare payment for nonphysician services furnished to a hospital outpatient by a provider or supplier other than the hospital, unless the services are furnished under an arrangement with the hospital. The hospital will be obligated by its provider agreement to furnish the services directly or under an arrangement. These regulations also authorize OIG to impose a civil money penalty, not to exceed $2,000, against any individual who knowingly and willfully presents, or causes to be presented, a bill or request for payment for a hospital outpatient service under Part B of Medicare in violation of an arrangement. These regulations will implement sections 9343(c)(1), (c)(2), and (c)(3), of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 (PL 99-509).

Abstract: This rule sets forth several changes to the Medicare regulations governing Peer Review Organizations. Some of these changes are the result of the passage of the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 and the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986. Other changes are of a technical nature and are intended to clarify and correct existing regulations on the Peer Review Organization Program. The rule also sets forth the policy for reimbursement of costs incurred by hospitals for photocopying medical records needed by PROs during offsite reviews.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 1, 1989.

Abstract: This regulation will implement section 1915(d) of the Social Security Act, which allows a State to obtain a waiver of certain Medicaid requirements to permit Federal financial participation for home and community based services provided to individuals age 65 or older who are shown by an evaluation to be likely to require the level of care provided in a skilled nursing facility (SNF) or intermediate care facility (ICF), the cost for which could be paid by Medicaid. The statute allows for waivers of statewideness, comparability, and income deeming. Under the waiver provisions, the total amount expended by the State for home and community based services, SNF services, and ICF services for individuals over age 65 may not exceed a "projected amount", determined under the methodology provided in these regulations. For States electing this option the waiver would replace home and community based waivers available under section 1915(c) of the Act, for individuals in this age category.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, August 1, 1988.

Abstract: Pursuant to provisions included in section 4040 of PL 100-203, these rules set forth a fee schedule for radiology services furnished by a board-certified or board eligible radiologist or by a physician whose charges for radiology services account for 50 percent or more of his or her total Medicare charges. These physicians will be paid at 80 percent of the lower of the actual charges or the appropriate fee schedule amount. The fee schedule amount for a nonparticipating physician is 95 percent of the amount applicable to a participating physician. In addition, a nonparticipating physician's charges to beneficiaries are capped. The fee schedule will result in overall payment to physicians for radiology of 3 percent less than would have occurred without a fee schedule. The fee schedule will be updated annually in accordance with the annual increase in the Medicare Economic Index.

Abstract: These regulations conform HCFA rules to certain self-executing provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987. They are needed to make HCFA rules consistent with current provisions of law and to ensure that users of the regulations are not confused by outdated provisions or unclear language. Under the Medicare program's rules changes are made affecting: services of podiatrists; outpatient psychiatric services; SMI premiums; partial hospitalization; and comprehensive outpatient rehabilitative facility services. Under the Medicaid program changes are made affecting: services of dentists; clinic services; and waivers of certain State plan requirements. In addition, we make other conforming and transitional amendments.

Abstract: Historically the Department has regulated laboratories by "location," rather than by types of tests they perform. Amendments to the Clinical Laboratories Improvements Act of 1988 changes this approach. The amendments require that the Department "regulate by test," using what is commonly referred to as the "complexity model." This final rule sets forth standards for all laboratories based on complexity and responds to public comments on the proposed standards.

Abstract: On October 31, 1988, PL 100-578 amended section 353 of the Public Health Service Act. The amendments (the Clinical Laboratories Improvement Act of 1988), in section 353(e) of the Public Health Service Act, provided laboratories with the option of meeting Federal certification requirements through accreditations by an approved accrediting body. Laboratories in States that have standards equal to or more stringent than those of section 353 of the Public Health Service Act will also be exempt from Federal standards. A laboratory accredited under an approved laboratory accreditation program or licensed in an approved State licensure program will be deemed to meet Federal certification requirements.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 1395hh; 42 USC 1395f(i)(1)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 418

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will conform Medicare regulations to the requirements of section 6005(a) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989, which provided a 20 percent increase in payment rates for the four types of covered hospice care, and to specify the method HCFA will use to update the national rates for future years. The preamble also announces a change in the basis that Medicare intermediaries will use to adjust the national rates to reflect local wage differentials.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 1395i-2(a)

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 406; 42 CFR 407

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation provides that disabled individuals may enroll in premium hospital insurance if they lose entitlement to social security disability benefits solely because their earnings exceed the limits imposed by the "gainful activity" rules, and as a result of that loss also lose entitlement to free hospital insurance that was based on entitlement to disability benefits. The regulation also updates and simplifies the rules on State buy-in for Medicare benefits for their Medicaid recipients and specifies two new groups for which States may buy-in: Qualified Medicare Beneficiaries, and Qualified Disabled and Working Individuals.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395x(s)(2)(J); 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 410

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule amends the regulations to reflect section 9335(c) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 and section 4075 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987. These provisions provide Medicare coverage for prescription drugs used in immunosuppressive therapy furnished to an individual who receives an organ transplant for which Medicare payment is made for a period of one year after the transplant procedure.

Legal Authority: PL 101-239, Sec 6901(a); 42 USC 1395i-3; 42 USC 1395aa(d); 42 USC 1396r; 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 442; 42 CFR 488

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule with comment period amends the Medicare and Medicaid regulations by removing the long-term care survey forms, guidelines, and procedures used by State agencies when they evaluate a Medicare skilled nursing facility or a Medicaid nursing facility for compliance with Federal certification requirements. Effective October 1, 1990, the application of new Federal participation requirements for these facilities with an increased focus on actual or potential resident outcomes will make the survey forms and process in existing regulations outdated. Retention of the outdated items could cause confusion in connection with directions State survey agencies must follow in determining facility requirements for the new requirements that become effective October 1, 1990.

Abstract: This NPRM rule, which implements section 20 of the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 (Pub. L. 98-378) specifies that in any case where the collection or increased collection of support under title IV-D of the Social Security Act contributes wholly or partly to a family's ineligibility for AFDC, the family is deemed, but only for the purpose of Medicaid eligibility, to be receiving AFDC for a period of four calendar months after the last month of AFDC eligibility. This applies only to families who receive AFDC in three of the six months immediately preceding the month of ineligibility. "Received" includes those individuals denied an AFDC payment solely because the payment amount is under $10, the recoupment of overpayment, or because the payment is determined to be zero as a result of rounding.

Abstract: Would update current regulations by adding statutory exclusions for certain per capita distributions of Indian judgment funds and other funds held in trust by the Department of Interior, and initial purchases made with such funds. Additionally, would exclude the following types of distributions received from a Native Corporation pursuant to the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act: (1) Cash to the extent that it does not in the aggregate, exceed $2,000 per individual per annum; (2) Stocks; (3) A partnership interest; (4) Land or an interest in land; and (5) An interest in a settlement trust. Regulations would reflect the statutes; therefore, no alternatives are being considered. We estimate that the Federal share of the cost of the trust funds exclusions required under PL 97-458 and PL 98-64 would be $696,960 per year, the Federal share of the cost of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act exclusions required under PL 100-241 would be $1,878,108 per year. Therefore, the annual result would be a cost of $2,575,068.

Abstract: These rules make revisions to the regulations designed to incorporate changes made by Section 9101 of PL 99-509, which amended Section 1137 of the Social Security Act to allow States flexibility in targeting uses of data through the Income and Eligibility Verification System. States will not be required to verify and act on all data. This changes earlier regulations which required 100% verification and allows the States the option to target their uses to those identified in the State Plan as most likely to be productive. Legal Authority: 8 USC 12552

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amends the regulation implementing the State Legalization Impact Assistance Grants (SLIAG), 45 CFR part 402. This action changes the date by which States' Fiscal Year 1991 SLIAG applications are due from July 15, 1990 to October 1, 1990 and the deadline by which States' Fiscal Year 1991 applications must be approvable by the Secretary from October 1, 1990 to December 15, 1990. This change gives States additional time to establish the actual amounts of costs reimbursable with SLIAG grant funds.

Department of Housing and Urban Development

Semiannual Regulatory Agenda

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT (HUD)

34 CFR Subtitles A and B

[Docket No. N-90-3141; FR-2666]

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Department of Housing and Urban Development.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, of regulations expected to be issued and under review.

SUMMARY: In accordance with section 5 of Executive Order 12291, "Federal Regulation," the Department is publishing its agenda of proposed regulations already issued or expected to be issued and of currently effective rules that are under review. Also, under section 602 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the Department has prepared a regulatory flexibility agenda of regulations expected to be proposed or promulgated, which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. As permitted by Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the two agendas are combined for publication.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Grady J. Norris, Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Room 10276, 451 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20410, (202) 708-3055. (This is not a toll-free number.)

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291, "Federal Regulation," issued on February 17, 1981 (46 FR 13193), requires each agency to publish semiannually an agenda of regulations that the agency has issued or expects to issue and of currently effective regulations that are under agency review.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601-612, requires each agency to publish semiannually a regulatory flexibility agenda of rules expected to be proposed or promulgated, which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of "small entities," meaning small businesses, small organizations, or small governmental jurisdictions.

Executive Order 12291 and section 605 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act each permit incorporation of the agenda it requires with any other prescribed agenda. Accordingly, the agenda set out below combines the information required by the Executive Order and by the Regulatory Flexibility Act. In addition, the agenda contains certain information not required by either the Executive order or by the Act, which the Department considers useful, both better to inform the public and to enhance the Department's own inventory control over its body of regulations.

For purposes of Executive Order 12291, "regulation" or "rule" is defined as "an agency statement of general applicability and future effect designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy or describing the procedure or practice requirements of an agency," subject to certain exceptions. The agenda published below concentrates upon regulatory material contained or expected to be contained in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) (or incorporated therein by reference) following publication in the Federal Register. As appropriate, however, issuances in the nature of general statements of policy may be published in the Federal Register but not for codification in the CFR.

The Department also is subject to certain requirements involving congressional review of rulemaking actions, including publication of an agenda. Section 7(o) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act (42 U.S.C. 3535(o)) requires that the Secretary transmit to the congressional committees having jurisdictional oversight (the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs and the House Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs) a semiannual agenda of all rules or regulations which are under development or review by the Department. A rule appearing on the agenda cannot be published for comment before or during the first 15 calendar days after transmittal of the agenda. If, within that period, either committee notifies the Secretary that it intends to review any rule or regulation which appears on the agenda, the Secretary must submit to both committees a copy of the rule or regulation, in the form it is intended to be proposed, at least 15 calendar days before it is published for comment. The semiannual agenda published today is the agenda transmitted to the committees in compliance with the foregoing requirement.

The agenda items are divided first by program office. Within each program office, the agenda items are divided into four groups: (i) Prerulemaking actions, (ii) publication or other implementations of notices of proposed rulemaking, (iii) publications or other implementations of final rules, and (iv) completed actions. Within each grouping, rules are listed in chronological order by the part number of the CFR affected. Where a rule affects multiple parts of the CFR, the rule is listed by the first affected part number. Priority rules include all regulations designated for priority development by the Department.

Items listed in this agenda are from the following Offices within the Department: Office of the Secretary; Office of Housing; Office of Public and Indian Housing; Office of Community Planning and Development; Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity; Government National Mortgage Association; and Office of Administration.

Dated: August 24, 1990.

Frank Keating,

General Counsel.

1142. CRITERIA FOR DETERMINING UNUTILIZED OR UNDERUTILIZED FEDERAL PROPERTY AS SUITABLE FOR FACILITIES TO ASSIST THE HOMELESS (S-8-89; FR-2520)

Legal Authority: 42 USC 11411

CFR Citation: 00 CFR 000

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation would describe the criteria HUD uses to determine whether unutilized or underutilized Federal properties, described by other agencies in HUD-conducted surveys, are suitable for facilities to assist the homeless. This determination is the responsibility of HUD under the procedures in Section 501 of the McKinney Act for the identification and use of unutilized and underutilized Federal property for facilities to assist the homeless. The regulation will be incorporated in an interagency rule, which will include all procedures under Section 501 for HUD, HHS, and GSA.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would make the repayment of disallowed costs, as determined under the Departmental Audits Management System, a threshold requirement to be met in all of HUD's Discretionary Assistance Programs.

As such, this rule would provide an additional important tool for the Department to collect moneys expended for ineligible purposes under HUD programs. This is particularly true with respect to State and Local Governments, which are not subject to administrative offset under the Federal Claims Collection Act.

There is no administrative or programmatic cost under the proposal. The potential for recovering disallowed costs, by establishing such a precondition for discretionary program assistance, lies in the millions of dollars.

Abstract: This rule would prohibit certain practices with respect to HUD programs and would impose civil penalties on violators. The rule would promote integrity in the conduct and use of HUD programs, and reduce losses to the insurance fund resulting from improper acts.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 5301-5320

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 49; 24 CFR 570

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: A final rule published on July 12, 1988 by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) in connection with legal amnesty for aliens prohibited them from receiving benefits under various programs of HUD and other agencies, including the CDBG Programs. HUD issued a conforming rule on May 2, 1990 (55 FR 18490). This rule would revise the coverage of these rules, in accordance with an agreement reached between HUD and the INS.

Abstract: This rule proposes revisions in the regulations governing HUD's consideration of environmental factors in decision-making under HUD programs other than the Community Development Block Grant, Emergency Shelter Grants, Urban Development Action Grant, Rental Rehabilitation, and Housing Development Grant Programs. The rule is intended to reduce regulatory burdens and procedural details based on experience under the existing regulations; reflect field office reorganization; and implement sec. 535 of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would implement HUD's responsibilities under the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973. It would add a new Part 58 to specify HUD's responsibilities to require that flood insurance be obtained for eligible properties. This part would then be cross-referenced in the rules governing programs involving insurance, loans and grants. This rule would do the following: (1) authorize certain exemptions for the first time; (2) clarify the statutory limitation on the conduct of HUD programs; (3) describe implementation actions to be taken by the approving official and the affected property owner; and (4) correct or remove from Title 24 outdated or inadequate references pertaining to this statutory responsibility.

1157. ● PROTECTION OF HUMAN SUBJECTS IN RESEARCH (S-6-83; FR-1907)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 46

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In response to a Presidential Commission, an Interagency Task Force on the Protection of Human Subjects in Research has proposed that all Federal agencies adopt a common policy and uniform regulations for the protection of human subjects in research.

HUD has agreed to adopt the policy and to issue a regulation based on a model that has been promulgated by the Office of Science and Technology Policy.

Compliance costs for HUD's adoption of the model regulation will be minimal, because almost all research conducted by HUD falls within categories exempted from the requirements of the model regulation. The infrequent projects that may not be exempt (perhaps one every two years) have in the past been proposed by organizations already subject to the Department of Health and Human Services regulation, and thus would not have any incremental compliance costs for the organization, other than the actual project requirements.

Abstract: This regulation sets forth the policy, procedure and responsibilities of the Department of Housing and Urban Development to implement and enforce Executive Order 11988, Floodplain Management, and Executive Order 11990, the Protection of Wetlands. This regulation replaces a general statement of Departmental policy (44 FR 47623; August 14, 1979) implementing these Executive Orders. In addition, this rule would revise HUD's Minimum Property Standards for One and Two Family Dwellings to accord with Executive Order 11988 and FEMA's regulations for its National Flood Insurance Program.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will implement section 214 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1980, as amended in 1981, 1986, and 1988. That Act prohibits the Secretary from providing financial assistance to substantially all illegal aliens as well as to most classes of aliens admitted for temporary purposes. The restriction applies to the Public and Indian Housing programs, the Section 8 Housing Assistance Payments programs, the Rent Supplement program, the Section 236 program, and the Section 235 homeownership assistance program.

This rule will replace the rule published on April 1, 1988, which was not made effective, but has been withdrawn. This new rule will provide that alien status must be verified with the Immigration and Naturalization Service by the entity responsible for tenant selection (or for approval of a Section 235 mortgage application).

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, September 30, 1989.
Section 904 statutorily takes effect on September 30, 1989 (although there is an early implementation option in the statute).

Abstract: The regulation implementing section 904 of the McKinney Amendments would require applicants and participants in certain HUD programs to sign and submit consent forms permitting (1) HUD, the PHA or the owner responsible for determining eligibility for or level of benefits to verify employee income information with previous or current employers, and (2) HUD or the PHA to request wage

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1439

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 791

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rule updates and revises HUD's regulations for the allocation of housing assistance funds to reflect statutory changes by the Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983 and the Department of Housing and Urban Development Reform Act of 1989. It contains an explicit description of the allocation formula, including the factors making up the allocation formula and consolidates local government submission requirements and HUD criteria for review of applications for housing. The rule tightens procedures and generally limits headquarters funding. The rule makes clear that HUD housing assistance programs are subject to formula allocations with funding competitions pursuant to published competitive selection criteria.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 8(c)(2)(B) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 permits the Department to adjust contract rents covering section 8 assisted units to reflect increases in the costs of owning and maintaining these units which have resulted from substantial increases in real property taxes, utility rates, or "similar costs." This proposed rule would amend the regulations in 24 CFR Parts 880, 881, 882, 883, 884 and 886, which currently provide for rent adjustment for increases in real property taxes and utility rates, to make possible additional rent adjustments for increases in security expenses and hazards insurance under the "similar costs" language of section 8(c)(2)(B) of the Act. The Department has found that many owners of section 8 assisted units are facing substantial increases in hazard insurance and in costs, including capital expenditures, for providing, maintaining or improving security in the assisted units. The Department has determined that increases in the costs of security and hazard insurance are the types of costs for which rent adjustments were contemplated by the "similar costs" language of the statute.

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1710

CFR Citation: 00 CFR 000

Abstract: Section 1064 of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments Act of 1988 authorizes HUD to add pre-foreclosure sales to its roster of servicing options, as a means of saving the Department money and of assisting qualified mortgagors to avoid foreclosure of their FHA-insured mortgages. The Department is now able to pay a claim to a mortgagee to "bridge the gap" between the proceeds of a sale of the property to a third party buyer at current fair market value, and the original owner's indebtedness under the note. Until the Department received the authorization to pay these claims, such pre-foreclosure sales (or "short sales," as they are also known) were impracticable. At this time, a six to twelve month demonstration of pre-foreclosure sales is being prepared for five local HUD offices; subsequently, full implementing regulations will be issued to introduce the pre-foreclosure sale option throughout the Department.

Abstract: This rule would amend the Title I regulations to: (1) encourage broader participation by qualified lending institutions through the use of loan correspondents, while eliminating any role for unregulated third parties such as loan brokers; (2) establish higher qualification standards for lenders and dealers; (3) set more objective criteria for lenders and loan correspondents to use in approving loans; (4) require greater oversight of dealers through more personal contact between lenders and borrowers and through site inspections of the dealer's work prior to disbursing the loan proceeds; (5) require more secure collateral for both property improvement and manufactured homes to reduce claim losses for the lenders and HUD. In addition, this rule would require that the lender give the borrower written notice of the actions HUD may take to recover the debt if a claim is paid, including the assessment of administrative costs for servicing the loan. Legal Authority: Title II (National Housing Act)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 203

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend miscellaneous provisions of Part 203 regarding the servicing of insured mortgages on single family housing. Specifically, the rule would amend the regulations (1) to require mortgagees to begin foreclosure proceedings on mortgages in default within 6 months of default; (2) to require commencement of foreclosure on abandoned or vacant property within 6 months; (3) to permit HUD to deduct from any insurance benefits due the mortgagee, or otherwise charge the mortgagee, the estimated cost of repair plus 25% when property is conveyed in a damaged condition; and (4) other amendments regarding deficiency judgments and title defects.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the regulations which set forth the requirements for approval of mortgagees to participate in the FHA mortgage insurance programs and to maintain their approval status. The proposed rule would establish new standards and requirements for mortgagee approval. The new standards would include an increase in the net worth requirements for both FHA approved mortgagees and loan correspondents. The purpose of the proposed rule is to ensure that only responsible and soundly capitalized mortgagees participate in the FHA programs.

Abstract: This rule proposes to terminate the Retirement Services Center Program (ReSC). The program was initiated administratively in 1983. It authorized the insurance of loans for the development of ReSC's under section 221 of the National Housing Act. An unacceptable default rate due to shallow demands and high projects operating expenses makes it desirable to terminate the program in order to protect the FHA insurance fund.

Legal Authority: Not yet determined

Abstract: This proposed rule will modify the existing procedures governing the Form 2530 review process. The primary change involves expanding the ability of the Participation Review Committee to deny approval for principals who are experiencing financial default, assignments or foreclosure. The current procedures require that the Committee must obtain evidence that any defaults are attributable to mismanagement on the part of the principal. We are now proposing that the Committee have the ability to deny approval with or without such evidence. We are also proposing other changes to the procedures involving hearing rights and the types of principals which will require Form 2530 procedures.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend HUD regulations to implement section 181 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 and section 1010 of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments of 1988. Section 181 expanded the scope of section 203 of the Housing and Community Development Amendments of 1978 to include projects that are subject to a HUD-held mortgage and are delinquent, under a workout agreement, or being foreclosed upon by HUD. HUD, when it is owner or mortgagee-in-possession, and the owner in other situations now covered by section 203 must, to the greatest extent possible, maintain all such occupied projects in decent, safe, and sanitary condition and maintain full occupancy and must also maintain all such projects for purposes of providing rental or cooperative housing for the longest feasible time. The statute directs HUD to provide not less than one of several specified forms of financial assistance to a purchaser other than HUD at foreclosure, or after sale by the Secretary. Section 1010 further amended section 203 to clarify which units in HUD-held unsubsidized projects (cont)

Legal Authority: 12 USC 7152-1; PL 100-242, Sec 183

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 245; 24 CFR 219

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule provides for the applicability of the tenant participation requirements of section 202 of the HCDA of 1978 to section 202 elderly and handicapped projects. The rule also removes the Secretary's authority not to provide for tenant participation in certain owner actions and authorizes the application of the tenant participation requirements in the Secretary's proposal to sell a multifamily housing project.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1437f

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 247; 24 CFR 882; 24 CFR 888

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 148 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 amended section 8(d)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 to require the Department to permit a PHA to attach not more than 15 percent of the section 8 Existing Housing Program assistance to existing structures if the owner agrees to rehabilitate the structure other than with assistance under the 1937 Act. Section 1005 of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments Act of 1988 requires the Department to permit PHA's to attach assistance, within the same 15 percent limit, to newly constructed units. This rule would implement these provisions by revising Subpart G to 24 CFR Part 882 for project-based certification.

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1735f

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 200.926d

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule revises the regulation relating to the applicability of the chemical and bacteriological standards of local health authorities to HUD-insured one- and two-family dwellings. The rule provides that in the absence of local standards, those of the appropriate State agency apply. This revision simplifies the requirements for water supply systems while furthering the Department's policy of relying on acceptable State and local building codes.

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1710

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 203.400

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: At present, there is no regulatory control over the time period during which mortgagees can submit applications for supplemental insurance benefits. The Department has instructed lenders to file these supplemental claims within one year of the date of the original insurance settlement. This information has so far been contained in the instructions for Single Family Application for Insurance Benefits, Form HUD-27011. This rule will formalize the requirement that lenders follow this one-year filing period for supplemental claims.

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1715b

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 203; 24 CFR 204

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule removes from the Code of Federal Regulations language concerning the Temporary Mortgage Assistance Payments (TMAP) program that has never been made effective. Since the Code now contains two sets of provisions pertaining to assistance to homeowners in default on FHA-insured mortgages that bear overlapping section numbers, this rule is needed to remove the TMAP provisions and to make technical changes in the provisions governing under section 230(b) of the National Housing Act. Among the technical changes is a requirement that a mortgagee inform a mortgagor of the possible right to assignment before it accepts a deed in lieu of foreclosure from the mortgagor.

Abstract: This rule would require owners of certain multifamily subsidized projects to automate the information and transmission of HUD forms and worksheets for certification and recertification of compliance with HUD's tenant eligibility and rent procedures, and the computation of tenant rent/payment and the monthly subsidy billing forms, as applicable. This rule would apply to multifamily projects under the following program: section 236 rental assistance payments.

section 8 housing assistance payments, section 221(d)(5), below market interest rate housing for low and moderate income mortgage insurance, and section 101 rent supplements.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 888

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will implement portions of sec. 801 of the Department of HUD Reform Act of 1989, by providing the criteria under which HUD will make retroactive Housing Assistance Payments to owners of Sec. 8 projects for which the use of comparability studies as an independent limitation on annual rent adjustments, for period from October 1, 1979, to effective date of rule, resulted in the reduction of rents or the failure to increase rents to the entire amount permitted by the Annual Adjustment Factors. The rule also gives owners eligible for retroactive payments the opportunity to request a one-time determination of the contract rent upon which to base future rent adjustments.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 5419

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 3282.307(b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: States with a large number of manufacturing facilities have incurred additional expenses in monitoring and inspecting those facilities. As the regulation is now written, the monitoring inspection fee paid by the manufacturers to the Secretary is distributed to the states based on the number of new manufacturer housing units whose first location after leaving the plant is on the premises of a distributor, dealer, or purchaser in that state. 24 CFR 3282.307(b) will be amended to provide a more equitable distribution of the inspection fee proceeds that will take into account the additional expenses incurred by the states in which manufacturing facilities are located.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the regulations governing the CDBG grant program to require compliance with the structural accessibility standards promulgated under the Architectural Barriers Act of 1968. The CDBG program is currently subject to structural accessibility standards arising out of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, which prohibits discrimination based on handicap. The proposed rule would clarify that any housing or non-housing facility funded by the Department which is subject to both the Architectural Barriers Act and section 504 of accessibility standards of the former statute, in any case of conflict between the two standards. The applicability of the Architectural Barriers Act to the CDBG program would apply to both entitlement and nonentitlement grants. The purpose of the requirements of the Architectural Barriers Act to which the program is statutorily subject.

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 570.202

Abstract: A recent IG audit finding involving a sample of CDBG grantees revealed that general improvements were being undertaken in CDBG-assisted rehabilitation properties while leaving health and safety violations uncorrected. As a result of this finding, CDBG regulations need to be amended to incorporate a provision that would require the correction of all health and safety violations in CDBG-assisted rehabilitated properties before any general improvements to these properties can be undertaken. The proposed rule will also include an exception that will allow properties with uncorrected health and safety violations to still take part in rehabilitation programs that grantees have established to expressly address significant community housing needs, such as energy conservation through weatherization programs and improving the exterior appearance of deteriorating buildings through painting programs. Moreover, the proposed rule will make clear that grantees will still have the flexibility to continue to provide funding for the general improvement of properties that are free and clear of health and safety violations.

Abstract: The 1987 Amendments to the Uniform Relocation Act (P.L. 100-17) make numerous changes to the Uniform Act. Among the changes is the expansion of coverage to displacement resulting from rehabilitation, demolition or privately undertaken acquisition carried out for a federally assisted project or program. For HUD-assisted community development and housing programs, the expanded coverage will apply to displacements occurring on or after April 2, 1989. The amendments will contain the necessary conforming changes to HUD programs consistent with the final governmentwide rule implementing the 1987 Amendments to the Uniform Act. Abstract: FHEO is taking steps to streamline procedures and target funds more cost-effectively in FY 1992, should the program be authorized to continue. FHEO proposes to introduce a "graduation" approach to funding of selected grantee based, on annual performance and project content. This would permit recipients and FHEO to realize cost efficiencies related to lower staff turnover among the affected agencies, and to minimize stop/start costs for projects that merit continuation without annual competition. Approximately one-third of funding available each fiscal year will be earmarked for this purpose. However, no project would receive continuous funding for more than three years without further competition. This change will require a regulatory change.

Abstract: The regulations at 24 CFR 135 have not been revised to reflect the changes that have occurred in the past several years in the Department's programs that are subject to Section 3 regulations. The updating of these regulations to enforce Section 3 of the HUD Act of 1968 is needed to conform with regulations from the Office of Housing and the Office of Community Planning and Development. The Section 3 regulations must also more closely address the Department's goals to improve the self-sufficiency of low income persons.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: New regulation to provide specific requirements for PHAs using their statutory authority to establish housing development corporations and other non-profit corporations, most of which are established pursuant to State incorporation laws for non-profit organizations. At the present, HUD has no specific regulation or requirements which address the establishment or operation of HDCs. Because of the wide range of activities in which HDCs participate and their differing corporate structures, HUD regulations are needed--particularly in the areas of identity of interest relationships, profits or excess revenues, project syndications, and PHA liability.

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 135; 24 CFR 86

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the regulations at 24 CFR Part 135 governing the award of work contracts on projects covered by section 3 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. (Section 3 projects) These regulations currently provide that to "the greatest extent feasible," contracts for work to be performed in connection with a section 3 project are awarded to business concerns located within the section 3 project area or business concerns owned in substantial part by persons residing in the section 3 covered area. The proposed amendment would provide that to the greatest extent feasible a section 3 work contract will be awarded to the resident management organization of the section 3 project for which work is being contracted. The purpose of this rule is to support the priority initiatives of the Department contained in section 3 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 which include enhancing the economic opportunities for public housing residents.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 901

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The purpose of this proposed rule is to establish policies and procedures for the Department to identify public housing agency (PHA) management capabilities and deficiencies, and allow the field to practice accountability monitoring and risk management. PHMAP will allow the Department to (1) to make more effective use of available staff for monitoring overall public housing operations; (2) identify deficiencies in functional areas and to take corrective actions, such as providing additional training and issuing additional identified field advice and guidance; (3) define the national picture in any given functional area; (4) establish a national data base for PHAs; and (5) provide incentives to high performing PHAs and encourage all PHAs to achieve high performer designation. PHAs can utilize this assessment to conduct internal audits of their operations and correct identified deficiencies. The results of PHA assessment can be utilized by the PHA Board, resident organizations and the community to better understand PHA operations.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1437g

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 990.102; 24 CFR 990.109

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Proposed rule would provide incentives to Public Housing Agencies to increase occupancy levels by defining "units available for occupancy" more rigorously, by revising the way in which per-unit operating subsidy eligibility is calculated under the Performance Funding System, and by increasing from 97% to 98%. The presumed occupancy level upon which PFS calculation are based. Proposed rule will reduce operating subsidy expenditures for vacant units above the 2 percent vacancy threshold and for vacant units in several newly defined sub-categories of vacant units. This change is precipitated by policy recommendations in the OMB pass-back of the Department's 1991 budget submission. Under the proposal, some units removed for non-dwelling use in anti-drug and in economic self-sufficiency activities may continue to be eligible for full subsidy.

In addition, this rule would require that HUD may approve an application for demolition if the project is obsolete, making it unusable for housing purposes and if no reasonable program modifications are feasible to return the project to a useful life. The rule would also require HUD, in allocating assistance for public housing acquisition or development or for Section 8 moderate rehabilitation, to give consideration to housing that replaces demolished public housing units in accordance with an approved replacement plan. 1291. PERFORMANCE FUNDING SYSTEM REVISIONS (87 ACT)—FORMAL REVIEW PROCESS ENERGY CONSERVATION SAVINGS, AUDIT RESPONSIBILITIES (P-12-88; FR-2504)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1437g

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 990; 24 CFR 965

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would implement section 118(a) and 118(d) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987. Section 118(a) requires HUD to amend the Performance Funding System, among other things, to provide for a formal review process for PHAs to obtain a change in allowable expense level to correct inequities in the original base year expense level, to correct for changes in operating circumstances and to reflect the level of economic distress of the locality. Section 118(d) also provides for sharing of savings between a PHA and HUD for energy conservation improvements, and for preservation of subsidy when several units are rehabilitated and combined into fewer units. In addition, the rule would specify what requirements an insurance company or other risk protection provider must satisfy in order for the coverage to comply with ACC insurance requirements.

Semiannual Agenda of Rules Scheduled for Review or Development

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Interior.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development.

SUMMARY: This notice provides the semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development between October 1990 and April 1991. An agenda is required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

ADDRESSES: Unless otherwise indicated, all agency contacts are located at the Department of the Interior, 1849 C Street, NW., Washington, DC 20240.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: All comments and inquiries with regard to these rules should be directed to the appropriate agency contact. General comments relating to the agenda should be directed to the Division of Directives and Regulatory Management, Office of Management Improvement, Department of the Interior, at the address above or on (202) 208-6191.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: With this publication, the Department satisfies the requirement of Executive Order 12291 that the Department publish in April and October of each year an agenda of rules that have been issued or are expected to be issued and currently effective rules that are scheduled for review.

Simultaneously, the Department meets the requirement of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) that an agenda be published in April and October of each year identifying rules which will have significant economic effects on a substantial number of small entities; those rules which will have such effects are specifically identified in the agenda.

This agenda also identifies rules determined to be "significant" under Executive Order 12498 and which are included in this Department's 1990 regulatory program. A more comprehensive discussion of this program and the rules are contained in the Regulatory Program of the United States Government, which is published by the Office of Management and Budget.

Dated: August 29, 1990.

Charles E. Kay,

Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

1296. ● NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(C)

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department is currently revising its CERCLA type B procedures based on a court ruling. Section 301(c)(3) of CERCLA requires that the regulations be reviewed and revised, as appropriate, on a biennial basis. The Department will begin a review of the type B rule once it is revised. The Department will ask trustees, other interested parties, and members of the public to draw upon their experience with the type B procedures and the general assessment process to advise the Department of areas where revisions to the process and the type B procedures may be desired. If these comments and suggestions show areas where revisions to the general process or to the type B procedures are needed, a notice of proposed rulemaking will be issued to revise the rule.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None
42 USC 9651(c)(3) requires biennial review and revision as appropriate of the regulations.

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(A) calls for the promulgation of simplified assessment procedures. The Department has begun the development of a type A procedure for use in the Great Lakes environment. After a review of the natural resource damage assessment rule, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia remanded certain parts of that rule to the Department for revision. The court upheld the use of an interactive computer model, but stated that such a model should incorporate restoration or replacement costs and all reliably calculated lost use values in the damage calculations. The Department will revise its development of a type A procedure for Great Lakes environments to comply with the court's ruling.

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory.
42 USC 9651(c)(3) requires biennial review and revision, as appropriate, of the regulations.

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(B) calls for the promulgation of a set of alternative protocols for the testing, sampling, and determining compensation for natural resource damages, referred to as the type B procedures. Final rules for the assessment of damages were promulgated by the Department consistent with those requirements. In a review of those rules, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia held that restoration or replacement costs are the basic measure of natural resource damages under CERCLA, and all reliably calculated lost use values of injured natural resources should also be recoverable, with no required hierarchy of methodologies for conducting those valuations. The Department is beginning the revision of the rules to conform with the court ruling. The biennial review of the type B rule will await this revision.

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(A)) calls for the promulgation of simplified assessment procedures. The first type A procedure for coastal and marine environments uses a computer model known as the natural resource damage assessment model for coastal and marine environments (NRDAM/CME). The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upheld the use of an interactive computer model, but stated that such a model should incorporate restoration or replacement costs and all reliably calculated lost use values in the damage calculations. The Department will revise the type A procedure for coastal and marine environments to comply with the court's ruling and will incorporate changes in response to the first biennial review of the type A procedure at the same time.

Legal Authority: 35 USC 18

CFR Citation: 48 CFR 1400; 48 CFR 1427; 48 CFR 1452

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: PL 96-620 amended 35 USC 18 dealing with patent rights in inventions made with Federal funding. On June 12, 1989, Federal Acquisition Regulation implementation of PL 96-620 was issued through FAC 84-48. Patent rights under Government contracts are covered in FAR Subpart 27.3. FAR 27.304-5(b) requires agencies to establish and publish their respective appeals, administrative due process, and fact-finding procedures related to patent rights. The proposed DIAR coverage establishes Department of the Interior policy with regard to title rights, exception determinations, appeals, greater rights determinations, retention of rights by inventors, assignment of rights, exercise of march-in rights and licensing to third parties. It also identifies key Departmental points of contact in matters concerning patent rights. The proposed coverage supplements FAC 84-48 and amends sections 14227 and 1452, as parts of 48 CFR, Chapter 14.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1653(c); 33 USC 1321(p)(2) to (2)

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 29.3(b)(1)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The amendment to 43 CFR 29.3(b)(1) would provide that at least one of the Secretary of the Interior's appointees to the TAPS Fund's Board of Trustees would be employed by the Department of the Interior. It would provide further that the appointee(s) would participate in activities of the Board of Trustees, but would not vote. The appointee(s) would not have a vote because of the possibility that a vote could be inconsistent with the interests of the United States. The amendment would recognize that the Secretary's Federal employee appointee(s) are required to represent the interests of the United States in their Board of Trustees activities. The Assistant Secretary-Policy, Budget and Administration, who is the current Federal employee member, has found himself in situations where the Board is voting on matters on which the United States has not developed a policy, and has abstained. There has also been at least one situation where the interests of the United States and the TAPS Fund were in opposition. The amendment therefore makes it clear that the interests of the United States are paramount for the Federal employee appointee(s) and that they will not have a vote.

Abstract: The Title IX regulation is intended to address the problem of discrimination on the basis of sex in any education program or activity receiving or benefiting from Federal financial assistance administered by the Department of the Interior (DOI).

No alternative for addressing problems of discrimination in DOI's education programs can be considered due to the fact that Title IX requires each Federal agency which extends Federal financial assistance to any educational program or activity, to issue rules and regulations implementing Title IX.

DOI's recipients are anticipated to incur expenses in two (2) areas: (1) Data collection and recordkeeping; (2) rectifying areas of noncompliance with Title IX. With respect to DOI, expenses will be incurred in three (3) areas: (1) Development and publication of the Title IX rule; (2) Provision of technical assistance; and (3) Accomplishing compliance reviews and enforcement activities.

Abstract: This rulemaking will amend the regulation issued by DOI at 43 CFR 17, Subpart B, for enforcement of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, in federally assisted programs or activities to include a cross-reference to the Uniform Federal Accessibility Standards (UFAS). The regulatory amendment is intended to encourage DOI's recipients to follow UFAS for new construction and alteration projects. No alternative exists to issuing this regulation. This amendment was found to be appropriate and necessary, and is being issued by DOI pursuant to directions received from the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice under the authority of Executive Order 12250. It has been determined that this rule is nonmajor and that it has no major cost effect. This amendment will promote governmentwide consistency and minimize public confusion by referencing new architectural standards that are presently in use by the Department of Justice and fourteen other Federal agencies.

Abstract: The agency proposes: (1) Amendment of 4.207 to permit acceptance of compromise settlements in probate of estates of Indians who died owning property in trust or restricted status when all parties are advised of all facts and are cognizant of effect of the compromise on their rights, and where no family member is coerced into the agreement. Such settlements are already provided for in disputed cases. (2) Amendment of 4.242 to require petitioner for reopening of an estate which has been closed more than 3 years to show due diligence in pursuing the claim. This will place in the regulation case law developed over the past 18 years. (3) Amendment of 4.274 by adding a new paragraph (c) for allowance of immediate payment of claims where appropriate for better conservation of assets of the estate, and a new paragraph (d) to permit partial distribution of an estate to provide funds for the maintenance of the family where the ultimate distribution is unlikely to be disputed.

Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: The agency is proposing to add new regulations to 43 CFR Part 4 for determining, through intestate succession, the heirs of persons who died entitled to receive compensation pursuant to section 8(c) of the White Earth Reservation Land Settlement Act. The Act provides a method of resolving disputes concerning title to certain allotments of land on the White Earth Chippewa Indian Reservation in Minnesota. It defines circumstances by which title to an allotment may have been lost through a questionable tax forfeiture, sale, mortgage, or other taking or transfer during the applicable trust period. The Act directs the Secretary of the Interior to (1) identify the allotments or interests therein which were lost under such circumstances, (2) determine the individuals entitled to compensation for the loss of such allotments or interests therein, (3) ascertain the amount of compensation to which each such individual is entitled, and (4) pay them such amounts plus interest.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The procedures for administrative review of Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement decisions on (1) applications for new permits, (2) applications for permit revisions, permit renewals, and the transfer, assignment, or sale of rights granted under permit, (3) permit revisions ordered by the Office, and (4) applications for coal exploration permits vary. The Office of Hearings and Appeals proposes to remove the rules containing procedures for administrative review for (2), (3), and (4) (43 CFR 4.1370-4.1379 and 4.1380-4.1388) and to revise the rules in 43 CFR 4.1360-4.1369 so they will include review of decisions presently provided for in 43 CFR 4.1370-4.1379 and 4.1380-4.1388. The Office also proposes to amend 43 CFR 4.1351 and 4.1391(b) to provide for notice of OSMRE's decisions by certified mail or by overnight delivery service rather than by publication in a local newspaper. The proposed amendments will unify administrative review procedures and make them more expedited.

Abstract: By final rulemaking the agency amends certain of its rules in 43 CFR Part 4 by updating references and cross-references to section numbers and editions of the United States Code contained therein. The agency also amends section 4.230 by removing paragraph (d) thereof because it is generally repetitive of paragraph (c) of the regulation and therefore is considered unnecessary. These amendments will improve the accuracy and clarity of the regulations concerned, and do not alter any substantive legal rights.

Abstract: This rulemaking is the culmination of a phased, 6-year coordinated effort by the States and the Federal Government to eliminate lead poisoning among certain migratory birds by discontinuing the use of lead shot in favor of steel shot for taking waterfowl, coots and certain other species during the open seasons. This nationwide conversion in 1991-92 results from an SEIS completed in mid-1986 that considered the alternatives, as well as the costs/benefits of the various actions.

The Secretary of the Interior is required by the Marine Mammal Protection Act to consider such requests, and to prescribe regulations setting forth permissible methods of taking that will have a negligible impact on the species, stock, and its habitat and on the availability of the species for subsistence uses.

1335. ● CONVENTION ON INTERNATIONAL TRADE IN ENDANGERED SPECIES OF WILD FAUNA AND FLORA (CITES)

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to amend 50 CFR 23, Subparts A and B to consider the following proposals recommended by the Conference of the Parties to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora: (1) Whether or not to reduce the paperwork burden for trade in certain hybrid plants. Such reduction would cause slight risks to wild plants, but a substantial reduction of administrative and public burdens. (2) Whether to require a fitness to travel checklist to reduce the high mortality/morbidity in the shipment of live animals. Processing such checklists would increase costs but would also increase awareness of live animals transport requirements/needs. (3) To allow innocent infractions of regulations to be cured by by issuance of permits retroactively. While such action would increase costs slightly, there would be slight reductions in the cost of processing violations and such action would encourage voluntary compliance.

1337. MARINE MAMMALS; NATIVE EXEMPTIONS

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1361 to 1407

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to amend the regulations in 50 CFR 18 implementing the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 (the Act), 16 USC 1361-1407. The proposed rule would prohibit the taking of sea otters by Alaskan Natives for use in creating and selling authentic Native articles of handicrafts and clothing under the Native Exemptions section of the Act, 16 USC 1371(b).

Analysis: Regulatory Impact Analysis; Regulatory Flexibility Analysis

Additional Information: SMALL BUSINESSES: Small entities likely to be affected by these rules include some sporting goods stores, hardware stores, motels and hotels, restaurants, clothing stores, boat and marine equipment stores, marinas, gasoline stations, private hunting clubs, land owners' leasing hunting rights, and mail order houses selling hunting equipment and supplies. Originally scheduled: April 1985. E.O. 12291: These rules are major because of the economic values associated with migratory game bird hunting; however, the need to obtain and consider the latest population data for these migratory birds requires that the regulatory schedule be shortened. The regulatory impact analysis, as required by E.O. 12291, and the small entity flexibility analysis, as required by 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq., have been combined into one analysis as provided for by both authorities. Copies of the combined analysis will be available from the Agency Contact upon publication of the Notice of Intent in March 1985.

Abstract: The Service will develop regulations to implement provisions contained in the 1981 and 1988 amendments to the Marine Mammal Protection Act that amend Section 109(h) of the Act to: (1) allow the taking of marine mammals by Federal, in addition to the State, or local, government officials under certain conditions; and (2) allow importation of marine mammals into the United States in order to render medical treatment that is not otherwise available.

Additional Information: The proposed rulemaking published April 12, 1988 (53 FR 12043) addressed two issues: (1) the provisions of Section 101(a)(4) of the Marine Mammal Protection Act (Act), as amended in 1981 authorizing incidental take of non-depleted marine mammals during commercial fishing operations; and (2) the taking of marine mammals by Federal, State, or local government officials under certain conditions. The 1988 amendments to the Act created an interim 5-year incidental take exemption for the commercial fisheries, thus essentially negating the 1981 amendments to Sec. 101 of the Act. Development of regulations for commercial fisheries is not necessary, and will not be done at this time.

Abstract: The Service proposes to introduce Colorado squawfish (Ptychocheilus lucius) into the lower Colorado River in Arizona and to determine the population to be "nonessential experimental" population according to Section 10(j) of the Endangered Species Act. The Service will propose a special rule to allow take in accordance with State law. In the past, Colorado squawfish were more widespread in the State of Arizona, occurring in several river drainages. This action is being taken in an effort to establish an additional population within the species' historic range.

1356. ENDANGERED AND THREATENED WILDLIFE AND PLANTS; SPECIAL RULE ALLOWING REGULATED TAKING OF THE UTAH PRAIRIE DOG

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 to 1543

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Services proposes to amend the special regulation allowing a maximum of 5,000 nuisance Utah prairie dog (Cynomys parvidens) to be taken annually between June 1 and December 31 in parts of the Cedar and Parowan Valleys in Utah under permits issued by the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources. The amended regulation would expand the area of take to include all private land throughout the range of the Utah prairie dog. Also, the quarterly reporting requirement would be replaced by a requirement to make the State's records on permitted take available to the Service, on request.

Abstract: Under existing regulations implementing the Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA), corporations organized under U.S. law but not controlled by individuals who are U.S. citizens, cannot be issued Letters of Authorization to undertake activities pursuant to any specific regulations authorizing an incidental take of marine mammals. This rule will amend the definition of U.S. citizen in the current regulations to allow corporations subject to U.S. jurisdiction to participate under the MMPA.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory. Final, Statutory.

In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than 1 year after such proposal.

Abstract: The Service proposes to list the desert tortoise (Gopherus agassizii) population north and west of the Colorado River as endangered. A fatal disease, currently referred to as Desert Tortoise Respiratory Disease Syndrome, has been identified and has caused significant declines to certain tortoise populations and threatens epidemic conditions to populations already stressed as a result of habitat degradation, predation, and other factors.

Additional Information: The Service exercised its emergency authority to determine the Mojave population of the desert tortoise to be an endangered species pursuant to the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended. An emergency situation, in the form of a recently documented outbreak of a virulent desert tortoise upper respiratory disease syndrome (Respiratory Disease Syndrome), has been identified and has caused significant declines to certain tortoise subpopulations and threatens to become pandemic in subpopulations already stressed as a result degradation, predation, and other factors.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3111 to 3126

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 100

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule provides temporary regulations implementing the subsistence priority for rural residents of Alaska under Title VIII of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act of 1980 (ANILCA). The Alaska Supreme Court recently ruled that the laws used by the State of Alaska to provide the subsistence priority required by Title VIII violated the Alaska Constitution. The court's action placed the State out of compliance with Title VIII. Since the State has been unable to return to compliance with Title VIII, the Federal Government is required to take over the implementation of Title VIII on public lands.

Abstract: This proposed rule designates routes and frozen water surfaces for use by snowmobiles at Apostle Islands National Lakeshore. The general regulations at 36 CFR 2.18 prohibit such use unless routes and water surfaces are specifically identified and promulgated as special regulations. The intended effect of this regulation is to remove that prohibition and allow the use of snowmobiles to conduct legislatively authorized fishing activities.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 7.13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed regulation will exempt the section of U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park from the prohibition on the use of National Park Service roads by commercial vehicles when such use has in no way a connection with operation of the park; delete the special regulations establishing the speed limit on U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park; and restrict the amount and type of hazardous materials which may be transported on U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park. The special regulation establishing the present fee schedule for commercial traffic within Yellowstone will be eliminated and the Superintendent provided the discretion to establish and adjust fees for such use on an annual basis.

These actions will clearly define the management and regulation of commercial traffic on U.S. 191 through Yellowstone and assure a certain measure of protection against hazardous waste spills.

1371. MINERALS MANAGEMENT - NONFEDERAL OIL AND GAS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1 et seq; 16 USC 410g; 16 USC 410r; 16 USC 459d-3; 16 USC 459h-3; 16 USC 698c; 16 USC 698i; 16 USC 460-2(i); 16 USC 450kk; 16 USC 230a; PL 100-301, Sec.8; PL 100-301, Sec 8; 31 USC 9701

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, January 29, 1989.
Section 8 of the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition Act directs the Secretary of the Interior to promulgate regulations governing nonfederal oil and gas development by 1/29/89.

Abstract: Several sections of 36 CFR Part 9, Subpart B contain ambiguous language which has caused confusion in interpreting the existing regulations. The NPS wants to make technical revisions to clarify requirements for both applicants and the Service. Also, the existing regulations exempt two classes of operators from compliance. Because of these exemptions, the regulations apply to only 35% of the existing operations resulting in avoidable impacts to park resources and visitor values from unregulated operations. Finally, the Service intends to propose revisions to the existing regulations to incorporate congressionally mandated requirements and timetables governing nonfederal oil and gas development in the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition. Examples of such revisions include: making the regulations applicable to all oil and gas operations within all units of the National Park System; updating terms for consistency with existing policies, practices, and laws; and removing the monetary ceiling and floor on bonds and security deposits so that bonds may be calculated and posted commensurate with reclamation costs.

1373. MINERALS MANAGEMENT: NONFEDERAL MINERALS OTHER THAN OIL AND GAS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1 et seq; 31 USC 9701; 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Extensive nonfederal mineral rights exist within units of the National Park System. The Service presently regulates only nonfederal oil and gas activities occurring in those units. Mineral activities, other than those associated with nonfederal oil and gas, are occurring in approximately 13 units of the System. There are also 7 additional units in which nonfederal mineral development is currently proposed or has recently been proposed. The Service is charged by Congress to ensure that the development of nonfederal mineral rights within park boundaries is consistent with the purposes for which the units were established. The proposed regulation would establish procedures and standards governing nonfederal mineral development, other than nonfederal oil and gas, in a manner that protects affected park units.

1374. SEQUOIA AND KINGS CANYON NATIONAL PARKS: FISHING REGULATIONS

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 7.8

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rulemaking would revise the Parks' fishing regulation. The changes would simplify existing fishing regulation, maintain the existing variety of recreational fishing opportunities, help restore the natural distribution and abundance of native species, help retard expansion of introduced species, and open most streams to fishing which are currently closed. Anglers would have to be able to identify fish they kept, and in some areas they would be required to use single barbless hooks.

Abstract: The National Park Service proposed rule and policy statement with request for comments relates to special events in the National Capital Region. A variety of special events, such as festivals and private rented events have occurred on park land for some time. These events have increased in number and size and have caused a strain on limited park resources and on the National Capital Region budget. The proposed rule would limit the number and size of festivals and private rented events, limit sales at such events, and require sponsors of the events to bear any unbudgeted costs of the National Park Service.

Abstract: The National Park Service proposed rule and policy statement with request for comments relates to a prohibition of storage of property in Lafayette Park. An earlier rule of the Park Service which restricted the storage of property in the park was overruled in U.S. v. Picciotto, 875 F. 2d 345 (D.C. Cir. 1989) because the rule had not been published for notice and comment under the Administrative Procedure Act. This proposed rule will comply with the Administrative Procedure Act and attempts to meet the substantial Government interest in aesthetics and preservation of park resources by limiting the storage of property in Lafayette Park.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1901 et seq Mining in the Parks Act of 1976; 16 USC 1 et seq NPS Organic Act; 30 USC 21 et seq Mining Law of 1872

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The existing regulations at 36 CFR Part 9, Subpart A, promulgated in January of 1977, contain a provision regarding the use of water in connection with mining claims within National Park System units that creates a "catch 22" for miners seeking to use water in connection with their claims. In order to use water in a park, a miner must have perfected water right. However, to obtain a perfected water right, a miner must use water. Herein lies the "catch 22." The National Park Service (NPS) would like to rectify this dilemma through a rule change that would eliminate the perfected water right language while at the same time preserve the Service's ability to protect water quality and quantity.

1399. ALASKA REGION: SAME-DAY-AIRBORNE HUNTING REGULATIONS

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 13.21

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The National Park Service is proposing rules what will prohibit the hunting of certain wildlife species in the National Preserve areas in Alaska on the same day in which a hunter is airborne. Hunting will continue to be allowed pursuant to State and Federal regulations. Access to those areas by aircraft for sport hunting and other purposes is also allowed. While the State of Alaska has a similar regulation in place, commonly referred to as the "same-day-airborne" regulation, recent changes to their regulation have allowed exceptions for some species in certain State of Alaska game management units including the National Preserve areas. This exception will allow "land-and-shoot" hunting of wolves in the National Preserves. The proposed National Park Service regulation will prohibit "land-and-shoot" hunting for big game including the following species: All species of Bears, Bison, Caribou, Elk, Mountain Goat, Moose, Musk Oxen, Dall Sheep, Wolf, Wolverine, Coyote, Arctic and Red Fox, and Lynx.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 25 USC 13; PL 98-473

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau is amending existing Financial Assistance and Social Services Program regulations to further define the adult care services provided to Indian people. These proposed regulations define the extent of the program, establish eligibility requirements, and establish adult care services as a social services program separate and distinct from the general assistance program. The revision is needed to specifically define the Bureau's role in the provision of institutional and in-home care to Indian adults who are mentally or physically handicapped or otherwise disabled. The Bureau is also amending miscellaneous assistance provisions to conform with the congressional directive in Public Law 98-473. Miscellaneous assistance will be revised and defined as burial assistance. Emergency assistance previously provided under miscellaneous assistance was transferred to general assistance by revision of 25 CFR Part 20(c) on September 30, 1985.

Abstract: This rulemaking action is to add a new Part 70 to govern the issuance of Certificates of Degree of Indian Blood (CDIB's). There has been a sharp increase in the number of requests for CDIB's over the past few years. More and more programs are requiring individuals to submit CDIB's to document possession of Indian blood. This rulemaking action is intended to clarify the circumstances under which the Bureau will issue CDIB's; the documents and records on which the Bureau will base the issuance of CDIB's; and the procedures that individuals will need to follow, including any documentation requirements, to obtain CDIB's.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, August 5, 1988. Final, Statutory, October 5, 1988.

Abstract: The primary purpose of the amendments to 93 USC 638 is to permit an orderly transition from Federal domination of pregrams for and services to Indians to effective and meaningful participation by the Indian people in the planning, conduct, and administration of those programs and services while maintaining the Federal Government's unique and continuing relationship with and responsibility to individual Indian tribes and to the Indian people as a whole. In addition to extensive consultation with the tribes and Native American groups, the Bureau of Indian Affairs is examining all of its planning administrative procedures from the perspective of maximizing tribal participation. Due to the broad scope of the review, an estimate of the potential cost and potential benefit is premature. The changes are one of process rather than increases or decreases in budget or program funding. The major potential cost is to the Federal Government in order to meet the insurance requirement of the law. The amount is undetermined to date.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 20 USC 2305; 25 USC 2003

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 85

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Publication of this proposed rule is necessary so that tribes, tribal organizations, and consortia of tribes who have combined memberships of 300 members or more may provide the necessary services to parents and children under six years old whose needs are not being met by existing programs. National studies show that for every dollar spent on early childhood development programs there is a return of six dollars. The benefits include increasing the literacy rate, the graduation rate, and the rate of enrollment in higher education. High quality early childhood programs can also decrease the rate of cognitive learning and emotional handicaps; teenage pregnancy; welfare dependency and the incidence of arrest and juvenile delinquency.

Abstract: The BIA is proposing to revise the regulations at 25 CFR 214 governing management of non-oil and gas minerals on Osage Reservation Lands in Oklahoma. The proposed revisions eliminate specific royalties for minerals not found within the Osage Mineral estate and give authority to the Osage Tribal Council, with the approval of the Superintendent of the Osage Agency, to to set applicable royalty rates. This revision also replaces outmoded methods of exchange with modern methods, and correctly designates those officials responsible for the management of non-oil and gas minerals within the Osage Mineral estate. The proposed revisions are intended to enhance the management ability of the Department over the production of these minerals, and to eliminate various inaccuracies in the current regulations.

Legal Authority: 41 Stat. 1225; 41 Stat. 1248; 50 Stat. 88

Abstract: BIA proposes to amend 25 CFR 215 to update the operations and procedures for leasing, discovery, testing, processing, developing, mining and processing lead and zinc minerals on lands under the jurisdiction of the Bureau's Miami Agency in Ottawa County, Oklahoma. Current regulations governing such leases were developed over 30 years ago and no longer reflect current practices or standards in the mining industry. The proposed revisions will assist affected Indians with the efficient development of their lead and zinc deposits without waste, avoidable loss or damage to their natural resources, the environment, or other resources. Abstract: This proposed rule establishes a new part containing requirements for determining whether plant conditions at Bureau-funded schools are an immediate hazard to health and safety. The Bureau is required to develop rules for a safety and health inspection program by PL 100-297, which states that schools may be closed or consolidated, or programs substantially curtailed, for plant conditions constituting an immediate hazard to health or safety only if a Bureau health and safety officer determines that such conditions exist. There will be no effect on the economy or cost or price effects, since this rule is administrative in nature and outlines the responsibilities of the Division of Safety Management for conducting safety and health inspections.

Abstract: The Bureau is revising 25 CFR 39 to satisfy the requirements of the Hawkins-Stafford Elementary and Secondary School Improvement Amendments of 1988 (PL 100-297), which requires development of standards and procedures for closing, consolidation, or substantial curtailment of Bureau schools. The Act requires the Secretary to establish a formula for costs associated with greater length of service by education officials and procurement without competitive bidding for goods and services worth up to $25,000. The Act also requires adjustment in the formula for students enrolled in the seventh and eighth grades, small schools, school board expenses, and gifted and talented students.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9; 43 USC 1457

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 111

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule describes standards by which per capita payments out of tribal trust revenue may be made by either the Secretary of the Interior or by tribal governments. This revision is a result of the repeal of laws which restricted distributions made by Federal officials designated by the Secretary. The former laws were repealed because most Indian tribes now have the capability to manage their own receipts and disbursements. There will be no increase in costs or prices for consumers, regions, or governments as a result of this revision.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 25 USC 1524

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 286

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed revision is to revise section 286.17(b) of proposed rule 25 CFR 286, "Indian Business Development Program," which says that a grant may be made only to an applicant who is able to obtain at least 60 percent of the necessary financing from other sources. The Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) has required applicants to provide at least 75 percent of necessary financing since appropriations for IBDP (Indian Business Development Program) were reauthorized in 1984. From 1983 to 1985 the BIA administered a similar business development grant program called Special Grants for Economic Development (25 CFR 278) under authority of the Snyder Act. The IBDP supplants that program. Part 273 required 75 percent of project costs from non-Federal sources. Since 1983, we have been requiring 75 percent matching funds and this revision is to reflect this requirement. Since this policy has been in practice there will be no significant change as far as potential cost or benefit due to this revision.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9; PL 101-227

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs is proposing to add a new Part 67 to provide procedures to govern the preparation, certification, and approval of a descendancy roll of independent Seminole Indians of Florida. The Act of April 30, 1990, provides for the use and distribution of funds awarded the Seminole Indians in dockets 73, 151, and 73-A of the Indian Claims Commission. Section 7 directs the Secretary of the Interior to compile a roll of independent individuals of Seminole descent. The descendancy roll will be used as the basis for a per capita distribution of a portion of the Seminole judgement funds.

Abstract: This proposed rule will provide stronger and more consistent guidelines for reviewing trust applications than the current case-by-case review, which uses general criteria. The Secretary of the Interior announced on July 19, 1990, a new policy for Indian Tribes acquiring in trust for gaming and non-gaming purposes lands contiguous to or outside the tribe's existing reservation boundaries. This proposed revision will add two new sets of criteria that will be used in evaluating tribal off-reservation acquisition for gaming and non-gaming purposes.

1434. LAW AND ORDER ON INDIAN RESERVATIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9; 25 USC 13

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present regulations contain a very incomplete criminal code that does not cover many areas of the law that are usually in the laws of the State where the reservation is located. The current regulations also contain very sketchy provisions on criminal and civil procedure. It is proposed to update the sections on criminal offenses, and essentially create new sections on criminal procedures, domestic relations, probate proceedings, appellate proceedings and juvenile proceedings. This will provide the Courts of Indian Offenses with more complete and up to date procedures and rules. Courts will have a six month period from the date of publication of the final rule to the effective date in which to revise their court codes. It is not anticipated that this revision will have any effect on the annual case load for these courts or require additional staffing. Therefore, the initiation of these rules should not result in additional costs.

Additional Information: In May 1982, the District Court for the District of Arizona invalidated the regulation of 25 CFR 167 and ordered the Bureau to publish new regulations. The Bureau published interim regulations on Hopi partitioned lands on September 8, 1982. During the past year several meetings have been held with the Navajo Tribe to obtain concurrence to include Navajo partitioned land in the regulations. The Navajo Tribe expressed the desire for separate regulations and the Bureau has drafted a new regulation for Navajo Partitioned Land within the existing 25 CFR Part 167.

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs proposes to revise the rule concerning the circumstances under which the Bureau of Indian Affairs, in the performance of the Federal Government's trust responsibility to Indian tribes, may, in its discretion, provide Departmental funds to an Indian tribe or other Indian organization for the payment of a private attorney's legal services. The proposed revisions would not change the underlying policy of the current rule which is to pay for private counsel to represent Indian tribes only in exceptional circumstances. The principal changes involve representation in child custody proceedings, services of tribal court personnel, and non-litigation services. The proposed revision would also provide that when trust resources are involved, tribes and individual Indian allottees are eligible to apply for and receive federally appropriated funds under 25 CFR 89.

Final Rule Stage

Abstract: This proposed rule consolidates and revises former CFR parts 175, 176, and 177 to promote consistent and effective administration of utilities and to provide for public hearing and review of the rate setting process in a timely manner. Indian electric power utilities are required to maintain budgets that do not reflect deficiencies due to operating, maintenance, and replacement costs. The former rules normally require one to two years to implement rate adjustments, and the resulting delays have caused revenue shortages. The revised rules will enable power rate adjustments to be made in a timely manner by the Area Director after public notice, comment, and hearing period. The rule revision also allows for appeals to be heard by the Interior Board of Indian Appeals. Under the revised rule all rate adjustments are made after a public notice, comment, and hearing period. Rate adjustments are predominately the result of the cost of labor, materials, equipment, power, and services. Increases or decreases in the cost of electric service will affect all customers served by the utility.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 31 USC 9701 (b); 25 USC 2, 13, 413

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 143

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This interim rule will give the Bureau authority to bill and collect for services currently provided to non-Federal users. These rules must be promulgated before fees are charged by the Bureau for services and goods to non-Federal users under the Independent Offices Appropriations Act. Billing and collecting for the goods and services will not increase or decrease the current appropriated funding level. This rule is only to clarify the legality of the process that is already in effect. Since less than 90 locations will be affected, this rule will not have a significant effect on the national economy.

1445. ● LAW AND ORDER ON INDIAN RESERVATIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: As a result of the recent decision by the United States Supreme Court in Duro v. Reina, criminal jurisdiction over non-member Indians can no longer be exercised by Indian Tribes currently administering justice on their respective reservations. The decision has left an apparent void in the law and order program throughout Indian country and could have serious effect on the safety of reservation residents. There is an urgent and immediate need for judicial and law enforcement services on Indian reservations throughout the United States. The Bureau of Indian Affairs is therefore amending the regulations contained in 25 CFR 11 to authorize the establishment of Courts of Indian offenses on Indian reservations where law and order no longer can be effectively administered under tribal laws and by tribal law enforcement authorities. The cost involved has been estimated at $5 million for 1991.

Legal Authority: 25 USC 13

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 28

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The purpose of the rule is to combine the rules described in 25 CFR Part 26, Employment Assistance for Adult Indians, and 25 CFR Part 27, Vocational Training for Adult Indians, into a new 25 CFR Part 28. The application and selection process, financial assistance, program services, and employment as the objective are common to both Parts 26 and 27. Another purpose is to establish uniform procedures for administration of the employment assistance for adult Indians program and include requirements to improve the administrative efficiency of the program.

Abstract: The rules are being amended to strengthen the management of the Osage mineral estates and relieve the Osage oil lessees from basing the payment of royalties to the Osage Tribe on the offered or posted price of a major purchaser in the Kansas-Oklahoma area. These regulations will improve the management of the Osage mineral estate and will alleviate the economic hardship placed on the oil lessees.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 28, 1988.
One year from date of enactment for completion of the tribal membership roll.

Abstract: This rulemaking action is being taken to amend the regulations contained in 25 CFR Part 61. Part 61 contains general enrollment procedures which can be made specifically applicable in the preparation of a particular roll by the Secretary by amending section 61.4 to include the qualifications for enrollment for that particular roll. Under the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe of Indians Distribution of Judgment Funds Act of 1987, the Secretary has been directed to prepare certain rolls of Cow Creek Indians to be used in the implementation of the Act. The proposed amendment is, therefore, to make the procedures contained in Part 61 applicable to the preparation of the Cow Creek rolls by adding in section 61.4 the qualifications for enrollment for each of the rolls to be prepared.

Abstract: This rulemaking is needed to add new regulations covering recoupment and refunds of excess payments made under Federal offshore mineral leases which are subject to section 10 of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act of 1953 (OCSLA), 43 USC 1339. This rule would establish requirements and guidelines for crediting (recouping) excess payments of royalties, rentals, bonuses, or other amounts against a current or future payment obligation or refunding such excess payment to any person lawfully entitled to receive a refund or credit for

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Sections 206.104, 206.157, 206.158, and 206.159 of Minerals Management Service's Oil and Gas Valuation regulations, which were effective March 1, 1988, allow deductions for transportation and processing costs, limited to "reasonable actual costs," with an MMS approval threshold(s). Paragraph 206.158(d)(2) authorizes an additional allowance if the lessee incurs extraordinary costs for processing gas production and can demonstrate that the costs are "extraordinary, unusual, or unconventional." Amendments are needed to MMS's regulations to establish the criteria that must be met before any extraordinary gas processing cost allowance would be granted and to revise the MMS approval thresholds for transportation and processing allowances, if needed, based on actual experience since the effective date of the regulations. Amendments may also be needed to establish criteria for any extraordinary cost allowances that may be granted for other minerals such as oil, coal, and geothermal.

1452. OIL AND GAS AND SULPHUR OPERATIONS IN THE OUTER CONTINENTAL SHELF; RULES OF PARTICULAR APPLICATION

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334(a)(8)

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.47

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Pursuant to the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (OCSLA), the Secretary of the Interior is required to regulate air emissions from OCS oil and gas operations when they significantly affect the air quality of a State. To this end, MMS is developing regulations (RIN 1010-AA61), which will establish general, more stringent air emissions standards for OCS operations off the coast of California. However, there are significant technical and climatic barriers to attainment of good air quality in the area. To develop more effective protection of each air basin in California, MMS proposes to develop a separate mitigation fee program (e.g., local offsets) for each basin to be administered locally, and governed by "rules of particular application" that would be developed through separate rulemakings subsequent to adoption of the general rule. Each rule of particular application would address the following aspects of the proposed mitigation programs: administration, setting of fees, responsibilities of various governmental entities, coordination with the State Implementation Plan, selection of projects to be funded, performance audits, and modification processes.

1453. AIR QUALITY - OFFSHORE CALIFORNIA

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.47

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Amendments to the DOI Air Quality regulation for oil and gas operations will be proposed for Outer Continental Shelf areas adjacent to California. The changes would provide additional safeguards for those pollutants which could be critical to air quality in the region. The costs have been determined to have a net present value of approximately $25M to the regulated industry; the net benefits have not been quantified but would be a reduction in any effect of emissions from OCS operations on the ozone levels in adjacent onshore areas. This may be expected to yield cost reductions in health services and other related areas. The DOI conducted a conflict assessment to determine the likelihood of the interested and affected parties being able to reach an agreement on an air quality regulatory program. However, the effort at a negotiated rulemaking was inconclusive. Consequently, DOI proposed a rule through the standard process. However, based on careful consideration of comments received, DOI has decided to reevaluate this proposal prior to reproposing this rule in the future.

Abstract: The existing regulations provide for the valuation of unprocessed gas, residue gas, or any gas plant product which is not sold pursuant to an arm's-length contract to be determined in accordance with a benchmark method. In the final regulations, MMS adopted as the first benchmark the lessee's gross proceeds received under its non-arm's-length transaction if they were equivalent to the gross proceeds received under comparable arm's-length contracts for like-quality production in the same field or area. The criteria to be considered in defining comparable contracts were also outlined. However, since the adoption of the revised regulations, numerous questions have been raised as to the interpretation of the first benchmark. These questions have identified the need to further clarify MMS's intention in this regard.

Abstract: The Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Management Act of 1982 (FOGRMA) requires that the Secretary of the Interior establish a comprehensive inspection and auditing system to provide the capability to accurately determine royalties, interest, fines, penalties, fees, deposits, and other payments owed on Federal or Indian oil and gas leases. This responsibility has been delegated to MMS. However, performance of the required audits may be delegated to States or Indian tribes pursuant to sections 202 and 205 of FOGRMA or to independent certified public accountants under contract. The FOGRMA also requires the promulgation of regulations to establish audit standards and procedures, payor requirements and responsibilities, and authorities and responsibilities which may be delegated by MMS to a State, Indian tribe, or an independent certified public accountant. The purpose of this rulemaking action is to establish the regulations required by FOGRMA.

Abstract: Responsibilities of Minerals Management Service include the collection of royalties, bonuses, rentals, and related revenues from Federal and Indian mineral leases. These monies are, for the most part, collected from the current designated payor on the lease. However, if MMS is unable to collect from the current payor, it must pursue collections from a prior payor(s), the lessee, or an assignee of the lease. Existing regulations are unclear as to the responsibilities and liabilities of the parties involved. Therefore, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to clarify payor, lessee, and assignee requirements and responsibilities.

Abstract: The rules for Hydrogen Sulfide are being amended to revise the requirements for visual and audible warning systems, personnel protection, hydrogen sulfide (H2S) and sulphur dioxide (SO2) detection and monitoring, and the criteria for the activation of visual and audible warning systems. These amendments are necessary to be consistent with the new personnel exposure limits for H2S and SO2 established by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Amending the rule would reduce personnel exposure limits, thereby decreasing the risks associated with hazardous environments. Abstract: The development of this advance notice of proposed rulemaking resulted from the recommendation of a task force that examined many contributing causes to recent fatal accidents in the North Sea and the Gulf of Mexico. The task force identified areas where changes in regulations should be considered. This action considers changes in the placement of shutdown valves on pipelines as a means to isolate the pressurized hydrocarbons in the pipeline from potential danger that could result from a fire or other damage to the pipeline. An alternative action to improve safety would be to provide means of safely reducing pressure in the pipeline in the event of an emergency.

Abstract: The current gas valuation regulations provided that when the lessee of any gas lease committed to a Federally approved unitization or communitization agreement does not take the full share of production under the terms of the agreement, the entitled, but not taken, production is still subject to royalty payment and reporting requirements. This rulemaking would eliminate the requirement that the actual disposition of any part of production to which a lessee was entitled but did not take governs the valuation of that part. Under the rulemaking, the regulations would be amended to allow lessees to value their entitled, but not taken, production at prices based upon information that is accessible to the lessee. This rule will reduce the administrative burden for payors and MMS so that there is certainty in the determination of royalty values. The adoption of these rules would not affect the requirement in Indian leases and the current regulations for the performance of major portion analyses or dual accounting.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218; 30 CFR 220

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: It is MMS's current practice to only allow the offsetting of underpayments and overpayments within an individual lease and not between leases unless both of the leases are included in the same unitization or communitization agreement. However, it may not be appropriate, in certain cases of obvious payor reporting errors, for MMS to assess late payment interest charges or deny a request for refund of an overpayment on a Federal offshore lease which is subject to the filing and reporting requirements of section 10 of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, 43 USC 1339. This rulemaking would amend MMS regulations to allow payors to offset royalty underpayments on one lease against overpayments on a different lease (referred to as cross-lease netting) in certain cases where reporting errors do not result in harm to the royalty recipients. The rule specifies the conditions that must be met before MMS would allow cross-lease netting.

Abstract: On January 19, 1990, the Interior Board of Land Appeals (IBLA) issued a decision involving the term "production" when determining the applicable royalty rate for a sliding-scale lease (see IBLA 88-11—Sun Exploration and Production Company). The central issue in the decision was whether: (I) Production would be defined as only that volume of oil upon which royalty was due; or (II) Production should be defined as the total production from the lease, including oil used on the lease for operational purposes. In its decision, IBLA ruled both methods were consistent with the Statute, but the Department could only apply its interpretation prospectively. This rulemaking would define production, in MMS regulations, as total lease production, including any production used on the lease or lost, for purposes of determining applicable royalty, where the royalty rate is to be based upon the average daily production per well for the month or upon the average production per day (applicable only to gas produced from sliding-scale leases).

Abstract: The MMS regulations at 30 CFR 243.2 address the effectiveness of its Royalty Management Program decisions and orders pending administrative appeal. At the time the rule was issued in 1984, it was MMS's interpretation that most decisions and orders would not be suspended pending appeal. However, in 1988, the Interior Board of Land Appeals (IBLA) determined that unless there were special circumstances, the Director, MMS, was required to stay effectiveness of decisions and orders pending appeal provided the appellant posted adequate surety (Marathon Oil Company, 90 IBLA 236 (1986)). In view of the IBLA decision, an amendment is needed to MMS regulations at 30 CFR 243.2 to reflect clearly that MMS decisions and orders are stayed pending administrative appeal, the types of sureties which would be acceptable to MMS, and related issues.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 206

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) published final revised regulations governing the valuation of gas from Federal leases onshore and on the Outer Continental Shelf and from Indian Tribal and allotted leases in the Federal Register on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1230). The proposed gas valuation provisions of section 206.153, in part, govern the determination of value in situations where the lessee's contract for the sale of gas prior to processing provides for the value to be determined based upon a percentage of the purchases proceeds resulting from processing the gas. However, the inclusion of these percentages-of-proceeds contracts under section 206.153 has created unreasonable burdens on lessees. Consequently, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to provide for the valuation of gas under percentage-of-proceeds contracts to be under the unprocessed gas valuation standards of section 206.152, rather than section 206.153.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR Part 250 which govern oil and gas and sulphur operations in the OCS will be revised to address in greater specificity training requirements for personnel engaged in oil, gas, and sulphur drilling, development, and production operations in the OCS. Training requirements were addressed in a proposed rule to consolidate into one document the rules governing oil and gas and sulphur operations in the OCS which was published on March 18, 1988 (51 FR 9316). The training provisions of that proposed rule have been revised, updated, and consolidated under a new Subpart O, Training. Other alternatives considered were not revising the regulations and revising only those regulations identified by industry. Promulgation of the regulation is not expected to result in costs significantly more than those incurred through the unregulated use of good commercial practices.

Abstract: Existing regulations governing the valuation of geothermal resources provide insufficient guidance for the valuation of geothermal resources utilized to generate electricity in a lessee-owned power plant. Consequently, the Minerals Management Service has issued a report entitled "Valuation of Federal Geothermal Resources—Electrical Generation" which describes a "geothermal netback procedure" to value these "no sales" resources. An amendment is needed to the existing regulations to provide regulatory guidance after receipt and consideration of comments from the public to the existing geothermal netback procedure.

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR 250 which govern oil and gas and sulphur operations in the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) will be revised to address sulphur exploration, development, and production operations with more specificity. Sulphur operations are currently addressed through rules applicable to oil, gas, and sulphur and through OCS Order No. 10, Sulphur Drilling Procedures, issued by the Gulf of Mexico OCS Region. Comments received as the result of the publication on March 18, 1988 (51 FR 9316), of a proposed rule to consolidate rules governing oil, gas, and sulphur operations in the OCS included recommendations for the development of regulations which treat sulphur operations in the OCS with greater specificity. Other alternatives considered were not revising the regulations. Promulgation of the regulation is not expected to result in costs significantly more than those incurred through the unregulated use of good commercial practices.

Abstract: Amendments to the regulations providing for the discretionary release of postlease proprietary data and information will be proposed. The amendments would limit the discretion of the MMS Director to release such data and information by defining more precisely the circumstances under which such releases may be authorized and to whom the data and information may be shown. The alternative to the proposed amendment is the case-by-case determination of whether to release such proprietary data and information based on the existing less specific discretionary authority of the Director.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule is intended to remove apparent inconsistency in current regulations concerning the release of data and information submitted to MMS on certain MMS forms. Section 250.18 specifies periods of time that certain geological and geophysical data will be protected from disclosure to the public when submitted on specific forms, but release dates for similar data and information on other forms are not mentioned in the regulations. The alternatives of providing guidance through an OCS Order and through a Notice to Lessees and Operators on a region-to-region basis does not ensure that information is uniformly available to the public. This rulemaking does not involve any significant additional costs. Its benefits are the removal of ambiguity in the current regulations and the availability of data and information to the public on a uniform basis in all OCS Regions.

Abstract: The MMS Auditing and Financial System (AFS) matches and applies each payment received to its corresponding report or bill. If a payment cannot be automatically matched and applied by the AFS because of inadequate or erroneous information, it must be manually matched and applied by MMS personnel. The manual matching of payments to reports and bills results in MMS incurring substantial costs so that the AFS can operate properly to account for and distribute royalties. This situation also delays the payment application process and can result in delay in distribution of royalties and related information to States and Indian Tribes and allottees. To recover the costs, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to add a new assessment amount not to exceed $250 per incident. The new assessment would encourage payors to submit their payment, when required, together with the applicable report or copy of the bill and for the same amount as the report or bill. The new assessment would also encourage payors to adequately identify payments to the report or bill to be paid.

Abstract: The regulations at 30 CFR 228, implementing section 202 of the Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Management Act of 1982, 30 USC 1719, provide that the Federal share of funding of certain cooperative agreement activities with any State or Indian Tribe will be limited to not more than 50 percent of the cost of eligible activities as established under the terms of the cooperative agreement. However, Congress recently passed "The Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act Amendment of 1988," October 5, 1988, PL 100-472, which included amendments to PL 93-638 to require all Bureaus within the Department of the Interior to enter into PL 93-638 contracts with Indian Tribes. Consequently, the cooperative agreements that MMS may enter into in the future with Indian Tribes will be considered PL 93-638 self-determination contracts. Because PL 93-638 entitles an Indian Tribe to Federal reimbursement of 100 percent of the costs of an approved self- determination contract, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to remove the 50-percent Federal funding limitation.

Abstract: The MMS does not currently have regulations which delineate how service of official correspondence, including orders, decisions, demands for payment and notices of noncompliance issued by its Royalty Management Program is effectuated. In the absence of MMS regulations, the Interior Board of Land Appeals (IBLA) (IBLA-87-349) reversed a decision by the Director, MMS that an appeal had not been timely filed and therefore would not be considered. A rule is required that would: 1) establish an "address of record" to which official correspondence will be sent, and 2) define the "date of service" whether the document was physically or constructively delivered. The date of service established in accordance with this rule also would be the beginning date of the 30-day period in 30 CFR Part 290 for the filing of an appeal relative to an order or decision.

Abstract: This rulemaking would amend current regulations requiring lessee surety bonds. The monetary value of surety bonds designated in current regulations was established over a decade ago and is seriously inadequate to protect the government from loss due to lessee failure to meet the terms of the OCS lease for royalty payments, proper abandonment of wells, site cleanup, and ongoing lease operations. Bond requirements may be increased on a case-by-case basis, as an alternative to rule change. This might result in inconsistent requirements. The potential costs are whatever increase is incurred in obtaining a higher value bond. Benefits would be a reduced potential for government loss and a greater protection of the public interest.

Abstract: Because royalty payments are a major source of income to many Indian allottees, and the only source in some instances, it has been a longstanding Department of the Interior policy that overpayments made by lessees and other royalty payors to Indians cannot be recovered by refund. This policy was established to prevent an undue financial burden on Indian allottees who may have limited financial means to refund the overpayment. However, the adopted policy permits lessees and payors to recoup overpayments as a credit against future rental or royalty accruals due to Indian tribes or allottees. Lessees and operators were instructed to follow this recoupment policy in "Notice to Lessees and Operators of Indian Oil and Gas Leases No. 1A" (NTL-1A), issued by the Conservation Division of U.S. Geological Survey in 1977. The MMS published revised final oil and gas product valuation regulations at 30 CFR Part 206 on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1184 and 53 FR 1230), effective March 1, 1988. Abstract: This rule proposes to amend the regulations governing offshore oil and gas operations to correct a number of errors and minor inconsistencies contained in the comprehensive revision of those regulations promulgated in 1988. The MMS proposes to correct these typographical errors and inconsistencies by revising text of the related sections in 30 CFR Part 250. Most of these revisions are minor and involve the clarification of sections by modifying, removing, or adding a word or phrase; however, two substantive revisions concerning crane operations and drainage protection are included. The costs to lessees to implement these amendments are not expected to significantly increase over the costs of complying with the current program. This action is required to correct the errors referred to above; there are no alternatives.

Abstract: There is a conflict in MMS regulations at 30 CFR 220.030 with the Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Management Act of 1982 (FOGRMA) as to the time period that an offshore net profit share (NPSL) lessee must maintain records and all other documentation pertaining to the NPSL capital account. Therefore, MMS is proposing to amend 30 CFR 250.030 to extend the time period to 6 years, from 36 months, consistent with the statutory requirement of FOGRMA. The MMS is also proposing to remove 30 CFR 220.033 which includes language that conflicts with the recordkeeping requirements of FOGRMA and MMS regulations at 30 CFR 212.50 and 212.51.

1479. OIL AND GAS AND SULPHUR OPERATIONS ON THE OUTER CONTINENTAL SHELF; AMENDMENT TO SPECIFY DOCUMENTATION REQUIREMENTS FOR BLOWOUT PREVENTER TESTS

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1331 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.67; 30 CFR 250.60; 30 CFR 250.100

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would modify the regulations governing drilling, well-completion, and well-workover operations under an oil and gas lease in the Outer Continental Shelf to identify with greater specificity the information that must be recorded by the lessee to describe testing of the lessee's blowout preventer (BOP) and auxiliary equipment and to add a provision allowing MMS to request information concerning pressure conditions during testing of BOP's and auxiliary equipment. The change is necessary to allow MMS personnel to verify the adequacy of lessee-conducted tests that are needed to assure that BOP's and auxiliary well-control equipment, if needed, will operate effectively. This change will enable MMS personnel to better assess the effectiveness of a BOP system during their review of the documentation of the method and procedures used by a lessee to conduct BOP tests and the results obtained.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1331 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would add a provision to the regulations governing oil, gas, and sulphur operations in the Outer Continental Shelf to clarify that any person observing an apparent violation of Minerals Management Service's (MMS) regulations can report the apparent violation, and that MMS will then investigate the allegation. The provision was a part of the regulations in effect prior to 1988 but was dropped when the offshore operating rules were revised in 1988. Although allegations of violations of MMS regulations are investigated under existing rules, incorporation of the new provision into

DOI—MMS — Final Rule Stage

Part 250 will assure that more people are aware that allegations of violations of MMS regulations will be investigated. The alternative of using other means to inform the public, such as use of a press release, would be a less effective means of assuring that the public was aware of this provision.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.42; 30 CFR 250.43

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule amends the regulatory program of the Minerals Management Service (MMS). Specifically, the rule requires offshore operators to certify, within their oil spill contingency plans, that proposed response personnel have been trained in accordance with existing Federal health and safety regulations. This rule will clarify those criteria that MMS uses in reviewing and approving oil spill contingency plans. This rule also will ensure that any responses to oil spills emanating from Outer Continental Shelf operations will be conducted in accordance with existing Federal health and safety regulations.

1482. AMENDMENTS TO 30 CFR 250.52 TO ADD REQUIREMENTS INTENDED TO PREVENT OCCURRENCE OF ACCIDENTAL FIRES CAUSED BY FALLING SLAG FROM WELDING OR BURNING

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.52

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service proposed to amend 30 CFR 250.52 to add requirements designed to increase personnel safety and minimize property damage by avoiding or preventing the occurrence of accidental fires caused by hot slag from welding or burning activities falling into flammable material floating on the ocean surface beneath Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) facilities. The proposed amendment was prompted by the recommendations of an investigation of a January 6, 1984, accidental fire believed to have been caused by hot welding slag igniting a layer of hydrocarbons floating on the surface of the ocean water beneath an OCS facility. Three men died and nine were burned as a consequence of that fire. The alternative considered was to send lessees advisory notices alerting them of the potential danger of welding slag; however, the alternative was considered less effective because it lacked enforcement. The proposed amendment would not result in increases in cost to lessees or consumers.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing regulations at 30 CFR 218.54, 218.55, and 218.102 govern the rate of interest to be charged on underpayments or late payments of royalty by lessees and other royalty payors, and the rate of interest to be paid on late disbursements of an Indian Tribe's or Allottee's royalty or a State's share of royalty revenues. These regulations reference section 6621 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 for the applicable interest rate in each situation. However, section 6621 was amended by the Tax Reform Act of 1986 to provide for a different interest rate for overpayments and for underpayments. A rule amendment is required to clarify an ambiguity in the existing regulations, created by the amendment to section 6621, as to which of two different rates would apply.

1484. AMENDMENT OF COAL VALUATION REGULATIONS TO REMOVE EXCLUSION OF TAXES AND FEES FROM VALUE OF FEDERAL COAL PRODUCTION

Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 206

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On January 13, 1989, MMS issued revised coal product valuation regulations in the Federal Register (54 FR 1492) establishing the value of coal production for royalty purposes from all Federal and Indian leases. The adopted regulations, effective March 1, 1989, resulted in considerable controversy on the part of States, Indians, and Congress relative to the exclusion of Federal Black Lung excise taxes, Abandoned Mine Land Fees, and State and local severance taxes from the value of coal production, for royalty computation purposes, on Federal leases. In view of the controversy, the Secretary of the Interior directed that a review and study of the issues be performed. As a result of that study, MMS is proposing to amend its coal regulations to remove the exclusion of the taxes and fees from the value of Federal coal production.

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR 250.128 on the manufacture of safety and pollution-prevention equipment (i.e., surface and subsurface safety valves) are being amended to update the American Petroleum Institute (API) and American Society of Mechanical Engineers/American National Standards Institute (ASME/ANSI) quality assurance (QA) programs. The revision to the API QA program would update API Spec Q1 from the 1986 edition to the 1990 edition. The ASME/ANSI QA program would be updated to include Addendum D, issued in 1990. The Minerals Management Service has reviewed these documents and has determined that the revisions to the updated documents are minor and do not have a significant impact on the current documents incorporated by reference.

Abstract: This rule will clarify that a permittee must obtain approval from the regulatory authority before ceasing coal mining operations on a permit that results in the delay of contemporaneous reclamation on areas which are incidental to, or necessary to facilitate, continued mining of the remaining coal reserves. The rule will state that an application to temporarily cease mining operations may be approved if the regulatory authority finds that recoverable coal reserves remain, that the bond is adequate, and that based on pre-approval inspection, the site is in compliance with all applicable requirements, including contemporaneous reclamation, drainage control, and structure certifications. The rule will specify that temporary cessation may be approved for a period not to exceed one year, after which time the permittee may file for subsequent one year renewals.

Abstract: The proposed rule will establish standards for review and rebuttal of presumptions regarding ownership and control relationships between permit applicants and violators as well as between permittees and violators. The rule will also specify requirements for verifying whether the ownership and control information specified on a permit application is complete, require use of OSM's applicant violator computer system and other available data by regulatory authorities when conducting violation reviews and establish procedures for regulatory authorities to use in determining the status of outstanding violations. The rule will prescribe sanctions in cases where a permit applicant intentionally fails to provide complete or accurate ownership and control information. The rule will also require regulatory authorities to conduct an annual verification of certain ownership and control information for all permittees. In addition, the rule will specify measures for OSM to take should a state regulatory authority fail to implement these new requirements. Significance: Agency Priority

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 784.20(g); 30 CFR 817.121(c)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will bring application information requirements and subsidence control performance standards into conformance with the February 12, 1990 decision of the District Court by striking the references to State law. The obligation of underground coal mine operators to repair damage to structures and facilities should not be limited by any provisions of State law.

Abstract: The regulation will address the sections that were remanded back to OSM by the action of the Court. The regulation will provide additional guidance to the surface coal mine operator in fulfilling the performance standards of the Act. Costs will not be increased because the regulations will amplify existing requirements.

Abstract: Under existing regulations, a party affected by a determination from a Regional Director may appeal the determination to the Commissioner. Since the Regional Directors' determinations are often based on policies issued by the Commissioner, the potential exists for the Commissioner to become the final arbiter of his/her own decisions. In order to serve parties appealing Regional Director decisions, the current regulations will be revised to allow appellants that receive adverse Commissioner decisions to further elevate their appeals to the Office of Hearings and Appeals.

Abstract: This proposed rule establishes guidelines for mining in certain military installations under the Mining Law of 1872, as amended, and for assuring the safe, uninterrupted, and unimpeded use of the lands for military purposes. The Military Lands Withdrawal Act of 1986 specifically provided for certain military lands previously withdrawn from mining to be considered for opening to the operation of the Mining Law of 1872, as amended, with certain special restrictions. Military Lands identified as suitable for mining through the Bureau of Land Management's planning system are proposed to be opened on the effective date of an opening order that will be published in the Federal Register.

1584. ONSHORE OIL AND GAS ORDER NO. 6 - HYDROGEN SULFIDE OPERATIONS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 189; 30 USC 359

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 3164.1(b); 43 CFR 3162.3; 43 CFR 3162.5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This order is being issued under the revised oil and gas regulations as found in 43 CFR Part 3160. The order details the requirements for protecting workers and the public from hydrogen sulfide. It specifies documentation needed prior to operation and measures required during drilling and production. This order is referenced in the Table at 43 CFR 3164.1(b).

Legal Authority: 18 USC 1852; 18 USC 1853; 43 USC 1733

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 5400; 43 CFR 9230

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: It is necessary to amend existing regulations concerning the unlawful removal of forest products from public lands. Existing regulations rely on State statutes in those States with statutes, but little support is provided if State statutes do not exist. This regulation would provide this support and improve overall management of the public lands.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1181e; 30 USC 601 et seq

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 5473; 43 CFR 5474

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: It is necessary to amend existing regulations concerning extension of time for cutting and removal on timber sale contracts. Shorter contract terms and increased seasonal restrictions on operations have caused a problem with the reappraisal requirement for contract extensions. This regulation would allow contract extensions without reappraisal under certain conditions.

Abstract: This rule will enhance the ability of the Secretary of the Interior to control the number of wild horses and burros on the public lands and protect the range from deterioration by avoiding lengthy delays of removals of excess animals pending rulings on appeals to the Interior Board of Land Appeals. The rule will also allow the Secretary to protect adopted wild horses and burros from abuse and neglect by authorizing full force and effect decisions to cancel Private Maintenance and Care Agreements when the condition of the animals warrants such action.

1577. ● ENFORCEMENT OF TITLE III OF THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 101-336, Sec 306

CFR Citation: 28 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, July 26, 1991.

Abstract: The rule implements the Attorney General's responsibilities under the requirement of title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. Title III prohibits discrimination against any individual on the basis of disability in the enjoyment of goods, service, facilities, privileges, advantages, or accommodations of places of public accommodation. Public accommodations are defined as private entities whose operations affect commerce, and include, for example, place of lodging, establishments serving food and drink, place of entertainment, auditoriums, stores, service establishments (including doctors and lawyers offices), train stations, museums, zoos, places of education, and places of exercise or recreation.

1580. NONDISCRIMINATION ON THE BASIS OF AGE IN PROGRAMS OR ACTIVITIES RECEIVING FEDERAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6103

CFR Citation: 28 CFR 42, Subpart I (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation will implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, as amended, in programs or activities assisted by the Department of Justice (DOJ). The statute, 42 USC 6103(a)(4), requires that Federal agencies providing Federal financial assistance promulgate implementing regulations consistent with the general regulations issued by the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS), and the statute provides that such agency regulations shall not be effective until approved by HHS. In 1980 the proposed rule was published for comment, modified, approved by the DOJ Office of Legal Counsel, and on November 10, 1980 a draft final rule was forwarded to HHS for approval. On July 13, 1984 HHS conditionally approved the draft regulation. On August 12, 1987 DOJ submitted to HHS a draft final regulation.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103; 8 USC 1362

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 292.1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The revisions to 8 CFR 292.1 permit first- and second-year law students in clinical programs at accredited law schools to appear in immigration proceedings. Such appearance shall be at the discretion of the deciding official and under professional supervision. This expands the former regulation which authorized such appearances for third-year law students only. In addition, law graduates not yet admitted to the bar may continue to represent clients in immigration proceedings with certain new limitations. A law graduate may appear under supervision of a licensed attorney or accredited representative, and only within the context of pro bono representation. As with law students, a law graduate is permitted to appear at the discretion of the deciding official.

The purpose of these regulations is to expand the pool of competent, properly supervised representatives for individuals who might not otherwise obtain such representation.

Abstract: This notice announces the intent of the Immigration and Naturalization Service ("the Service") to set forth, in regulatory form, the special requirements for admission, extension and maintenance of status of nonimmigrant alien visitors for business and visitors for pleasure. Much of the Service's written policy relating to this subject is now contained in the Service's Operations Instructions at O.I. 214.2(b). Because it is more appropriate for interpretations and rules to be set forth in regulatory form, this information will become part of 8 CFR 214. In addition, the proposed rulemaking will clarify the criteria for according B-1 classification to members of certain occupations (such as participants in religious programs and members of foreign film crews). By issuing this advance notice, the Service is providing an opportunity to the public to submit comments and make suggestions at an earlier stage of the process. This will result in a proposed rule which is more comprehensive in its scope and more understandable to the public.

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 216.4(a)(2); 8 CFR 216.5; 8 CFR 204

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation conforms with contemporary Service interpretation of the statute, as amended by the Immigration Marriage Fraud Amendments of 1986 (IMFA). This proposed rule will revise various procedures in 8 CFR 216. It also amends 8 CFR 204 which defines when an alien is in proceedings to agree with the Rules of Procedure for Immigration Judge Proceedings, 8 CFR 3.12. These regulations will assist in Service administration and will clarify procedures established during the three years of IMFA.

Abstract: Current regulations allow for the inspection of arriving passengers to be deferred at the request of the carrier to an onward port of debarkation. This may allow latitude in the reboarding of previously cleared passengers who arrived on a similarly designated flight, thus creating a commingling of international and domestic passengers. This regulation would more clearly define a progressive flight.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Action will propose to revise the requirement that all supporting documents submitted by individuals applying for immigration benefits be submitted accompanied by certified copies or that copies be certified by designated INS personnel at the time of receipt for retention with the petition(s) or application(s). Available statistics do not show a sufficiently significant number of rescission/revocation actions based on fraudulent claims to warrant continuing to require that all documents in support of a request for an immigration benefit be certified. The public will be less burdened with having to produce and pay for certified copies and will also have to spend less time standing in line at an INS office waiting for their documents to be read and matched for certification.

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA) imposes sanctions against employers who hire aliens not authorized to work. Since many of the nation's agricultural employers have become dependent upon such workers to meet production and harvesting needs, Congress created the Special Agricultural Workers (SAW) Program and the Replenishment Agricultural Workers (RAW) Program to provide permanent resident status to certain agricultural workers. To clarify the process through which employers can employ nonimmigrant seasonal and temporary agricultural workers, Congress moved agricultural employment from H-2 classification into a separate H-2A class, and incorporated a labor certification process into the statute. This interim rule establishes special H-2A regulatory criteria. It supplements the Department of Labor's rules covering the temporary agricultural labor certification process. This rule amends Service regulations relating therefore to temporary alien workers seeking classification under section 101(a)(15)(H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 28 USC 509; 28 USC 510; 21 USC 844(a)

CFR Citation: 28 CFR 76

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 6486 of the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988, Pub. L. 100-690, (hereinafter the Act) 21 U.S.C. 844(a), provides for civil penalties for the possession of small amounts of certain controlled substances. In order to implement this provision, this proposed rule sets forth the procedures to be followed in all matters brought before Administrative Law Judges when a complaint is filed seeking a civil penalty from a respondent who has violated this provision of the Act. The proposed rule will also provide notice to respondents and, where appropriate, their counsel, as to the rules of procedure that will be followed by Administrative Law Judges and United States Attorneys when their respective cases are heard.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 42 USC 289; 49 USC 300v-1(h)

CFR Citation: 28 CFR 46

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule will add new Department of Justice regulations for the protection of human subjects at 28 CFR Part 46 to incorporate changes developed by the Interagency Human Subjects Coordinating Committee, Federal Coordinating Council on Science Engineering and Technology (FCCSET). The Committee drafted a common rule for Federal departments and agencies conducting or supporting research involving human subjects which was based on HHS regulations. This effort was in response to a key recommendation of the President's Commission for the Study of Ethical Problems in Medicine and Biomedical and Behavioral Research in the First Biennial Report in 1981.

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Labor.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations selected for review or development.

SUMMARY: This document sets forth the Department's semiannual agenda of regulations, which has been selected for review or development during the coming 1-year period. The agenda complies with the requirements of both Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

DATES: The agenda includes all regulations which are expected to be under review or development between October 1990 and October 1991.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Roland G. Droitsch, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue NW., Room S-2312, Washington, DC 20210; (202) 523-9058.

Note: Information pertaining to a specific regulation can be obtained from the agency contact listed for that particular regulation.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act require the semiannual publication in the Federal Register of an agenda of regulations.

Executive Order 12291 became effective February 17, 1981, and in substance, requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda listing all the regulations it expects to have under active consideration for promulgation, proposal, or review during the coming 1-year period. It also requires the Department to conduct a Regulatory Impact Analysis for all "major" regulations being developed.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act became effective on January 1, 1981. It applies only to regulations for which a notice of proposed rulemaking was issued on or after January 1, 1981, and requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda listing all the regulations it expects to propose or promulgate that are likely to have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" (5 U.S.C. 602). For any regulation that will have this impact, the Department must conduct a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis to gauge the economic consequences of the rule and to analyze the availability of more flexible approaches for lightening the rule's regulatory burden on "small entities."

If a proposed regulation will not have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities," the Department of Labor must publish a certification to that effect at the time of the general notice of proposed rulemaking or at the time of the publication of the final rule. That certification must be accompanied by a succinct statement explaining the reasons for the agency's determinations.

As permitted by law, the Department of Labor is combining this publication of its agendas under the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

The regulatory reform process, of which the Unified Agenda is a part, continues to be an extremely valuable aid in the development of better regulations by the Department. We believe that our regulatory reform program has resulted in improved regulatory management, more clearly written regulations, and significantly less burdensome regulations.

Further improvement is certainly needed, and we are constantly seeking new and innovative approaches in pursuit of this goal. All interested members of the public are invited and encouraged to let departmental officials know how our regulatory reform process can be further improved and, of course, to participate in and comment on the review or development of the regulations listed on the agenda.

The Department of Labor's next semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, will be published in April 1991.

Elizabeth Dole,
Secretary of Labor.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Part 50-204 of 41 CFR contains safety and health standards for Federal supply contracts under the Walsh-Healey Act. These standards, which also apply to Federal contracts for services under the Service Contract Act, were adopted in 1969, and were last revised in 1971. Many of the standards in Part 50-204 are duplicative of standards found in other Department of Labor regulations, primarily those issued under the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) in 29 CFR Parts 1910-1919, and the Mine Safety and Health Act (MSHA) in 30 CFR. In addition, other OSHA and MSHA standards have been revised and updated considerably since 1971, and these changes are not reflected in Part 50-204. Because employers covered by the Walsh-Healey and Service Contracts Acts are also covered by OSHA and MSHA, and thus are already required to comply with the OSHA and MSHA standards, as applicable, the Department of Labor is considering whether or not the Walsh-Healey standards should be revised by deleting redundant provisions and by substituting appropriate references (cont)

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 1, 1983.

Abstract: Section 481 of the Job Training Partnership Act of 1982 (JTPA) requires OFCCP to issue regulations which will specify the degree to which contractors' participation in JTPA approved training programs will satisfy their affirmative action obligations under Executive Order 11246, as amended. Among the issues to be determined are: (1) the extent to which a contractor's participation in an approved training program satisfies its affirmative action obligations; (2) the contents of an abbreviated affirmative action program; (3) methods for determining compliance; and (4) recordkeeping and reporting requirements.

Abstract: This proposal would, among other things, incorporate 1978 and 1980 statutory amendments to definitions applicable to Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act and to the Veterans' programs. However, since 1981 there have been additional amendments to the Rehabilitation Act and to the Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act affecting definitions applicable under the respective programs. All such statutorily required changes to the definitions would be incorporated into the proposed regulatory action contemplated under RIN - 1215-AA01.

1269. CHILD LABOR REGULATIONS, ORDERS AND STATEMENTS OF INTERPRETATION (ESA/W-H)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 203

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 570

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 3(l) of the Fair Labor Standards Act requires the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations with respect to minors between 14 and 16 years of age ensuring that the periods and conditions of their employment do not interfere with their schooling, health, or well-being. The Secretary also is directed to designate occupations that may be particularly hazardous for minors 16 and 17 years of age. Child Labor Regulation No. 3 sets forth the permissible industries and occupations in which 14 and 15 year olds may be employed. In addition, this regulation specifies the number of hours in a day and in a week, and time periods within a day that such minors may be employed. The nonagricultural hazardous occupations orders which prohibit the employment of minors in such occupations are also contained in 29 CFR 570. Changes in technology and job content over the years require a review of the regulations to ensure the safety and health of such minors and at the same time avoid unnecessary restrictions on their employment opportunities. The Department has established a Child (cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: Labor Advisory Committee to advise the Secretary on the effective administration of the child labor provisions of the FLSA. The recommendations of the committee will be given careful consideration in the review of these regulations. The committee convened on March 9-10, 1988, at which time subcommittees were established to review Hazardous Order (HO) No. 2 (Motor Vehicle Operations), HO No. 10 (Slaughtering and Meat Packing), and Child Labor Regulation No. 3. Since that time, two additional subcommittees were established to review HO No. 11 (Bakery Machines) and HO No. 12 (Paper Products Machines). The full committee met on May 11, 1989 to receive reports and make recommendations. The Committee's charter was renewed until August 5, 1991, to enable it to continue its study of the regulations (54 FR 35540). Revisions to HOs No. 2, No. 10, and No. 12 have been prepared and will be published shortly. In addition, an intradepartmental task force on child labor (ESA, OSHA, SOL and others) has been established to review child labor issues.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 213(a)(1)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 541

Abstract: These regulations set forth the criteria used in the determination of the application of the Fair Labor Standards Act exemption for "executive," "administrative," "professional" and "outside sales employees" from the minimum wage and overtime requirements of the Act. The existing regulation was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief. A final rule increasing the salary test criteria was published on 01/13/81 (46 FR 3010) and was scheduled to become effective on 02/13/81. On 02/12/81 (46 FR 11972) an indefinite stay of the final rule was published. On 03/27/81 (46 FR 18998) a proposal to suspend the final rule indefinitely was published with comments due by 04/28/81. As a result of numerous comments and petitions received from industry groups regarding the duties and responsibilities tests as set forth in the regulations, as well as recent case law developments, the Department concluded that a more comprehensive review of these regulations was needed and decided to reopen the comment period and broaden the scope of the review to include all aspects of the regulations. An ANPRM was published on 11/19/85 and its comment period was (cont)

1682. EMPLOYMENT OF HOMEWORKERS IN CERTAIN INDUSTRIES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 211

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 530

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation sets forth restrictions on industrial homework and governs the issuance of certificates authorizing the employment of homeworkers in certain industries, pursuant to Section 11(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). As originally issued, these regulations restricted the employment of industrial homework in seven industries: knitted outerwear; women's apparel; jewelry; buttons and buckles; gloves and mittens; handkerchiefs; and embroideries. The ban was removed on homework in the knitted outerwear industry by the Department on 11/9/81, following extensive hearings and public comment. This action was subsequently upheld by the District Court for the District of Columbia. However, on appeal the ban was reimposed 2/29/84 by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. On 3/27/84 the Department published a proposed rule rescinding the ban on homework in the knitted outerwear industry only. In addition to soliciting comments on the proposed rescission, the Department sought comments on various alternatives to such action (49 FR 11786). On 11/5/84, a final rule was published lifting the ban on homework for (cont)

Based on analysis of the results of its enforcement experience under the new certification procedure, and review of comments from a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published on August 21, 1986 (51 FR 30036), a proposal was published on March 30, 1988 (53 FR 10342) which included enforcement mechanisms to enhance compliance among employers of homeworkers. The comment period was later extended to May 13, 1988 (53 FR 15063). The proposal also excluded the women's apparel industry and stated that this industry would be the subject of separate rulemaking. A final rule was published November 10, 1988 (53 FR 45706). An ANPRM concerning women's apparel homework was published December 30, 1988 (53 FR 53344). Public hearings on this issue were held in seven cities during March and April 1989. The public comment period on the ANPRM closed on May 5, 1989. Abstract: The Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1989 were enacted on November 17, 1989. Section 9 of the 1989 amendments amends Section 16(e) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) to provide that employers who willfully or repeatedly violate the FLSA minimum wage (Section 6) or overtime compensation (Section 7) provisions shall also become subject to a civil penalty of up to $1,000 per violation. New civil penalty regulations are planned to address these provisions which will be incorporated into the existing procedural regulations (29 CFR 580) applicable to the assessment of civil penalties for child labor violations.

Abstract: The 1989 Amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) contain a provision which allows employers to employ workers for not more than 10 hours in a work week in excess of the 40-hour maximum standard without payment of overtime compensation, if during such period(s) the employees receive remedial education that: (1) is provided to employees who lack high school diplomas or educational attainment at the eighth grade level; (2) is designed to provide reading and other basic skills at an eighth grade level or below; and (3) does not include job-specific training. Minor revisions to existing regulations on overtime compensation and recordkeeping will be made to conform with this provision of the law. ESA will issue a notice of proposed rulemaking to correspond with the statutory changes in overtime compensation. Final regulations will be issued following review of the public comments received.

Abstract: The Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act (PCA) requires payment of minimum wages on Federal and District of Columbia contracts over $10,000 for manufacturing or furnishing materials, supplies, articles, or equipment. Wage determinations historically issued under PCA have required payment of not less than the minimum wage prescribed by the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 as amended (FLSA). The Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1989 (Public Law 101-157) increased the minimum wage rate required to be paid under the FLSA. The Department is proposing to increase the minimum wage required to be paid under the PCA to correspond to the FLSA minimum wage rate requirements contained in the 1989 FLSA Amendments.

Abstract: The Office of Workers' Compensation Programs (OWCP) in 1966 implemented a fee schedule for charges made under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (FECA) by physicians. The fee schedule specifically excluded hospitals, nursing homes and pharmacies from coverage. In the intervening years, it has been shown that some hospitals are performing many of the same services as those which, when performed by physicians are covered by the fee schedule. The result is that different amounts may be paid for exactly the same service. OWCP proposed to end this inequity by extending to hospitals the fee schedule for those services which are similar to those provided by physicians.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act regulations to provide an alternative regular dealer definition applicable to information systems integration businesses which bid on contracts to furnish the government fully operational information processing ("ADP") systems. The alternative definition would relieve potential contractors in this industry from having to physically maintain inventories from which sales are made, a custom that is inconsistent with this industry's practices. A proposed rule was published on June 22, 1989 inviting public review and comment. Two comments were received during the comment period which ended July 24, 1989 (54 FR 2612). In addition, in November 1989, the Subcommittee on Legislation and National Security of the Committee on Government Operations, U.S. House of Representatives, held a series of hearings on the Federal Government's purchase of ADP equipment which included a review of some procurements awarded to systems integrators. Based on information from these hearings, it was decided to reopen the comment period (cont)

Abstract: The Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1989 were enacted on November 17, 1989. Among other provisions, the amendments provide that employers may pay employees under the age of 20, under certain conditions, a wage rate of at least 85 percent of the minimum wage, but not less that $3.35 per hour, for a period up to 90 days. Abstract: The Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) permits the employment of certain inexperienced workers (learners) at wage rates below the statutory minimum under certificates issued by the Department of Labor. Amendments to the FLSA were enacted in 1989 (Public Law 101-157) which increased the statutory minimum wage rate to $3.80 an hour effective April 1, 1990, and to $4.25 an hour effective April 1, 1991. Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 618

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations are being developed to implement the benefit provisions contained in Sec. 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. The Act requires the Secretary of Labor to specify the percentage of prior salary which an "eligible protected employee" would receive as a benefit payment under the Act. An eligible protected employee is a person who has had at least 4 years of employment with a certificated air carrier as of October 24, 1978 and who loses his or her job during the ten years following such date in a bankruptcy or major employment contraction if and only if the Department of Transportation determines that the principal causes of such job loss was deregulation. On May 17, 1984 the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia held that Section 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act was unconstitutional. On July 18, 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals decided that the employee protection provisions of Section 43 were severable from the legislative veto provisions. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled on March 25, 1987 that the legislative veto provisions were unconstitutional but the first right-to-hire provisions were constitutional, therefore, rulemaking can proceed on the (cont)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1321; 42 USC 1322

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 606

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Since 1981, Congress has enacted major changes in the Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA) and Social Security Act (SSA) with respect to advances to States for the payment of unemployment insurance and the repayment of such advances and interest thereon. Promulgation of comprehensive regulations is being undertaken in two phases. The proposed rule will replace instructions contained in several Unemployment Insurance Program Letters approved under OMB No. 1205-0192 expiring October 31, 1990. This action represents the second phase, governing States receiving and voluntarily repaying advances to their unemployment funds and paying interest in such advances. The final rule for the first phase, governing relief from automatic repayment and interest charges, was published in the Federal Register on September 26, 1988 (RIN 1205-AA14).

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1182(a)(14)

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 656

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Before the Department of State (DOS) and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) may issue visas and admit certain immigrant aliens to work permanently in the United States, the Secretary of Labor pursuant to Section 212(a)(14) of the Immigration and Naturalization Act (INA) must certify to the Secretary of State and to the Attorney General that: (a) There are not sufficient United States workers who are able, willing, qualified and available at the time of the application for a visa and admission into the United States and at the place where the alien is to perform work; and (b) The employment of the alien will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of similarly employed U.S. workers (8 USC 1182(a)(14)). The Department of Labor (DOL) has promulgated regulations at 20 CFR Part 656 pursuant to and to implement section 212(a)(14) of the INA (8 USC 1182(a)(14)). These regulations set forth the fact finding process designed to support the granting or denial of a permanent labor certification. Experience in (cont)

Abstract: ETA has undertaken a review of the Apprenticeship system to determine the role of apprenticeship in meeting America's future needs for a skilled work force. The Apprenticeship 2000 review, through research, review of existing materials and related programs, is considering alternative ways to strengthen and expand apprenticeship and related training programs. Existing regulations governing apprenticeship programs may be revised to: 1) improve the existing programs ability to produce skilled workers to meet demands in the industries where it is now prevalent; and 2) expand the apprenticeship concept of training to fill the needs for skilled workers in additional industries.

Abstract: This proposed rule would replace outdated administrative regulations for the unemployment insurance (UI) program grants to States with reference to more current common administrative requirements for State governments codified elsewhere by the Department of Labor (DOL). Because of certain unique needs of the UI program, this action would also cover UI program exceptions to these requirements and clarifications of Employment and Training Administration (ETA) policy in applying requirements to State grantees. As a result, the proposed rule is expected to aid States in understanding and complying with the requirements.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 1021

Abstract: Section 101(d) provides that when an employer maintaining a plan other than a multiemployer plan fails to make a required installment or other payment required to meet minimum funding standards under section 302 to a plan before the 60th day following the due date, the employer shall notify each participant and beneficiary of such failure. Section 101(d) also provides that the notice shall be made at such time and in such manner as the Secretary shall provide. Because OBRA 1989 added section 502(c)(3) of ERISA to permit the imposition of substantial penalties upon employers who fail to give the notice required by section 101(d), there will be an increased need for regulatory guidance by the Secretary as to the time and manner in which notice under 101(d) must be provided.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 29 USC 1135; 29 USC 1112

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 2580

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed regulation is intended to provide an exemption from the bonding requirements of Section 412 (a) of ERISA for certain broker dealers and investment advisers who handle plan assets if the proposed regulation's alternative bonding requirements are met. If adopted, the regulation would permit broker-dealer and their investment adviser affiliates to substitute the fidelity bond required by the self-regulatory organizations of which they are members, subject to a minimum level of coverage, for the bond otherwise required by Section 412 of ERISA.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 1132

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 2570.80, Procedural; 29 CFR 2560.502(l)-1, Substantive

Abstract: Section 502(l) requires the Secretary of Labor to assess a civil penalty against a fiduciary who breaches or commits a violation of part 4 of Title I of ERISA, or any other person who knowingly participates in such breach or violation by any other person. In order to implement this statutory provision, the Department of Labor intends to promulgate two regulations. The first regulation is an interim rule setting for the procedures for the assessment of penalties under ERISA section 502(l) and for petitioning the Secretary to exercise his or her discretion to waive or reduce the mandated assessment. The second regulation is a proposed rule that defines the following pivotal terms contained in section 502(l): "applicable

Legal Authority: PL 95-250 Section 202

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 92

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Public Law 95-250, the Redwood National Park Expansion Act of 1978 (the Act) created employee protection benefits commonly known as the "Redwood Employee Protection Program" (the Program). Eligible employees could obtain such benefits upon application to an appropriate State agency. The Bureau of Labor-Management Relations and Cooperative Programs (the Agency) administers the Program in cooperation with State agencies. The Act does not provide a date certain for the expiration of the time period for application for benefits or appeals of previous benefit decisions, nor did the enabling regulations contain such a date. The Agency is issuing final regulations based on its interpretation of the statute with regard to the termination of the Program. This Agency has concluded that Congress intended for benefits eligibility to expire on September 30, 1989. Consequently, the agency is giving notice that the Program is terminated and that individual claims for benefits and/or appeals of benefits will not be accepted by State or Federal offices. This is a final step in terminating the Bureau's responsibility under this program.

1738. TRAINING FOR MINING CONSTRUCTION WORKERS AND INDEPENDENT CONTRACTORS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 48

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Construction workers and independent contractors are often present on the mine property as a result of contractual agreements with the mine operator. Because of hazards inherent to their work or caused by association with mining activities, these workers need appropriate training to avoid accidents and injuries. MSHA is reviewing reports of mine construction and independent contractor fatalities and injuries. This review will help the Agency determine what training requirements are needed for these workers. The Federal Mine Safety and Health Act requires the Secretary to promulgate standards for training mine construction workers.

The regulation will affect persons performing construction work on mine property including shaft and slope sinking. Because construction workers and independent contractors generally work at multiple mine sites and have other similarities in training needs it is anticipated that independent contractor training will be addressed in a new Subpart C of 30 CFR Part 48.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 100

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under sections 105(c) and 110 of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977, MSHA is required to assess a civil penalty for all violations of the Act and mandatory safety and health standards. In May 1982, MSHA issued revised civil penalty regulations that included a provision for assessment of $20.00 single penalty for non-significant-and-substantial (non-S&S) violations that are timely abated. In November 1989, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ordered MSHA to revise its civil penalty regulations and take immediate interim steps to correct the assessment system. The Court retained jurisdiction of the case to consider the issues after its remand. Pursuant to the Courts order, MSHA (1) temporarily revised its assessment policies to instruct is field personnel to review non-S&S violations involving high negligence and an excessive history of the same type of violation for possible special assessment under 30 CFR 100.5; and (2) temporarily suspended the sentence in 30 CFR 100.3(c) which excludes timely paid single penalty assessments from an operator's history of violations for regular assessment (cont)

Abstract: The primary purpose of this action is to provide miners with the means to receive necessary information on the hazards of chemicals to which they are exposed and the action necessary to protect their safety and health. In preparation of a proposed rule, MSHA has reviewed OSHA's hazard communication standard and information collected by NIOSH. MSHA anticipates pursuing a performance-oriented approach that will allow employees the flexibility to develop appropriate individual programs tailored to their particular workplace conditions.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 15

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This standard would establish requirements for the MSHA testing, evaluation and approval of electric detonators for use in underground coal mines and certain metal and nonmetal gassy mines. At the present time there are no industry-wide standards to establish minimum performance requirements for detonators. Regulations governing the technical characteristics and performance of detonators would ensure compatibility for safe use with approved blasting units and approved explosives as required by underground coal mine standards. Some imported detonators that have entered the market during the past few years require an initiating current that exceeds the tested capacity of MSHA approved blasting units making them incompatible with approved blasting units. Other detonators tested by the Bureau of Mines showed reduced no-fire current levels which present a greater sensitivity to stray electrical current and could result in premature detonation.

Abstract: Conveyor belts are one of the leading causes of fires in underground coal mines. These mines often use many miles of conveyor belts. The remote location of the belts can allow fires to start and spread to the coal before they are detected. MSHA has developed a new more stringent test to evaluate the flame- resistance of conveyor belts. Belts passing the revised test would be resistant to ignition and to flame propagation. This proposal would revise the current approval regulations and require compliance with the test.

Abstract: In the January 25, 1988 Report of Progress to Implement Federal Guidelines for Dam Safety made by MSHA to the Federal Emergency Management Agency, MSHA's inventory of dams associated with metal/nonmetal mining operations showed a total of 550 dams. Thirty-six of these dams were given a high hazard classification based primarily on the U.S. Corps of Engineers classification system. Thirty-three were classified moderate hazards. A high hazard classification indicates there is a potential for loss of life or property damage downstream due to the floodwater released as a result of dam failure, or upstream of the dam from the effects of rise slides.

1752. WATERLINES IN BELT CONVEYOR ENTRIES

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.1100-2(b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Current regulations require waterlines be installed along all belt

conveyors with nozzles installed at least every 300 feet. Potential firefighting problems exist, however, when air used to ventilate belt conveyor entries moves in an outby direction. Waterlines that are installed in belt entries where air is moving outby would be exposed to the fire outby the area where water is needed. Heat from the fire could melt or otherwise damage the waterline, necessitating the installation of a separate waterline around the fire delaying the firefighting effort. The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) in its current committee proposal states that the operator can install waterlines in any entry and recommends that the water flowing through the lines be in the same direction as the ventilating air current. MSHA proposes to revise the current regulations pertaining to waterlines for underground belt conveyors to require installation similar to that proposed by the NFPA.

Abstract: The existing standard requires that compressed-air receiver and other unfired pressure vessels be inspected by inspectors holding a valid National Board Commission issued by the National Board of Boiler and Pressure Vessel Inspectors. The standard also incorporates by reference the National Board Inspection Code, a manual for Boiler and Pressure Vessel Inspectors, 1979 and requires that the records of these inspections be kept in accordance with the National Board Inspection Code. The Agency intends to review this standard to determine whether qualified individuals other than those Board certified can be allowed to perform these inspections without reducing miners' safety, whether the incorporations of the Code by reference is appropriate, and what is the appropriate format for the results of the inspections.

1754. CARBON MONOXIDE MONITOR APPROVAL

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 12

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The use of carbon monoxide monitoring systems in underground coal mines can be effective in monitoring mine atmospheres to detect fires in the early stages of development. If mine operators are dependent on these systems for early fire detection, minimum performance criteria are necessary to ensure proper performance. The Agency intends to propose approval requirements for these systems for use in underground coal mines.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.1101 to 23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Currently 30 CFR 75.1101-23 requires each operator of an underground coal mine to adopt a program for mine evacuation in the event of an emergency, such as fire or explosion. However, the existing standard does not directly address heat sensing and carbon monoxide detection systems and the actions to be taken when such systems activate an alarm. In addition, regular review and update of firefighting and evacuation plans is not required by the existing standard. This rulemaking would result in additional criteria and procedures to address these issues.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MSHA's proposal substantially reorganized, clarified, and updated existing electrical standards for underground coal mines. General incorporations by reference of the National Electric Code would be eliminated and replaced with specific standards applicable to underground coal mining operations. The proposal addresses a wide range of hazards related to the use of electric-powered equipment. In developing the proposal MSHA analyzed: (1) accident and injury data to determine the causes and rate of accidents involving electricity and the need to revise standards to prevent future accidents; (2) variances granted to determine whether alternative methods of compliance could be included in the standards; (3) nationally recognized consensus standards, including the National Electrical Code, for applicability to underground coal mines; (4) litigation cases related to the Agency's enforcement efforts to determine where clarified standards could improve compliances, and (5) public comments submitted on the Agency's 1986 ANPRM on underground electrical standards.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.300

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Agency published a proposed rule concerning ventilation in underground mines which included provisions for the introduction of new technology for systematic monitoring of explosive methane gas, as well as gases that may indicate a mine fire. Other important issues include ventilation of worked-out areas; timeframes for tests for methane. In August 1988, MSHA issued a report on belt conveyor entry ventilation and requested comments on the findings of the report as they related to the ventilation proposal. The existing escapeway standards contained in 30 CFR Part 75.1704 are incorporated into the proposal.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

DOL—MSHA

Final Rule Stage

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.1909

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On November 15, 1988, the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) published a final rule (53 FR 45708) to revise its safety standards for explosives and blasting in underground coal mines. Prior to the effective date, MSHA stayed 30 CFR 75.1325(b) which restricts blasting to only one face in a working place to allow further review of single versus multiple face blasting. MSHA's proposed rule would allow multiface blasting under limited conditions; recognize an alternative method of giving experience for blasting certification; and clarify a provision concerning precautions to be taken with electrical equipment in blasting areas.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811; 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 7; 30 CFR 70; 30 CFR 75

Abstract: MSHA has an established mining equipment approval program which includes evaluation criteria and corresponding safety standards requiring the use and maintenance of approved equipment. However, existing approval regulations do not generally apply to the diesel-powered equipment now being used in coal mines. In July 1988 an Advisory Committee convened by the Secretary of Labor made recommendations to the Secretary concerning standards for the use of diesel-powered equipment in underground coal mines. Based on those recommendations, MSHA has published a proposed rule that addresses the approval of components and standards for its use, including monitoring requirements for certain diesel emissions. The Advisory Committee also recommended that an approval program be established for equipment safety features beyond the basic engine and power package. These features could include such components as the fuel system, exhaust gas dilution system, electrical system, braking system and fire suppression system. With the proposal, MSHA published an ANPRM requesting comment on what approach should be taken on the recommendations.

Abstract: MSHA is reviewing its radiation standards for underground metal and nonmetal mines and has identified certain issues with respect to regulatory action. The Agency published a proposal in December 1986 revising its existing ionizing radiation standards. Public hearings were held in August 1987. Extensive testimony was presented during the public hearings. The rulemaking also takes into account the receipt of the NIOSH criteria document in October 1987 and recently promulgated EPA regulations concerning underground emissions of radionuclides.

Abstract: Under the 1977 Mine Act, MSHA and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) jointly approve respirators for use in hazardous atmospheres. New technology has been developed which would not be allowed by the existing regulations. NIOSH will have the lead role in approval of respirators. MSHA will be involved with the devices which are uniquely adapted or required for mining. A proposed rule was published in August 1987. Abstract: On July 10, 1987, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia invalidated the Agency's existing interim relief regulation based in part, on procedural defects, holding that it was contrary to Congressional intent. (Int. Union v. MSHA, 823 F. 2d 606 (D.C. Cir. 1987)). MSHA subsequently issued a proposal addressing the Court's ruling and adding timeframes for consideration of petitions at all stages of review. Abstract: MSHA's proposed rule incorporates permissible exposure limits which are applicable to the hazards encountered in metal and nonmetal mines and coal mines. The proposal solicits comments on updating permissible exposure limits and methods of controlling such limits. Permissible exposure limits and standards for use of respiratory protective equipment would replace outdated incorporations by reference. The proposal would also update asbestos standards. Other issues being considered are: requirements for exposure monitoring; precautions for handling restricted-use chemicals; notification to workers of overexposure; miner access to exposure monitoring records; medical surveillance and transfer of miners required to use respirators and miners using certain carcinogens.

1769. PATTERN OF VIOLATIONS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 814(e); 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 104

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would implement section 104(e) of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977 which addresses mines with a pattern of repeated, significant and substantial violations. The final rule will include both appropriate criteria and a meaningful procedure for identifying operators who are potential pattern violators. The costs of the regulations would primarily bear upon individual mine operators receiving pattern notices. Any costs that the mine operator would incur to comply with other Federal standards would be attributed to those standards. The primary benefit of the pattern of violators provisions would accrue to workers at mines where the mine operator has shown a disregard for their safety and health by allowing the same work hazards to repeatedly occur without addressing the underlying problems. Hearings were held in November 1988.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 56; 30 CFR 57

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On August 25, 1988 the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) amended its standard addressing the use of berms and guardrails on elevated roadways at metal and nonmetal mines. However, MSHA stayed the provision which allows an alternative to the use of berms or guardrails on elevated roadways for infrequently traveled roadways used by service or maintenance vehicles. MSHA's proposed rule addressed safety requirements necessary for such limited use roadways when berms or guardrails are not used.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: OMB Circular A-110

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 97

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On March 11, 1988 a common final rule was published which implemented OMB Circular A-102, Administrative Requirements for Grants and Cooperative Agreements with State and Local governments. OMB and DHHS have prepared a proposed common rule and revised Circular A-110 to conform the grants management requirements for non-governmental grantees with government grants. The common rule already published on governmental grantees will be amended to incorporate non-governmental grants.

1776. ● PEL UPDATE

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Not Yet Determined

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The 1989 Air Contaminants rulemaking, in which OSHA simultaneously regulated exposure limits for nearly 400 substances based on the recommendations of expert organizations, was a fast and effective way of protecting workers in general industry. While substance-specific standards may be appropriate for some substances, they have traditionally been resource-consuming rulemakings both in terms of the Federal time and dollars spent on individual substances and in terms of the litigation efforts expended by the public and the government. Using existing resources, OSHA can regulate more chemicals and provide protection for more workers by revising the Z Table at regular intervals to establish permissible exposure limits (PELs), and by using substance-specific standards only in those cases where complex issues or the nature of the risk necessitate additional protection. OSHA plans to establish a program to revise the Z Table on a regular basis.

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1918.10; 29 CFR 1918, (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The purpose of this regulatory action would be to update and revise a standard first issued in 1960. The current language in many instances addresses the hazards of cargo handling involving methods long since abandoned, and fails to address the serious hazards of newer methods. Because much of the current standard is out of date, there are problems with compliance. These revised requirements will provide both employers and employees with a blueprint for effective and safe workpractices in the cargo handling industry. No alternative other than revision is contemplated. The annual cost of the revision is expected to be minimal – less than five million dollars.

Abstract: OSHA proposes to revise and update its existing Subpart Q covering welding, cutting and brazing operations, and to develop performance-oriented standards designed to reduce the number of deaths and injuries due to unsafe equipment and unsafe operations. CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1048

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present occupational health standard for formaldehyde was published on December 4, 1987 (52 FR 46168). In this standard, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) required hazard warning labels to be placed on containers of all products composed of greater than 0.1 percent formaldehyde or capable of releasing formaldehyde into the air under any normal condition of use at concentrations reaching or exceeding 0.1 ppm. Material safety data sheets, prepared in accordance with paragraph (g) of the Hazard Communication Standard (29 CFR 1910.1200), were also required. On December 2, 1987, the Formaldehyde Institute filed an Application for Administrative Stay of the Formaldehyde Standard's cancer labeling requirement. On November 8, 1988, OSHA requested comments on whether to grant a petition for administrative stay of these provisions and whether to institute additional rulemaking. Based primarily on the comments received, OSHA stayed the provision at 29 CFR 1910.1048 (m)(1)(i) through (m)(4)(ii) for a period of (cont)

Abstract: On October 10, 1985, EPA referred 1,3-butadiene (BD) to OSHA for possible regulatory action under section 9(a) of the Toxic Substance Control Act. On April 11, 1986, OSHA responded to the EPA referral indicating that the Agency has preliminarily concluded that BD poses risk to the occupationally exposed population at the current OSHA permissible exposure limit and that the risk can be reduced or prevented through the promulgation of a revised standard. On October 1, 1988 (51 FR 35003), OSHA published an ANPRM initiating regulatory action within the meaning of section 9(a) of TSCA. Comments were submitted to OSHA by December 30, 1988.Based on the comments received in response to the ANPRM OSHA developed a proposal which was published on August 10, 1990.

Abstract: On May 20, 1986, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued a report to OSHA, under Section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, stating that EPA has reasonable basis to conclude that the risk of injury to worker health from exposure to four glycol ethers during their manufacture, processing and use is unreasonable, and that this risk may be prevented or reduced to a significant extent by OSHA regulatory action. EPA gave OSHA 180 days in which to respond to its report. OSHA published its response on December 11, 1986, stating that OSHA had preliminarily concluded that occupational exposures to the subject glycol ethers at the current OSHA permissible exposure limits may present significant risks to the health of workers. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) on April 2, 1987. (52 FR 10586). OSHA will use the information received in response to the ANPRM, as well as other information and analysis, to prepare a proposed standard.

Abstract: In July 1985, OSHA was petitioned by the United Automobile, Aerospace and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW) to issue a hazard alert; issue an emergency temporary standard; and to begin work on a new permanent standard for methylene chloride (DCM). This request was based on information obtained from the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Toxicology Program indicating that DCM is an animal carcinogen and may have the potential to cause cancer in humans. In November 1985, OSHA notified the UAW that its petition had been granted, in part, and denied, in part. Specifically, OSHA issued a set of guidelines for controlling occupational exposure to DCM and OSHA denied that portion of the petition requesting the issuance of an emergency temporary standard. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on November 24, 1986 (51 FR 42257).

Abstract: On January 19, 1989, OSHA modified (54 FR 2332) the Z table permissible exposure limits of 29 CFR 1910.1000 in response to current scientific data. Section 6(b) of the Act requires where appropriate, provision for medical surveillance in each 6(b) rulemaking for a harmful substance. A generic standard for medical surveillance would satisfy the requirements of the Act thus enabling the Agency to deal directly with the narrower issues of the revision of the tables. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on September 27, 1988, (53 FR 37505) to acquire additional information. OSHA also intends to review its compliance experience with medical surveillance provisions and seek experienced medical opinion in the form of a symposium or other public discussion. In addition, OSHA initiated a survey in 1990 to collect information regarding the prevalence and effectiveness of current medical surveillance programs.

Section 6(b)(7) of the Act requires provisions for exposure monitoring for each substance undergoing 6(b) rulemaking. Abstract: Standards in 29 CFR Part 1910, Subpart H, which address the storage, handling and use of hazardous materials, such as compressed gases, acetylene, hydrogen, oxygen, liquified petroleum gases, and flammable and combustible liquids, will be revised. This regulatory action will provide a new approach to the revision of Subpart H and will occur in three phases in an expanded timeframe. The three phases will be (1) Process Hazards Management, (2) Flammable and Compressed Gases, and, (3) Hazardous Liquids. The first phase of the proposed action is intended to better protect employees from unexpected releases of significant quantities of dangerous substances. The remaining phases are intended to simplify, clarify and consolidate standards on hazardous materials and assist employers and employees in general industry to better understand and better focus on the hazards inherent in the use, handling, and storage of such materials.

Abstract: This regulatory action will complete the consolidation and updating of Parts 1915 and 1910 by providing shipyard employees with coverage under one comprehensive OSHA standard. This revision effort will involve the promulgation of 20 maritime subparts. Its completion will be done in stages and will relieve shipyard owners from the burden of having comply with two sets of rules that are complex, prescriptive, confusing and, in some cases, conflicting. OSHA has established an Advisory Committee to assist the Agency is reviewing and revising these subparts. Experts from government, industry, unions and the states are working with OSHA on this project. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Occupational Safety and Health Act, Section 8(c)(2) and 24(a)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1904.1 to .22

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Occupational Safety and Health Act and 29 CFR 1904 require covered employers to record all work-related fatalities, illnesses and certain injuries; to report work-related fatality, and multiple hospitalization accidents; and report summary data if selected to participate in the BLS annual survey. Concerns about the reliability and utility of the data currently available have been raised by Congress, BLS, OSHA, NIOSH, the National Academy of Sciences, the GAO and representatives of business and labor. This regulatory requirement is a Federal statutory provision. It implements Sections 8(c)(2) and 24(a) of the OSH Act. For those States that operate their own safety and health plan under the States that operate their own safety and health plan under the OSHA, 29 CFR 1952.4 prescribes that they adopt recordkeeping and reporting regulations which are substantially identical to 29 CFR 1904. Thus, Federal regulation provides a comprehensive framework consistent with the statutory purposes. BLS and OSHA have tested several data collection vehicles and procedures and are revising the recordkeeping guidelines to improve the usefulness of the survey outputs.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Not Yet Determined

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The permissible exposure limits (PELS) promulgated by OSHA in 1971 do not reflect current knowledge of the health effects of many toxic substances. OSHA published a proposal on June 7, 1988 (53 FR 20960) to amend and expand the PELs for general industry. On January 19, 1989 OSHA set new PELs for the toxic substances originally covered in 1971 and covered new substances in a single rulemaking that applied to general industry. OSHA now plans to update the old PELs for construction, maritime, and possible agricultural sectors not covered by the general industry proceeding. The PELs for these sectors are outdated: the construction industry (29 CFR 1926) references the 1970 ACGIH TLVs; the maritime industry cites three different references—29 CFR 1918 (longshoring), "dangerous gaseous contaminants not immediately dangerous to life" and "heavy concentrations of dusts." In addition, in the agricultural section, OSHA will consider the fact that chemicals and pesticides are currently regulated by EPA. As a result of this rulemaking, OSHA expects that a unified table of PELs for toxic substances will be adopted for all industries.

DOL—OSHA

Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: OSHA currently has no general regulation requiring that employers train their employees in the safe operation of motor vehicles on the job, including the required use of seat belts, although motor vehicle crashes are the single largest cause of occupational fatalities. On-the-job motor vehicle crashes, in both on-road and off-road vehicles, caused over 20 percent of traumatic work-related fatalities in 1987. In the manufacturing sector, which is the primary target of most OSHA regulations, more workers are killed by motor vehicles than by fixed machinery. The hazards faced by workers operating automobiles and trucks, both on public highways and at private facilities, could be greatly reduced by requiring employers to train their employees in safe driving techniques, including the required use of seat belts. OSHA plans to proceed with a single NPRM that would regulate all employers covered by the OSH Act. The approach will be to develop a generic, performance-oriented standard. 1792. CONTROL OF HAZARDOUS ENERGY (LOCKOUT/TAGOUT)—CONSTRUCTION (PART 1926)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 653(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Hazards at construction sites resulting from the absence of effective lockout/tagout procedures to control hazardous energy appear to be caused by several factors, all associated with the nature of the construction industry. These factors basically relate to such considerations as the types of machines and equipment found in construction; the makeup of the industry in which employment is relatively "short term," lasting only as long as the length of the current project; the presence of multiple employers having different employer/employee relationships and the temporary nature of the "in-the-field" maintenance activity. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) expects the proposal to address lockout-related hazards in those construction work-site areas in which the available data indicate these hazards to be significant. Regulatory options involve developing a comprehensive standard covering all potentially hazardous energy sources. OSHA will consider the use of the construction advisory committee to assist in the development of this standard.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.156

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Fighting fires as members of fire brigades presents a significant risk of harm to employees. Fire fighting continues to be one of the Nation's most hazardous occupations. To mitigate these risks OSHA promulgated a standard for fire brigades in 1910. However, this standard is now over 100 years old and does not reflect current advances in technology and safety, particularly with respect to personal protective equipment. Also, the current standard does not address wildland firefighting or crash-rescue firefighting. OSHA intends to revise and update the fire brigade standard to reflect current advances in technology and safety, and to address both wildland firefighting and crash-rescue firefighting.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.178

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Nationally, fatalities due to unsafe operation of industrial vehicles and equipment account for approximately 12 percent of the private sector fatalities. This is the second leading cause of fatalities in the private sector, behind only highway vehicle fatalities. The present standard has proven to be ineffective in reducing the number of accidents involving powered industrial trucks. OSHA intends to revise the present standard to increase its effectiveness by requiring, in performance language, initial and refresher training as necessary. The frequency of the refresher training will be based upon the ability of the vehicle operator to retain the knowledge, skills and abilities to perform the job safely. OSHA will also give guidance as to what information the instruction should include. There will also be other amendments to the standard to increase its effectiveness.

Abstract: On June 20, 1986, OSHA issued revised standards governing occupational exposure to asbestos, tremolite, anthophyllite, and actinolite in general industry and in the construction industry. These standards replaced OSHA's previous asbestos standard promulgated in 1972. Since the issuance of the revised standards, OSHA has received letters and petitions, from both rulemaking participants and nonparticipants, that contain additional comments, assertions and information that the rulemaking record may not fully reflect. These letters and petitions concern the appropriateness of regulating nonasbestiform tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite as presenting the same health risk as asbestos. OSHA has granted a temporary stay of the effective dates of the current standards as they apply to nonasbestiform varieties of tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite. This action was taken, in part, to enable the Agency to review letters and memoranda from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health as well as submissions by the R.T. Abstract: OSHA's policy concerning the use of engineering controls and respirators was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief in 1981. Current OSHA regulations require that employers implement feasible engineering controls to maintain air contaminant concentrations in the workplace at or below the prescribed permissible exposure limits. The use of respirators is permitted only in those cases where engineering controls are not feasible, not yet installed, or not adequate. This policy has been criticized as being inflexible, not cost-effective, and often unnecessary for employee health protection. OSHA believes that any changes to the policy for use of engineering controls must be closely coordinated with revisions in the respiratory protection regulations (29 CFR 1910.134). This rulemaking does not address the assessment and reduction of any absolute existing risks, but rather addresses the possible change in risk abatement associated with the use of respirators instead of engineering controls. OSHA published a proposal on June 8, 1988 (54 FR 23881). Hearings were held on May 30-31, 1989, and continued on July 9-10, 1989.

Abstract: Logging is a very hazardous industry. It has an incidence rate nearly twice that of manufacturing, and reflecting the seriousness of the injuries incurred, a lost workday rate nearly four times as high. The purpose of the standard will be to protect workers from the ever-present hazards of chain saw operation, falling objects (trees, branches), rolling or sliding logs, falls from trees, and materials handling accidents. At present there is no OSHA standard specifically applicable to logging in general. There is a standard, 29 CFR 1910.266, applicable only to pulpwood logging; however, pulpwood logging is estimated to account for less than half of the logging activity in the United States. Development of a national OSHA standard addressing all types of logging will provide coverage for those loggers not now protected. The new regulation will provide coverage where there is no approved state regulation and will set a minimum safety level for those states that chose to develop a state regulation.

Abstract: 4,4'-Methylenedianiline (MDA) is a chemical used primarily to manufacture methylenediphenyl diisocyanate, which is used to make polyurethane foams and elastomers. Recent scientific data indicate that MDA is a carcinogen in animals and a potential carcinogen in humans. In 1983, OSHA and the Environmental Protection Agency participated in a joint effort to publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking to solicit information on MDA production and use, estimates of environmental and occupational exposure, and studies of its toxic and carcinogenic effects. EPA evaluated the data received in response to the advance notice and concluded that the chemical presents an unreasonable risk of injury to the health of exposed workers. Under the provisions of section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, EPA referred MDA to OSHA for action. OSHA responded to the EPA referral on 2/28/86. OSHA established a mediated rulemaking advisory committee composed of interested parties from labor, industry and government to assist the agency in developing a proposed standard. Abstract: A major area of coverage not addressed in the current OSHA electrical standards for general industry (29 CFR 1910) involves the maintenance and operation practices associated with electrical transmission and distribution lines, substations and generating stations. It is intended that the proposed standard fill this void by establishing minimum requirements for electrical safety work practices for qualified employees working on or near installations whose purpose is the generation and distribution of electricity.The proposal also revises the standards for electrical protective equipment, which is used routinely for electrical power work.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b); 33 USC 941

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1915.71; 29 CFR 1910.28; 29 CFR 1910.29

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulatory action will revise the existing shipyard standards covering scaffolds and will consolidate all related and applicable 29 CFR 1910 provisions into 29 CFR 1915. The revision will develop, in part, performance-oriented standards, address current gaps in coverage, address new technology, and eliminate outmoded and redundant provisions.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing standards for eye, face, head, and foot protection reference outdated national consensus standards which have been updated and improved. Consequently, criteria for personal protective equipment for eye, face, head, and foot would be revised to reflect improved developments in these types of equipment. This would allow the use of better personal protective equipment and would result in improved employee protection from eye, face, head, and foot hazards.

Abstract: OSHA promulgated a final rule on August 24, 1987, that extended the protections of its Hazard Communication Standard (HCS) from the manufacturing sector to all other workplaces where employees are exposed to hazardous chemicals. The HCS requires covered employers to establish hazard communication programs for their employees, including labels on containers, material safety data sheets, and training programs. On August 8, 1988, OSHA published a NPRM to modify the final rule, and provide an opportunity for public comment. Public comments have been received, hearings have been held, and OSHA will prepare a final rule based on the public record for this standard, including the record developed in earlier rulemakings. OSHA published a request for information (RFI) on May 17, 1990, (55 FR 20580) to improve the quality and representation of the information provided on the MSDS's and labels and to consider a standardize format. OSHA will determine if the rule should be reopened after the comments and other relevant information are analyzed. The comment period for the RFI expired on August 15, 1990.

1815. BLOODBORNE PATHOGENS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Many health-care workers are exposed to blood and body fluids from patients who have active bloodborne infections or are carriers of these infections. Such exposure presents a potential risk of disease for the health-care worker. One such disease, Hepatitis B, has been shown to present a substantially increased risk for health-care workers. Hepatitis B is a serious disease that may require hospitalization and, in a small percentage of cases, is fatal. Another bloodborne disease, Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is also of great concern to health-care workers. Only a very small number of infections, however, have been documented to have resulted from occupational exposure to the virus that causes AIDS. About half of the nation's 6 million health-care workers are at increased risk from exposure to bloodborne infectious diseases. (cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: Some examples of health-care workers at highest risk are emergency room workers, dialysis unit workers, operating room personnel, intensive care unit workers, and blood bank employees. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has no standard specifically regulating occupational exposure to bloodborne infectious diseases. In 1983, the Agency issued guidelines for reducing the occupational risk of Hepatitis B infection (OSHA Instruction CPL 2-2.36). These guidelines are voluntary, however. In September 1988, OSHA was petitioned by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and other unions for the issuance of an emergency temporary standard to protect workers from occupational exposure to bloodborne infectious diseases, such as hepatitis B and AIDS. On May 30, 1989, OSHA published its proposal in the Federal Register (54 FR 23042). The proposal generated over 2900 comments and hearings were held in Washington, DC, Chicago, New York City, Miami, Florida, and San Francisco. OSHA will review the comments and the testimony presented at the hearings to determine the scope and provisions of a final rule.

1218. CADMIUM

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910, (Table Z-2)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On June 18, 1986, the International Chemical Workers Union and the Public Citizen Health Research Group petitioned OSHA to issue an emergency temporary standard reducing the permissible exposure limit for cadmium to one microgram of cadmium per cubic meter of air. On June 25, 1987 the union and HRG filed a petition with the Court of Appeals requesting the Court to order OSHA to promulgate an ETS. In its July 1, 1987, response to the petitioners, OSHA stated that issuance of an emergency standard was not warranted, but that exposure to cadmium at levels permitted under the current standard represented a significant risk to worker health which would be addressed through section 6(b) rulemaking procedures. On September 28, 1988, OSHA published guidelines fot controlling exposure to cadmium and recommended reduced exposure levels significantly below the permissible exposure limit. OSHA published a proposal on February 6, 1990 (55 FR 4052), and conducted hearings on June 5, 1990, in Washington, DC and on July 17, 1990, in Denver, CO.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1001; 29 CFR 1926.58

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On June 20, 1986, OSHA published revised standards governing occupational exposure to asbestos, tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite in general industry and construction. In these standards, OSHA reduced the 8-hour time weighted average (TWA) permissible exposure limit (PEL) to 0.2 f/oc, and established other protective provisions. This standard was legally challenged, and as a result, the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upheld the standard except that the court held that OSHA must reconsider several of the standard's provisions to determine if more protective regulatory provisions are available to reduce risk. One of the issues to be reconsidered was the need for a short-term limit for occupational exposure to asbestos in response to the Court's directive. This limit was established as 1 f/cc averaged over a 30-minute sampling period and a legal notification of this amendment was published on September 14, 1988, at 53 FR 35610. (cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: On December 20, 1989 (54 FR 52024) OSHA responded to the first three remand issues. OSHA deleted the ban on spraying asbestos containing materials; amended the regulatory text to clarify when construction employers must resume periodic monitoring; and explained why OSHA is not amending the regulatory text to clarify the limited exemption for "small-scale, short-duration operations" in the construction industry standard. OSHA published a notice of its resolution of Category II remand issues on February 5, 1990, and a notice of proposed rulemaking for Category III on July 20, 1990 (55 FR 29712).

On October 4, 1990 (55 FR 40676), OSHA announced the reopening of the rulemaking record on non-asbestiform tremolite, anthophyllite, and actinolite to allow for the submission of comments and analyses on a recent document submitted to the agency by the American Thoracic Society (ATS).

Abstract: Public Law 99-499 requires the Secretary of Labor to promulgate a final standard for Hazardous Waste Operations and Emergency Response. The final standard was issued on March 6, 1989. Section 126 of Public Law 99-499 was amended by Congress on December 22, 1987 to require the Secretary of Labor to include in the final rule a training course certification program at least as comprehensive as the EPA's model program for asbestos abatement in public buildings. This proposed revision would add criteria and requirements for training course certification of training for workers involved in hazardous waste operations.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 653; 29 USC 655; 29 USC 657

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1990

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Carcinogen Policy describes the criteria and procedures OSHA will use to identify, classify, and then regulate carcinogens. The Policy also establishes a process for screening chemicals and for setting priorities for potential rulemaking activities. The Carcinogen Policy explicitly recognizes that periodic revisions are necessary in order to incorporate the latest scientific advances and techniques into the regulatory process. Hence, it is time for OSHA to review and modernize the carcinogen policy. The original standard was issued in 1980 before the Supreme Court "benzene" decision on significant risk. Thereafter, a final rule deleting provisions of the Carcinogen Policy that were inconsistent with the benzene decision was published on 1/19/81 (46 FR 4866). A proposal was published on 1/23/81 (46 FR 7402) to permit alternatives to the risk analysis section of the carcinogen policy to be addressed. The proposal was withdrawn on 3/27/81 (46 FR 19000). An advance notice of proposed rulemaking was published on 1/5/82 (47 FR 187) with comments due by 4/5/82. That document (cont)

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

Abstract: Recent scientific studies have reported that ethylene dibromide causes cancer when administered orally, by inhalation and by skin application in laboratory animals. In addition, other studies have shown the chemical to be a mutagen, teratogen and testicular toxin in experimental animals. On the basis of these reports, OSHA has determined that its current permissible exposure limit of 20 ppm does not provide exposed workers adequate protection against cancer and other adverse health effects. A proposed standard for ethylene dibromide was published 10/07/83 (48 FR 45956). Public hearings were held in February 1984. OSHA is currently in the process of decisionmaking on the provisions to be included in the final standard.

Abstract: Employees in oil and gas well drilling and servicing are exposed to a variety of safety hazards which are not specifically covered by present OSHA safety standards. It has proved difficult to apply the existing general industry standards to control the unique nature of this industry. OSHA is considering a standard which will address the unique problems of oil and gas well drilling and servicing. OSHA is reevaluating its proposed rule based on the public record and intends to reissue a proposed rule as the next action. Currently, OSHA is reviewing recent fatality and injury data trends to evaluate the priority of this project.

Abstract: OSHA has amended its standard for occupational exposure to benzene by reducing the permissible exposure limit from 10 parts benzene per million parts of air (10 ppm) to an eight-hour time-weighted average of 1 ppm and by adding appropriate industrial hygiene and medical surveillance provisions necessary for the protection of employee health. This action is based on OSHA's determination that the amendments are needed to reduce the risk of leukemia and other adverse health effects associated with occupational exposure to benzene. OSHA published its final amendment to the standard on September 11, 1987. Due to technical problems associated with the completion of a detailed study of feasibility in barge and tanker cleaning and repair operations, however, OSHA exempted these operations from certain provisions of the standard. OSHA intends to issue a proposal to amend the benzene standard which will address the factors specific to the barge and tanker cleaning and repair industry.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.261 (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulatory action will revise the existing standards covering mills whose pulp, paper, and paperboard are manufactured and converted. The revision will develop performance oriented standards that address current gaps in coverage, the use of new technology, the elimination of outmoded or redundant provisions, and the use of appropriate OSHA general industry standards.

Abstract: The Nation's number one injury problem is back injuries. These injuries account for one of five compensation claims and one of four dollars expended for compensation. The purpose of the proposed request for comments and information is to enable OSHA to determine a course of action--possibly either rulemaking or informal guidance-aimed at reducing the number of back-related injuries which result from improper manual lifting. The request will identify a number of approaches to improving manual lifting, and invite public comments and suggestions. Specific engineering and administrative controls should reduce the pain, suffering, and lost time of the workforce as well as reduce the associated economic costs.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655; 29 USC 941

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1919, (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In its May 7, 1987, Federal Register notice the Agency requested information to assist in the possible revision of 29 CFR Part 1919. Part 1919, entitled "Gear Certification," implements requirements located in each of OSHA's maritime standards which cover work carried out within the Federal maritime jurisdiction. Changes in the design and composition of cargo handling gear which have evolved since these rules were last amended (1960) provided questions as to the efficacy of the current rules. Additionally, the Agency sought comments that would suggest ways in which the administrative function of the accreditation program could be improved. Comment period ended: August 5, 1987.

Abstract: On December 4, 1987, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) published a revised standard for occupational exposure to formaldehyde, 29 CFR 1910.1048. This standard contained permissible exposure limits of 1 part formaldehyde per million parts of air (ppm) as an 8-hour time-weighted average (TWA) and 2 ppm as a 15-minute short-term exposure limit (STEL), along with ancillary provisions. Several interested parties petitioned the courts to review this standard, and on June 9, 1988, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit issued a decision. The Court remanded the standard back to the Agency for reconsideration of two issues: the assessment of the risk of cancer at 1 ppm, and the failure of the Agency to require medical removal protection (MRP). Abstract: To revise new Chapter IX of Title 20, CFR, titled Office of the Assistant Secretary for Veterans' Employment and Training, to fully describe the authority and responsibilities for provision of services to veterans through administration of programs and activities carried out through the Veterans' Employment and Training Service (VETS). Revisions are to bring regulations into conformity with 38 U.S.C. Chapter 41,42, and 43, as amended by P.L. 100-323. Previous rulemaking will establish the new 20 CFR Chapter IX, Parts 1000-1099, which are hereby revised. According to PL 100-323, several major provisions must be added to the regulations as follows: a) expand responsibilities of Assistant Secretary for Veterans' Employment and Training; (b) establish position of Regional Administrator for Veterans' Employment and Training; (c) expand duties of Disabled Veterans' Outreach Program Specialists; (d) establish assignment formula and duties for local Veterans; employment Representatives; (cont)

Abstract: The ITAR were first published in their current form in 1955 and have been periodically amended to reflect statutory enactments and to implement foreign policy. The last substantial revision occurred in December 1984. The State Department office which administers the ITAR, the Office of Defense Trade Controls (until recently, the Office of Munitions Control), is continually seeking ways to improve its export control function through clarification and amendment of the ITAR, as necessary. Along these lines, the Department has expanded and plans to expand further the types of transactions which are exempt from its licensing requirements and plans to elaborate its policy for designating items on the U.S. Munitions List. In addition, certain regulatory amendments are currently necessary to implement the Anti-Terrorism and Arms

Interim final rule at 22 CFR Part 136 made effective on June 20, 1988, the effective date of that section of the statute (PL 100-204).

Abstract: This action will amend the DOSAR to prescribe regulations covering disposition of personal property abroad by certain U.S. Government contractors. The regulation implements a general regulation at 22 CFR Part 136 (see 53 FR 23118, June 20, 1988) which was promulgated pursuant to section 186 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1988 and 1989. The DOSAR coverage will be issued as an interim final rule pending adoption on a governmentwide basis, as the statute covers all contractors that enjoy immunities or tax privileges in a foreign country because of their contractual relationship to the U.S. Government. The purpose of the statute is to ensure that contractors do not profit from transactions with persons not entitled to exemptions from import restrictions, duties, or taxes.

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, DOT.

ACTION: Department regulations agenda.

SUMMARY: The regulations agenda is a semiannual summary of all current and projected rulemakings, reviews of existing regulations, and completed actions of the Department. The agenda provides the public with information about the Department of Transportation's regulatory activity. It is expected that this information will enable the public to be more aware of and allow it to more effectively participate in the Department's regulatory activity.

ADDRESSES: The mailing address for the initiating offices of the Department which appear in the agenda is 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590; except for the Federal Aviation Administration, which is located at 800 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20591, and the U.S. Coast Guard, which is located at 2100 2nd Street SW., Washington, DC 20593.

Agenda

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

Improvement of Government regulations is a prime goal of the Bush Administration. There should be no more regulations than necessary, and those that are issued should be simpler, more comprehensible, and less burdensome. Regulations should not be issued without appropriate involvement of the public; once issued, they should be periodically reviewed and revised, as needed, to assure that they continue to meet the needs for which they originally were designed.

To help the Department of Transportation (Department) achieve these goals and in accordance with Executive Order 12291 "Federal Regulation" (46 FR 13193; February 19, 1981) and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures (44 FR 11034; February 26, 1979), the Department prepares a semiannual regulations agenda for publication in the Federal Register. The agenda summarizes all current and projected rulemaking, reviews of existing regulations, and completed actions of the Department. These are matters on which action has begun or is projected during the succeeding 12 months or such longer period as may be anticipated or for which action has been completed since the last agenda.

The agendas are based on reports submitted by the initiating offices in January and July each year. After these reports are consolidated for and reviewed by the Department Regulations Council, the Department's regulations agenda is prepared and published in the Federal Register. The Department's last agenda was published in the Federal Register on April 23, 1990 (55 FR 16420). The next one is scheduled for publication in the Federal Register in April 1991.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

In 1980, Congress passed the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA), Pub. L. 96-354, which requires the designation of those regulations for which a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared; i.e., those regulations that would have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. A Regulatory Flexibility Analysis is required for a rulemaking which, in the heading "Small Entities Affected," indicates an effect on small businesses, governmental jurisdictions, or organizations. If a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared for a particular rulemaking, that fact also will be noted under the heading "Analysis."

The RFA also requires that, each year, the Department publish a list of those regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and are to be reviewed under the Act during the succeeding 12 months. The agenda includes those regulations to be reviewed under the RFA or those for which review has been concluded since the last agenda. However, it should be noted that, after a preliminary assessment of the regulations listed for RFA review, it may be found that the regulations, in fact, do not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, and a full RFA review will be unnecessary.

Regulatory Impact Analysis

A preliminary and final Regulatory Impact Analysis is required for each proposed and final regulation, respectively, that

(1) Is likely to result in:

(a) An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;

(b) a major effect on the general economy in terms of costs, consumer prices, or production;

(c) a major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, State, or local government agencies; or geographic regions;

(d) significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets; or

(2) the Secretary or head of the initiating office has determined requires such an analysis.

Definitions

The agenda covers all rules and regulations of the Department, including those that establish conditions for financial assistance. The following definitions are provided for ease in understanding the information in this document.

(1) Initiating office means an operating administration or other organizational element within the Department, the head of which is authorized by law or delegation to issue regulations or to formulate regulations for issuance by the Secretary.

(2) Significant regulation means a regulation that is not an emergency regulation and that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office or the Secretary or the Deputy Secretary,

(a) Is a major regulation;

(b) concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest or controversy;

(c) has a major impact on another operating administration or other parts of the Department or other Federal agency;

(d) has a substantial effect on State and local governments;

(e) has a substantial impact on a major transportation safety problem;

(f) initiates a substantial regulatory program or change in policy;

(g) is substantially different from international requirements or standards; or

(h) otherwise involves important Department policy.

(3) Major regulation means a significant regulation for which a Regulatory Impact Analysis is required to be prepared.

(4) Emergency regulation means (a) a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, circumstances require to be issued without notice and opportunity for public comment or made effective in less than 30 days after publication in the Federal Register or (b) is governed by short-term statutory or judicial deadlines.

(5) Nonsignificant regulation means a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, is neither a significant nor an emergency regulation.

Explanation of Information on the Agenda

The format for this agenda is required by Office of Management and Budget Bulletin No. 90-16 (July 2, 1990).

First, the agenda is divided by initiating offices. Then, in accordance with the OMB Bulletin, for each initiating office, the agenda is divided into four categories: (1) Prerule stage, (2) proposed rule stage, (3) final rule stage, and (4) completed actions. For each entry, the agenda provides the following information: (1) The "significance" of the action (i.e., whether it is significant because it is on the Regulatory Program or because of agency priority or whether it is nonsignificant or routine and frequent); (2) a short descriptive title; (3) the legal basis for the action being taken or the regulation being reviewed; (4) the related regulatory citation in the Code of Federal Regulations; (5) an indication of any legal deadline and, if so, for what type of action (e.g., NPRM, final rule); (6) an abstract of the review or the proposed or final regulation; (7) a timetable, including the earliest expected date for a decision, on whether to issue the proposed or final regulation or complete the review and determine the corrective action to be taken. (The action taken can be revocation or revision of the regulation, or it can be a determination that no regulatory action is necessary because the regulation is found to be achieving its goals and the goals and objectives of Executive Order 12291 and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures.); (8) an indication as to whether the rulemaking will affect small entities and/or levels of government and which categories of small entities or governments will be impacted; (9) if there is information that does not fit in the other categories, it will be included under a separate heading entitled, "Additional Information"; (10) a listing, where determined, of any analyses an initiating office will prepare or has prepared for the rulemaking document; e.g., a Regulatory Impact Analysis or Evaluation, an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis, or an Urban Impact Analysis. (It should be noted that, even though a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not required for some items on the agenda, the Department requires an economic analysis for all of its regulations. This economic analysis is contained in the Regulatory Evaluation, if a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not prepared.); (11) an agency contact office or official who can provide further information, including advice on how to obtain documents referenced in the agenda; and (12) a Regulation Identifier Number (RIN) assigned to identify an individual rulemaking in the agenda and facilitate tracing further action on the issue in the Federal Register which may occur between agenda publications. (Departmental rulemaking documents published in the Federal Register now contain RIN numbers.)

For nonsignificant regulations issued routinely and frequently as a part of an established body of technical requirements (such as the Federal Aviation Administration's Airspace Rules), to keep those requirements operationally current, only the general category of the regulations, the identity of a contact office or official, and an indication of the expected number of regulations are included; individual regulations are not listed.

If a regulatory docket number has already been established, it may be provided under the "Additional Information" heading. If a member of the public desires further information regarding a particular proposal or regulation, reference should be made to this docket number.

In the "Timetable" column, abbreviations are used to indicate the particular documents being considered for issuance by that date. ANPRM stands for Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, SNPRM for Supplemental Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, NPRM for Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and FR for Final Rule. Listing a future date in this column is not an indication that a proposed or a final rule will be issued on that date; it is the earliest date on which a decision is expected to be made on whether to issue the document listed. Submittal of any proposed or final rule to the Office of Management and Budget for review under Executive Order 12291 must follow such a decision. For major rules, this review could take 60 days or more. If any document is issued, publication in the Federal Register would follow within a few days. In addition, these dates are based on current schedules. Information received subsequent to the issuance of this agenda could result in a decision not to take regulatory action or in changes to proposed publication dates. For example, the need for further evaluation could result in a later publication date; evidence of a greater need for the regulation could result in an earlier publication date.

Finally, a dot (●) preceding an entry indicates that the entry appears in the agenda for the first time.

Mailing Lists for Regulatory Documents

To assist the public in obtaining regulatory documents issued within the Department of Transportation, an Appendix A has been included in this document. The appendix contains instructions on how to be placed on mailing lists for or to obtain copies of specific regulatory documents, including the Department's semiannual regulations agenda issued by the operating administrations of the Department and the Office of the Secretary. There is no charge for this service; however, because of the costs involved, the number of copies of a document forwarded to an individual requestor may be limited. Persons already on mailing lists for particular documents within the Department will remain on those lists and should not reapply.

By following the instructions specified in the appendix, a person can be placed on a mailing list for future copies of the Department's regulations agenda, which will be updated and published in the Federal Register every year during April and October. By using the agenda, individuals can determine which Notice or Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, to be issued by elements of the Department, is of interest to them. Then, using the instructions in the appendix, such persons also can be placed on a mailing list to ensure that, after the document of interest is issued, a copy will be mailed to them for their review and comment. In this way, individuals will be relieved of the burden of having to review the Federal Register, perhaps on a daily basis. The Department expects that this process will ensure that those people placed on mailing lists will receive early notice so that their views on the document can be adequately prepared and presented within the established comment period.

General Rulemaking Contact Persons

To assist persons desiring to obtain general information concerning the rulemaking process within the Department's operating administrations, an Appendix B has been added to the agenda. This appendix sets forth the addresses and the telephone numbers of the persons who can respond quickly to requests for general rulemaking information. Please note, however, that questions related to particular rulemaking actions should still be referred to the contact person listed with the particular rulemaking on the agenda.

Public Rulemaking Dockets

To facilitate the inspection of docket files and the submission of comments by the public, an Appendix C sets forth the addresses and working hours for the Rules Docket for each operating administration.

Request for Comments

Agenda

Our agenda is intended primarily for the use of the public. Since its inception, we have made modifications and refinements that we believe provide the public with more helpful information, as well as make the agenda easier to use. We would also like you, the public, to make suggestions or comments on how the agenda could be further improved. For example, do you find the information presented in an easily understandable manner? Do you find it easy to follow a regulation's development from agenda to agenda? Do you find that the format for setting out the information enables you to use the agenda easily? Do you find that the presentation of the information in the agenda is clearly explained in the preamble to the agenda? Your responses to these questions or any other comments or suggestions you may have should be sent to Neil R. Eisner, whose address appears above.

Reviews

In an effort to comply further with the spirit of Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, we are also seeking suggestions on existing regulations that should be included in our review of existing regulations; that is, which existing regulations issued by an operating administration of the Department or the Office of the Secretary do you believe need to be reviewed to determine whether they should be revised or revoked? The Department is particularly interested in obtaining information on requirements that have a "significant economic impact on small entities" and, therefore, must be reviewed under the Regulatory Flexibility Act. If you have any suggested regulations, please send them, along with your explanation of why they should be reviewed, to the concerned operating administration or the Office of the Secretary at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, comments are specifically invited on regulations that are targeted for review under the RFA. Those comments should be addressed to the "contact" person of the operating administration involved at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

Purpose

The Department is publishing this regulations agenda in the Federal Register to share with interested members of the public the Department's preliminary expectations regarding its future regulatory actions. This should enable the public to be more aware of the Department's regulatory activity. Knowledge of the nature and scope of this activity, as well as the specific proposals and reviews being considered, should result in more effective public participation in the Department's regulatory activity. For example, awareness of the dates when notices may be issued seeking public comment should allow appropriate planning and more efficient use of the comment period. By providing the expected date for a decision on whether to issue a final rule, the Department expects that more appropriate planning by those concerned with the regulation will also be possible. This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department or any of the offices within the Department with regard to any specific item on the agenda. Regulatory action, in addition to the items listed, is not precluded. If further information is desired on any of the items listed in the agenda, the public is encouraged to contact the individual listed for the particular item. Additional information concerning the agenda in general or the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures may be obtained from Neil R. Eisner, whose address and telephone number appear above.

Issued in Washington, DC, on August 24, 1990.

Samuel K. Skinner,

Appendix A - Instructions for Obtaining Copies of Regulatory Documents

Some Administrations within the Department differ in procedures or as to inclusion on a mailing list. For the offices listed below, persons desiring to obtain a copy of a specific regulatory document to be issued that is listed in this agenda should communicate, either by telephone or by letter, with the contact person listed with the regulation at the following addresses:

United States Coast Guard (USCG)

Federal Highway Administration (FHWA)

(Name of contact person), Federal Highway Administration, 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590.

Federal Railroad Administration (FRA)

(Name of contact person), Federal Railroad Administration, 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590.

National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA)

(Name of contact person), National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590.

Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA)

(Name of contact person), Urban Mass Transportation Administration, 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590.

Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation (SLSDC)

(Name of contact person), Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, 400 7th Street SW., Room 5424, Washington, DC 20590.

Research and Special Programs Administration (RSPA)

(Name of contact person) Research and Special Programs Administration, 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590.

Maritime Administration (MARAD)

James Saari, Secretary, Maritime Administration, 400 7th Street Street SW., Room 7300B, Washington, DC 20590, (202) 366-5746.

Federal Aviation Administration (FAA)

The FAA has a mailing list system for Notices and Advance Notices of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRMs and ANPRMs). Persons interested in obtaining future copies of all of those documents to be issued by the FAA or only of those concerning certain parts of the Federal Aviation Regulations should request a copy of Advisory Circular No. 11-2, which describes the application procedure, by calling 202-267-3479 or by writing to: Federal Aviation Administration, Office of Public Affairs, Attention: Public Information Center, APA-200, 800 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20591.

Office of the Secretary (OST)

Persons desiring to receive future copies of the Department's regulations agenda should submit their request to: Assistant General Counsel for Regulation and Enforcement, C-50, Office of the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, Washington, DC 20590, (202) 366-4723.

Persons who have an interest in specific regulatory documents to be issued by the Office of the Secretary should forward requests for copies of those documents to the same address. These requests should fully identify the document desired.

Appendix B - General Rulemaking Contact Persons

The following is a list of persons who can be contacted within the Department for general information concerning the rulemaking process within the various operating administrations.

USCG - Bruce Novak, Marine Safety Council, USCG Headquarters Building, Room 3600, 2100 Second Street SW., Washington, DC 20593; telephone: (202) 267-1477.

FAA - John H. Cassady, Office of Chief Counsel, Regulations and Enforcement Division, 800 Independence Ave. SW., Room 915A, Washington, DC 20591; telephone: (202) 267-3073.

1841. ● + PROPOSED POLICY ON PEAK PERIOD PRICING OF AIRPORT LANDING FEES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1301 et seq

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department is considering whether to propose to establish a set of guidelines to encourage the voluntary development of peak and off-peak pricing systems for airport landing fees at congested U.S. airports. The guidelines would provide economic incentives to promote more efficient use of existing airport facilities, which would reduce congestion and delays. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

1842. DIRECT FLIGHTS

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1381

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Donald L. Pevsner petitioned the CAB to institute a rulemaking proceeding to ban use of the term "direct flight" because it is deceptive, and to declare use of the term to be a prima facie violation of section 411 of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958. The Department is now considering what action to take in response to the petition.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1381

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 380.30(e); 14 CFR 399.84

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The DOT rules cited above state that any price stated for air transportation, a tour or a tour component must be the entire price for that transportation, tour or component. In this petition, Mr. Donald Pevsner complains that some tour operators advertise prices which do not include additional features which must be purchased and which cost extra. He asks that the rules be amended to state that such additional features may only be priced separately if they may be purchased separately, i.e., if they are optional rather than mandatory.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 98-575; PL 100-656, Sec 15(c) to 16 Commercial Space Launch Act

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Persons authorized to conduct commercial launch activities by a license issued by the Office of Commercial Space Transportation (OCST) are required to obtain insurance or demonstrate financial responsibility, in amounts and on terms prescribed by OCST, to protect against third-party or government property damage claims resulting from the licensed activities. Licensees and other launch participants are also required to enter into reciprocal waivers of claims arising out of licensed activities. In addition, persons engaged in commercial launch operations must provide proof of financial responsibility, or offer other assurances, adequate to protect the government when its property or personnel are involved in such operations. This rulemaking codifies the procedures by which OCST sets appropriate levels and terms of insurance and financial responsibility required to be carried by persons subject to its authority. This action is significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department is reviewing its regulation establishing a minority business enterprise (MBE) program in its financial assistance programs (49 CFR Part 23). This regulation has been controversial, is of interest to most DOT grant recipients and contractors, and affects the operations of all DOT financial assistance programs. Section 106(c) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA) extended and modified the program as applied to FHWA and UMTA; similar legislation applied the same requirements to the FAA. The Department issued a final rule to make the STURAA changes in October 1987; a similar rule for FAA programs was published in May 1988. The Department intends subsequently to issue an NPRM that would propose further changes in the regulation.

By their terms, the rules will expire 12/31/90 unless extended.

Abstract: This rulemaking has been initiated to determine the need to continue or modify existing regulations governing computer reservations systems (CRSs) and to obtain comments on issues raised in various petitions. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public and industry interest.

1849. + ANTI-ALCOHOL PROGRAM FOR THE TRANSPORTATION INDUSTRY

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1657

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The DOT is considering whether additional regulations concerning the use of alcohol by sensitive safety- and security-related personnel in industries regulated by its operating administrations are necessary and, if so, what the scope and focus of any new regulations should be. This proceeding is being conducted to ensure that the Department and its modal administrations have the necessary regulatory tools to respond to the hazards of alcohol use and abuse in transportation, and is considered significant because of important departmental policy.

establish procedural requirements that private litigants must meet before the Department would produce documents or make an employee available to testify in a private legal or administrative proceeding. The proposed requirements are necessary because Department attorneys and employees currently spend a considerable amount of time responding to litigants' requests for documents or testimony, often repeatedly on the same matter. This rule would ensure the more efficient use of DOT ability to respond to such requests.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 5 USC 504

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 6; 48 CFR 6301; 14 CFR 14

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would incorporate the latest amendments to the Equal Access to Justice Act (EAJA or "Act"), 5 USC 504, into OST's EAJA regulations, 49 CFR 6. The EAJA provides for the award of attorneys' fees and other expenses to eligible individuals and entities who prevail over the Government in administrative proceedings, unless the position of the Government was substantially justified. The latest amendment made certain technical and substantive amendments to the EAJA, as well as made the Act, as so amended, permanent. This rulemaking is undertaken at the Department's initiative in response to the statutory changes in the EAJA.

Abstract: The CAB proposed new charter rules for direct and indirect air carriers. The proposed rules retain the financial protections of existing rules for direct air carriers while eliminating rules restricting the types of groups (such as "affinity" or "single-entity") to whom charters may be sold. The proposal would also retain a security instrument and depository system for indirect air carriers, along with contract rules for public protection. The proposal also highlights depository bank and travel agent responsibilities in handling passenger funds. The proposal replaces one made earlier. DOT is considering what action should be taken. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: The Department is proposing to provide formal notice to the public of its enforcement policy concerning the rebating of international air fares by adopting that policy as a Policy Statement in the regulations. No change in the substance of that policy is intended. The Department also proposes to revoke an existing Policy Statement on the advertising of rebates that is contrary to DOT's current enforcement policy. The proposal responds to a request for such action by the American Society of Travel Agents. The proposed regulation is significant because it involves important departmental policies and substantial industry interest.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 27

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Judicial, March 22, 1990. Final, Judicial, September 21, 1990.
A judicial schedule for the proposed and final rules in this rulemaking was established by the Federal District Court on remand from the Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

Abstract: This rulemaking is necessitated by an en banc ruling of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in ADAPT v. Skinner. The court directed DOT to revise its existing rule on this subject consistent with its opinion that provisions of the present rule were inconsistent with the Department's statutory authority. This rulemaking incorporates an existing rulemaking concerning nondiscrimination on the basis of handicap in Federally assisted commuter rail programs. (RIN 2105-AB23). This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest and Federalism implications. With the passage of the Americans With Disabilities Act (ADA), this project also encompasses implementation of that statute. As expanded, the project includes a final rule on bus accessibility, a second final rule to delete the cost cap from the present final rule and impose interim paratransit requirements, and an NPRM concerning paratransit, undue financial burden, rail service, fixed facility, and other requirements of the ADA.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: PL 94-135

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1691

Abstract: The NPRM proposed to prohibit age discrimination by recipients of DOT financial assistance programs. However, it has been concluded that exceptions to the statute would result in no substantive coverage of DOT programs. Moreover, the paperwork requirements for recipients, without substantive coverage, would have been counterproductive. The NPRM will be withdrawn. The Department will consider, in light of any changes in DOT programs, whether resultant substantive coverage would then warrant a new rulemaking proceeding.

Abstract: The CAB proposed to amend its rules requiring notice of contract terms for domestic travel to require that actual notice be given passengers of terms absolving carriers from any responsibility to transport a passenger to the destination named on the ticket, or to reimburse the passenger for expenses in reaching the airport noted on the ticket when a flight is diverted to another airport in the same metropolitan area. Alternatively, the Board proposed to declare it to be an unfair and deceptive practice to divert a passenger without arranging and paying for alternate transportation to the destination airport named on the passenger's ticket. The Board considered a final rule but did not decide what action to take. DOT is now considering what action to take.

Abstract: A Civil Aeronautics Board rulemaking proposed to revise and simplify the requirements and procedures for applying for exemptions under Section 416(b) of the Federal Aviation Act. This action has become unnecessary since the Department included most of its provisions in its rule transferring the CAB's rules to DOT. Therefore, the NPRM will be withdrawn.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1301; 49 USC 1302; 49 USC 1324; 49 USC 1371 to 1374; 49 USC 1381; 49 USC 1386; 49 USC 1481; 49 USC 1482

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221; 14 CFR 250; 14 CFR 253

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The American Association of Airport Executives, the Airport Operators Council International and the Air Transport Association of America petitioned the CAB to simplify its counter-sign requirements. Presently, airlines are required to display four different consumer protection notices on their ticket counters. The petitioners alleged that the current notices are hard to read and, therefore, do not provide much notice to passengers. They proposed replacing the four notices with one simplified counter sign. The CAB adopted an NPRM that proposed a number of alternatives, such as a long and/or short notice, where the notices would be required to be posted and whether a smoking notice should be included. DOT is now considering what action to take in response to the notice and comments filed.

Abstract: This rule is being revised to add nongovernmental grantees and to make minor revisions to the current common rule that applies to grants and cooperative agreements to State and local governments. Due to existing statutes and the desire to reduce Federal red tape, DOT does not comply with some sections of the common rule and is proposing deviations from the additional provisions.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 10 USC 1094; PL 100-456; PL 101-223

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 53

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory. PL 100-456 requires issuance of this rule.

Abstract: This NPRM proposed to implement the whistleblower protection provisions contained in PL 100-456. The rule would apply to the United States Coast Guard, the Board for Correction of Military Records, and the Department of Transportation's Inspector General. It would establish procedures to ensure that members of the United States Coast Guard are protected from reprisals for making, or preparing to make, lawful communications to a Member of Congress or an Inspector General. In addition, the rule would specifically require the reporting and investigation of reprisal allegations, and provide for remedies when reprisal is found, including disciplinary action against any person taking reprisal and the correction of military records when appropriate.

Abstract: Various laws, international agreements, and Coast Guard regulations require the posting of specific certificates, licenses, plans, operating instructions, and warnings onboard vessels. Some of these contain essential operational data which must be accessible at all times; others are primarily informational. This rulemaking project will seek to reduce posting requirements for nonessential operational data to reduce the burden on the public. Alternatives such as having items readily available rather than being posted are being considered.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1223(c)

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 161

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Coast Guard conducted a study for the need for port access routes for the approaches to Chesapeake Bay, VA. (Notice of study results published July 13, 1989, 54 FR 29627). The study concluded that the southern approach part of the traffic separation scheme should be reconfigured to incorporate a proposed deep-water route for inbound and outbound vessel traffic. This proposal would implement that recommendation.

Abstract: The Coast Guard has conducted the Port Access Route Study mandated by the Ports and Waterways Safety Act. As a result of the study, the Coast Guard has determined that potential conflicts between oil drilling and shipping require creation of a fairway system off the coast of California from the vicinity of San Francisco to Los Angeles/Long Beach and changes to the San Francisco and Santa Barbara channel traffic-separation schemes. No structures would be permitted in the fairway. This project is considered significant because of public interest.

Abstract: On November 21, 1988, the Coast Guard issued a final rule requiring random drug testing. On December 18, 1989 the District Court enjoined the Coast Guard from implementing random testing. The judge invited the Coast Guard to promulgate new random drug testing regulations applicable only to crew members whose duties have a clear and direct nexus to the safety concerns of the Government. This proposal would establish random testing requirements for crew members serving in positions which affect the safe operation of a vessel. It is considered significant because of substantial public interest, controversy surrounding random testing, and litigation.

Abstract: Rulemaking would redefine and establish more stringent qualifying criteria for individuals engaged in transporting and transferring various categories of oil and dangerous liquid cargoes. The Port and Tanker Safety Act of 1978 mandated the establishment of personnel qualification and manning standards for tank vessels. In addition, the International Convention on the Standards for Training, Certification, and Watchkeeping for Seafarers 1978 (STCW), has entered into effect and establishes international standards for tank vessel personnel qualifications. In view of the length of time since publication of the NPRM, a supplemental NPRM was issued.

Abstract: This rulemaking would require marine dealers to furnish boat and engine manufacturers with serial numbers of new boats and engines sold and the names and addresses of retail first purchasers of those products. Manufacturers would use the information to locate purchasers of boats and engines recalled for defects which create a substantial risk of personal injury to the public and for failures to comply with applicable regulations. Currently many manufacturers cannot obtain sufficient first-purchaser information and their attempts to notify during recalls are inadequate.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1222; 46 USC 3703

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 164; 46 CFR 10

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Current regulations require installation of ARPA on certain ships to improve vessel and waterway safety. Training in the use of this equipment is necessary to ensure its proper application and maximum benefit. A very small percentage of licensed personnel (those manning vessels of 10,000 GT or larger) would be required to complete an ARPA training course. The course is expected to cost about $400.00 per student.

Significance: Nonsignificant

DOT—USCG

Final Rule Stage

Legal Authority: 46 USC 4102

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 25; 46 CFR 28

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: As a result of the passage of Public Law 100-540, EPIRBs will be required on each manned uninspected vessel operating on the high seas or beyond three miles from the coast line of the Great Lakes. On August 17, 1988 the Coast Guard published a rule to require EPIRBs on certain fishing vessels. This action would extend the requirements of the August 17th rule as required by PL 100-540.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: PL 100-239

Abstract: The Commercial Fishing Industry Vessel Anti-Reflagging Act of 1987 requires that for any United States-built vessel to be eligible for a fishery license the controlling interest in any corporation which owns the vessel must be owned by individuals who are citizens of the United States. This project would implement the provisions of the Act. Based on comments received, the scope of this project has been expanded to include a complete revision of 46 CFR 67.03 which explains citizenship requirements for vessel documentation and an SNPRM was issued.

PL 100-710 has staggered requirements, several are effective in January 1989 while others are effective in January, 1990.

Abstract: The objective of this project is to bring existing regulations into conformity with law. PL 100-710 requires certain changes to existing regulations, such as eliminating requirements to present the vessel document for endorsement of mortgages. These changes are unequivocal and were effective on January 1, 1989. In addition, this proposal would implement requirements of the law which became effective in 1990. The interim final rule will minimize transitional uncertainty while permitting opportunity for comment.

Abstract: This action set new standards for the safe design, installation, and operation of marine vapor control systems. These systems are being required in several States to reduce emissions from tank vessels which carry oil and chemicals in bulk. This action established minimum safety standards, but does not require installation or use of vapor control systems. This action was significant because of substantial public interest and safety implications.

Abstract: The whole subject of user fees is under review. Pending user fee legislation would establish fees for services covered by this rulemaking and would allow establishment of other fees that are now prohibited by existing law. Although previously considered of significance, this action was withdrawn because the pending legislation may dramatically change the scope of the rulemaking.

Abstract: On November 21, 1988, the Coast Guard, along with other agencies of the Department of Transportation, adopted regulations requiring pre-employment, post-accident, reasonable cause and random drug testing. Since adopting those regulations, it has been necessary to delay implementation for foreign persons and to reduce an unnecessary pre-employment testing burden on employers in cases where individuals are changing jobs.

Abstract: This action implements Annex V of the International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution by Ships, 1973. The Act to Prevent Pollution from Ships, as amended by Title II of PL 100-220, requires the Secretary to administer and enforce the annex. The Act would reduce the incidence of discharges of plastics, including synthetic fishing nets and other ship-generated garbage, into the oceans. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 3306; 46 USC 3301

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Coast Guard amended the regulations concerning the reinspection of offshore supply vessels (OSVs) in foreign ports. Previously OSVs holding two-year certificates of inspection were reinspected between the 10th and 14th month of the certificate's period. In recent years, more OSVs have been based overseas in remote locations. Vessel owners must reimburse the Coast Guard for inspector travel and per diem costs in connection with foreign inspections. This action established an alternative to the traditional Coast Guard mid-period reinspection. The benefits are flexibility and financial savings to the OSV industry and more effective use of Coast Guard resources.

Abstract: This preliminary action is to determine the feasibility of installing, in all air carrier aircraft, crashworthy fuselage fuel tanks and fuselage fuel lines which are rupture resistant and which disconnect and seal in the event of an accident. This notice solicits public participation in identifying and selecting a regulatory course of action by inviting interested persons to submit specific comments and arguments concerning this proposed regulatory action. This rulemaking is considered significant because of a statutory requirement. In view of comments received, a second ANPRM will be issued.

Abstract: This action would propose to amend the regulations for the location of nationality and registration marks on fixed-wing aircraft and airships. This action would modify the requirements for the location of marks on fixed-wing aircraft and airships with configurations that are not addressed by the existing regulations. These amendments are needed because existing rules cannot be applied to unconventional aircraft and airship configurations and they would allow for alternative locations for nationality and registration markings.

Abstract: This notice proposes revisions to the aircraft type certification standards and operating rules to require that future supersonic aircraft meet noise limits consistent with those required for future subsonic aircraft. These revisions would aid the development of next-generation supersonic aircraft by establishing a noise impact goal that is consistent with noise limits for conventional (subsonic) aircraft. The FAA believes that these revisions are necessary to guide developers of supersonic aircraft and to assure consistent and equitable noise type certification standards and operating rules for both subsonic and supersonic aircraft. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This notice would propose to revise the fatigue requirements for damage-tolerant structures on transport category airplanes to require full-scale fatigue testing and to require that the thresholds for inspections be based on crack growth from initial flaws in the structure. These proposed changes are based on the service history of airplanes evaluated to the current damage tolerance requirements and are intended to ensure that, should serious fatigue damage occur within the operational life of the airplane, the remaining structure can withstand reasonable loads without failure until the damage is detected. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its safety implications and substantial public interest.

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend emergency egress requirements of the airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes. These proposed rules are necessary to improve the compatibility of the requirements for emergency exit provisions of commuter category airplanes with the corresponding requirements for similar sized transport category airplanes. These proposals provide alternative emergency exit requirements, applicable to commuter category airplanes, when additional bin safety features are included in the airplane design, and include specific requirements for flight crew emergency exits, emergency exit ditching provisions, and the size requirement of the passenger entry door for commuter category airplanes. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves a cabin-safety issue.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking has been established in order to review Part 25 of the Federal Aviation Regulations to determine if the current allowable concentration of carbon dioxide in the airplane cabin and flight deck is appropriate in light of standards established for air quality in buildings occupied by the general public and with workplace exposure limits adopted by other regulatory agencies. This rulemaking is considered significant because of the safety implications.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FAA proposes to amend its regulations so that Part 91 operators may continue flights or ferry certain aircraft in the event that the flight recorder and/or cockpit voice recorder is inoperable. This change will provide Part 91 operators the same relief currently provided to holders of air carrier or commercial operator certificates when they are operating under Part 91. Additionally, this change would allow Part 91 operators to operate for up to 10 days with an inoperative FR or CVR. These proposed amendments are intended to prevent Part 91 operations from being forced out of service unnecessarily. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action is intended to increase the capability of the air traffic control (ATC) system to separate all aircraft in the terminal airspace surrounding this airport. It is based on data indicating that a high percentage of near midair collisions reported to the FAA in terminal areas involved visual flight rules aircraft that are not required to be under the control of ATC. The objective of this proposal is to substantially increase safety while accommodating the legitimate concerns of airspace users.

Abstract: This action proposes changes to the airframe and flight airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes that are based on a number of recommendations discussed at the Small Airplane Airworthiness Review Conference held on October 22-26, 1984. This action arises from the recognition that updated safety standards are needed for an acceptable level of safety in the design requirements for small airplanes used in both private and commercial operations. This action will include design requirements applicable to advancements in technology being incorporated in current designs and will reduce the regulatory burden in showing compliance with some requirements while maintaining an acceptable level of safety.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 23

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposes changes to the powerplant and equipment airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes that are based on certain proposals and recommendations discussed at the Small Airplane Airworthiness Review Conference held in St. Louis, Missouri, on October 22-25, 1984. These proposals arise from the recognition, by both government and industry, that updated safety standards are needed to maintain an acceptable level of safety in the design requirements for small airplanes that are used in both private and commercial operations. These proposals, if adopted, will include design requirements applicable to advancements in technology being incorporated in current designs and reduce the regulatory burden in showing compliance with some requirements while maintaining an acceptable level of safety.

Abstract: This action would amend the Federal Aviation Regulations by combining and amending the Delegation Option Authorization Procedures, the Designated Alteration Station Authorization Procedures, and the Development of Major Repair Data into a revised Subpart J of Part 21 entitled "Designated Engineering Organization Authorization Procedures (DEO).

This action would: (1) broaden existing delegation of aircraft certification and approval functions to organizations in the United States; (2) extend these functions to domestic organizations which possess the necessary technical and managerial qualifications specified in revised Subpart J of Part 21; (3) improve the standardization and reduce the long-term cost of FAA certification and approval functions; and (4) result in DEO conducted programs that are equivalent in safety and compliance to standard FAA conducted programs.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the Federal Aviation Regulations by upgrading the standards for protecting transport category airplanes from bird impact damage by requiring that airplanes be designed such that: (1) only minor damage would result from impact with a 4-pound bird and (2) the airplane would be capable of continued safe flight and landing after impact with an 8-pound bird. These standards are needed because of possible vulnerability of new technology flight controls, flight instruments, and flight structures to bird strike damage. These proposed changes are based on research and service experience and are intended to improve survivability of the airplane by providing better protection of critical structures and systems.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The low speed stalling features of some transport category airplanes are not characterized by the nose-down pitching that has traditionally identified the stall. As a result, the stall speed can be demonstrated to an artificially low level by continuing to decrease speed to the point that the airplane load factor is substantially less than one. The maximum usable power level may vary considerably with flight conditions. To correct this problem, this action would propose the use of a 1-G stall speed in all areas of Parts 25 and 36.

2039. ● CLASS D COMPARTMENTS IMPROVED FIRE SAFETY STANDARDS

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1424; 49 USC 1425; 49 USC 1428; 49 USC 1429; 49 USC 1430; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121; 14 CFR 135

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice would propose to upgrade the fire safety standards for cargo or baggage compartments in certain passenger-carrying transport category airplanes by establishing a maximum size for Class A compartments and by eliminating Class D compartments altogether. Compartments that could no longer be classed as Class A or Class D would have to meet the standards for Class C or Class E compartments as applicable. Certain transport category airplanes used in air carrier, air taxi, or commercial service also would have to meet these upgraded standards.

PL 100-223, Section 303, Airport and Airway Safety and Capacity Enhancement Act of 1987.

Abstract: This action proposes new requirements for water survival equipment carried aboard airplanes and rotorcraft. The requirements would apply, after specified dates, to U.S.-certificate holders that conduct common-carriage operations with airplanes and rotorcraft. This proposal is in response to the Airport and Airway Safety and Capacity Enhancement Act of 1987 (PL 100-223) and relates to safety recommendations by the National Transportation Safety Board. The proposed requirements are intended to increase the likelihood of aircraft passengers surviving a crash landing in water and, thus, this rulemaking is significant because of the safety implications.

PL 100-223 Sec 303

Abstract: The FAA proposes to require that all seats of transport category airplanes used in air carrier operations and transport category airplanes used in scheduled intrastate service comply with improved crashworthiness standards. The Airport and Airways Safety and Capacity Expansion Act of 1987 directs the Secretary of Transportation to initiate a rulemaking proceeding to consider requiring all seats onboard all air carrier aircraft to meet improved crashworthiness standards based upon the best available testing standards. The intended effect of this action is to increase passenger protection and survivability in survivable impact accidents. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its safety implications and statutory requirements.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 108; 14 CFR 129

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposed to amend the airplane operator security regulations by removing the exception to meeting the current x-ray imaging standard for x-ray screening systems in use prior to July 22, 1985. Each United States air carrier conducting screening under a mandatory security program would be required to use x-ray systems for carry-on and checked articles that meet the x-ray imaging standard required under its approved security program. Likewise, each foreign air carrier that lands or takes off in the United States would be required to use x-ray screening systems for carry-on and checked articles in the United States that meet the x-ray imaging standard under its accepted security program. This action is needed due to the increased sophistication of terrorist acts. The intended effect is to increase the safety of passengers and crewmembers aboard aircraft by providing an upgraded aid at airport screening points to prevent the carriage of explosives, incendiaries, or deadly or dangerous weapons. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

These safety protections are currently required for operation of airplanes used in air carrier service, but not for the full range of transport category airplanes such as those used for executive transportation. Abstract: This notice proposed to amend several sections of the Federal Aviation Regulations. Several proposals would provide the FAA with the means to enforce certain safety regulations. Others would make current operator practices regulatory requirements. Several proposals would establish regulations on child restraint systems, safety belts aboard airships, and flight crewmember use of shoulder harnesses aboard aircraft. Two of the proposals would clarify the regulations concerning fire extinguishers and protective breathing equipment, and one obsolete section of the regulations and several obsolete references to particular dates would be removed. Abstract: This notice proposes to adopt certain recommendations of the National Airspace Review concerning changes to regulations and procedures dealing with airspace classification. These changes are intended to: (1) simplify airspace designations; (2) achieve international commonality of airspace designations; (3) increase standardization of equipment requirements for operations in the various classifications of airspace; and (4) associate appropriate pilot certification requirements, visual flight rules visibility and distance from clouds rules, and air traffic services offered in each proposed class of airspace. This proposal represents the combination of three separate advance proposals issued in 1966 concerning airspace assignment and related air traffic operating rules. The FAA believes the simplified airspace classification proposed in this action will reduce existing airspace complexity and thereby enhance safety. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 119; 14 CFR 121; 14 CFR 125; 14 CFR 127; 14 CFR 135

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposes to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to update, clarify, and consolidate into one part, new Part 119, the certification and operations specifications requirements for persons who conduct passenger-carrying or cargo-carrying air operations for compensation or hire. Significant changes include defining what must be included in operations specifications; defining "scheduled" and "domestic" operations; increasing the lead-time period for application for a certificate; defining a "wet lease" operation; including in the regulations criteria to determine who has operational control of an operation; and standardizing the requirements and qualifications for management personnel. This action is needed to establish permanent minimum safety standards following the "sunset" of the Civil Aeronautics Board on December 31, 1984, and the enactment of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. This action would also replace SFAR 36, as amended, which has provided interim certification and operations specifications regulation. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The current regulations need to be revised to account for the changed operational practices stemming from airline economic deregulation. This proposal would clarify or change the number of flight attendants required when passengers are on board an airplane, including at stops. This proposal includes two new requirements: (1) a revision of the reduced number of flight attendants which, under certain conditions, a carrier is permitted to have on board a passenger-carrying airplane during stops; and (2) a requirement for a demonstration of competency by the other authorized persons who may be permitted to be substituted for required flight attendants when passengers are on board the airplane during stops. This proposal would change the current rule by clarifying and specifying the training required to be completed by these other authorized persons. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This notice proposed to revise the current requirements for passenger emergency exits and to adopt two new exit types into the regulations. These proposals are intended to provide more consistent standards with respect to passenger seating allowed for each exit type, and the type and number of exits required for passenger seating configurations. This notice proposed to reduce the maximum inflation time of an escape slide to reflect the current state of the art. These proposals resulted from the Public Technical Conference on Emergency Evacuation of Transport Airplanes held in Seattle, Washington, on September 3-6, 1985. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves an important cabin-safety issue.

DOT—FAA

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 31, 1988.

Abstract: This rulemaking would prescribe benefit-cost based criteria for establishment and discontinuance of visual flight rule (VFR) airport traffic control tower facilities. It considers traffic density (number of aircraft operations without consideration of aircraft size), passengers served, and aircraft operating efficiencies along with the cost of establishing and maintaining or decommissioning a tower. The FAA utilizes these criteria to assess benefits and costs associated with establishing or decommissioning an airport traffic control tower at an airport as a part of its mission to maximize safety and efficiency throughout the airport and airway system consistent with available resources. This regulation, if promulgated, would implement the requirements of recent legislation requiring the publication of criteria for navigational aids and airport traffic control towers as a Federal regulation. This rulemaking is significant because of statutory requirements.

Abstract: This notice proposed to require installation of an improved emergency locator transmitter (ELT) that meets the requirements of a revised Technical Standards Order (TSO) on U.S.-registered airplanes and to terminate approval to use ELTs authorized under the original TSO issued for this equipment. The new equipment would be required for future installations. This proposal is prompted by unsatisfactory performance experienced with ELTs that are manufactured under the original TSO and relates to safety recommendations by the National Transportation Safety Board and the search-and-rescue community. Although most of the unsatisfactory field experience has been with automatic ELTs, the FAA is also proposing improved standards for survival ELTs. This proposal would save lives by increasing the number of survivors rescued after aircraft accidents. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This notice proposed to revise the operating rules for air taxi and commercial operators by requiring that all turbine-powered (rather than just turbojet) airplanes with ten or more seats be equipped with an approved ground proximity warning system. The proposed changes are needed because studies have shown that several controlled-flight-into-terrain accidents involving turbo-propeller powered airplanes might have been avoided had the airplanes been equipped with a ground proximity warning system. This proposed rule is intended to reduce the risk of airplanes being flown into terrain with no apparent awareness by the crews that they are approaching the ground. This rulemaking is considered significant because of important safety implications.

Abstract: This notice proposed to suspend, until December 30, 1993, certain provisions of the regulations which require the installation and use of automatic altitude reporting (Mode C) transponders. This proposed rule would provide access to specified outlying general aviation airports within 30 miles of a terminal control area primary airport (Mode C veil) for aircraft without a Mode C transponder. The FAA believes that the operation of an aircraft without a Mode C transponder can be permitted provided that the operation is conducted in areas not currently within air traffic control radar coverage and not predominantly used by aircraft required to install and use traffic alert and collision avoidance systems equipment. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action proposed to amend the regulations relating to allocation of air carrier and commuter-operator slots to limit availability of seasonal international slots at O'Hare Airport for carriers with 100 or more slots. Abstract: This action would amend various sections of the regulations. Some of the amendments are clarifying or editorial in nature or correct improper or obsolete references. Others relax certain existing requirements. Others allow issuance of special flight permits for an additional purpose, relax a requirement for passenger information signs, and eliminate the bulk erasure device on cockpit voice recorders. This action is in response to numerous complaints, suggestions, and petitions for exemption concerning several regulatory requirements received from users of the National Airspace System. These users state that these sections contain obsolete references and vague, complex, and inadequate language and that, in some instances, the cost of compliance is not justified by the benefits derived.

Abstract: This action proposed changes to the airworthiness standards to improve the crash resistance of fuel systems on normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes. The FAA has determined that improved crash resistance of these fuel systems is necessary to prevent deaths and injuries due to fire in survivable crashes. The proposed design changes would limit fuel spillage near ignition sources and would provide additional time for the survivors to evacuate the airplane.

Abstract: This notice proposes to amend the regulations to provide for the acceptance of maintenance, preventive maintenance, and alterations accomplished on U.S. civil aeronautical products and components in Canada. This proposal is prompted by the airworthiness maintenance provisions contained in the U.S.-Canadian Bilateral Airworthiness Agreement and the Schedule of Implementation Procedures between the United States and Canada. The proposed amendment would provide for acceptance by the FAA of maintenance, preventive maintenance, and alterations performed on aircraft, engines, propellers, appliances, materials, parts, and other components which are transported from the United States to Canada and which are for installation on U.S.-registered aircraft.

Abstract: This notice responds to a petition for rulemaking from Aerospace Industries Association of America, Inc., and proposes to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to incorporate new one-engine-inoperative (OEI) power ratings for multiengine, turbine-powered rotorcraft. If adopted, this proposal would enhance rotorcraft safety after an engine failure or precautionary shutdown by providing OEI power, when required, with the assurance that the drive system would maintain its structural integrity and allow continued safe flight while operating at the new OEI power ratings with the operable engine(s).

Abstract: This notice proposes to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to minimize the failure hazards of high speed powerplant rotor systems used in turboshaft engines in newly designed transport category rotorcraft. Engine rotor failures have occurred resulting in the release of high energy rotor fragments or other engine component fragments. These fragments have impacted and damaged critical rotorcraft structures, systems, controls, and adjacent engines, as well as caused serious or fatal injuries to passengers and crewmembers. This proposal, if adopted, is intended to eliminate these hazards.

Abstract: This notice is one of a series of notices that proposes to adopt new and amended airworthiness standards for small airplanes. It also proposes to amend the flight instrument requirements in the general operating rules and the operating rules for air taxi and commercial operators. This particular notice proposes amended design requirements for complex systems critical for safety in small airplanes and amended requirements for locating certain instruments, including new technology electronic display indicators. It proposes to add a new airworthiness standard for electronic display instruments. It also includes related changes to the general and air taxi operating rules to allow a third attitude indicator in lieu of a rate-of-turn indicator.

Abstract: This notice is one of a series of notices that proposes to adopt new and amended airworthiness standards for small airplanes which are based on certain proposals discussed at the Small Airplane Airworthiness Review Conference held on October 22-26, 1984, in St. Louis, Missouri. These new and amended airworthiness standards result in the need for new definitions to be added to the regulations, and this notice also proposes the addition of those definitions. The proposals in this notice reflect advancements in technology being incorporated in current designs, permit type certification of spin resistant airplanes, and reduce the regulatory burden in showing compliance with some of the requirements while maintaining the standards governing the design and type certification of small airplanes as may be required in the interest of safety.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposed to modify the procedures for conducting an emergency evacuation demonstration by requiring that the flight crew take no active role in the demonstration and by changing the age/sex distribution requirement for demonstration participants. This notice also proposed to standardize the illumination requirements for the handles of the various types of passenger emergency exits. In addition, it is proposed to add a requirement for a "push to talk" switch to the public address system. These proposals are intended to enhance the provisions of transport category airplanes for egress of occupants during emergency conditions.

Abstract: This notice proposes to amend the regulations to require installation of shoulder harnesses at all seats of rotorcraft manufactured after 1 year after publication in the Federal Register of any final rule resulting from this notice. This notice responds to a safety recommendation from the National Transportation Safety Board and would enhance protection of occupants in rotorcraft. Similar rules have been adopted for certain small airplanes.

Abstract: This notice proposes to amend the airworthiness standards for transport category airplane landing gear aural warning systems and the operating rules for using transport category airplanes to update the present requirements. This proposal is prompted by reports of nuisance or inappropriate aural warnings which have occurred in modern transport airplanes which adhere strictly to the present regulations. It is intended to align the regulations with existing design practices thereby removing the regulatory burden associated with making an equivalent level of safety finding or exemption for those systems that do not meet the existing requirements. This proposal will not affect existing certificated airplanes.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposed to establish a Terminal Control Area (TCA) in the greater Baltimore/Washington, DC, area. Because the TCA would serve airports located in three different areas (Washington, DC, Maryland, and Virginia) the TCA would be established as the Washington TRI-Area TCA. The TCA would encompass four major airports: Andrews Air Force Base, Baltimore-Washington International, Dulles International, and Washington National. The TCA would consist of airspace from the surface or higher within a 20-mile radius of each airport up to and including 10,000 feet above mean sea level. This action is intended to increase the capability of the air traffic control system to separate all aircraft in the terminal airspace around these airports and to substantially increase safety while accommodating the legitimate concerns of airspace users.

Abstract: This notice proposed changes to the certification and operation regulations of land airports serving air carriers. These actions regarding certification requirements and the control of ground vehicles on an airport are necessary for consistency with existing operating regulations and to address concerns that the current language appears to place undue responsibility and liability on certificate holders. The proposed changes are intended to permit use of uncertificated airports, by air carriers in unscheduled service, in certain situations and clarify responsibility for compliance with airport rules for the operation of ground vehicles by individual tenants, contractors, and employees.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposes to revise the airworthiness standards for transport category airplanes concerning flutter, divergence, vibration, and buffet. It would clarify the requirement to consider flutter and divergence when treating certain damage and failure conditions required by other sections of the Federal Aviation Regulations. It would revise the required safety margins by slightly reducing the safety margin concerning airplane speed for normal configurations and providing a minimum safety margin concerning airplane speed for damage and failure configurations. These changes are intended to provide consistency with other sections of the Federal Aviation Regulations, to relieve a design burden which is now unnecessary as a result of advances in technology, and to improve certain safety margins as a result of the evolution in the design of transport airplanes.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Abstract: This notice proposed to require that an inert gas, such as nitrogen, be used in lieu of air, for inflation of tires on certain transport category airplanes. This action is prompted by at least three cases in which the oxygen in air-filled tires combined with volatile gases, given off by a severely overheated tire, and exploded upon reaching autoignition temperature. The use of an inert gas for tire inflation will eliminate the possibility of a tire explosion.

Abstract: This final rule provides that documents and evidence in formal hearing cases adjudicated within the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) will be filed and maintained in the Office of the Secretary's (OST) Office of Documentary Services. The change is being made in order to streamline operations and to consolidate the documents used in formal hearing cases.

Abstract: This notice proposed to alter the Chicago, Illinois, Terminal Control Area (TCA). This proposal would raise the upper limits of the TCA to 10,000 feet mean sea level to enable air traffic control to provide terminal air traffic control service to arriving and departing turbojet aircraft in a TCA environment throughout transition to and from the en route structure. Additionally, this proposal would extend the lateral limits of the TCA to 25 nautical miles to the south in order to provide an area wherein air traffic control can enhance air traffic control service to Chicago Midway Airport. This proposal redefines several existing subareas, which would enhance air traffic procedures, and releases present TCA airspace not required for use by air traffic control.

Abstract: This Special Federal Aviation Regulation (SFAR) established a voluntary alternative method for meeting the training, evaluation, certification, and qualification requirements for flight crewmembers, flight attendants, aircraft dispatchers, instructors, evaluators, and other operations personnel subject to the training requirements of 14 CFR Part 121 and Part 135. The FAA has developed this alternative method in response to recommendations made by a task force composed of representatives from the Government, airlines, aircrew professional organizations, and airline industry organizations. The SFAR is designed to improve aircrew performance and allows certificate holders that are subject to the training requirements of Part 121 and Part 135 to develop innovative training programs that incorporate the most recent advances in training methods and techniques. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1422; 49 USC 1427; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 61; 14 CFR 67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action set forth rules under which two or more alcohol- or drug-related motor vehicle convictions or related State administrative actions would be grounds for certificate action against a pilot. It also adopted rules under which a pilot's medical certificate would expire, requiring that the pilot apply for a new medical certificate, after an alcohol- or drug-related motor vehicle action. The final rules would require pilots to report alcohol- or drug-related motor vehicle actions to the FAA and added an express consent provision to facilitate FAA access to information reported to the National Driver Register. This rulemaking was a significant FAA initiative based on the Department of Transportation/Inspector General Report of February 17, 1987, entitled "Report on Audit of Airmen Medical Certification Program."

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule amended the airborne low-altitude windshear equipment rule to: (1) remove the requirement that windshear flight guidance equipment be installed on older airplanes; (2) amend the provision allowing for an extended compliance period based on an approved airplane retrofit schedule; and (3) provide for acceptance of alternative airplane equipment in the form of an approved airborne windshear detection and avoidance system (predictive systems). This final rule allows certificate holders to install windshear equipment in coordination with the installation of traffic alert and collision avoidance system equipment. The coordination will reduce the prospect that carriers will have to divert critical maintenance resources from other safety programs. This rulemaking was considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121; 14 CFR 125; 14 CFR 129

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule revised the schedule for installing Traffic Alert and Collision Avoidance Systems (TCAS II)

on airplanes with more than 30 passenger seats. The TCAS II system will provide a collision avoidance capability that operates independently of the ground-based air traffic control system and in areas where there is no air traffic control coverage. Congress recently passed legislation permitting an extension of the schedule. This action implements the legislation, reduces the prospect that carriers will divert critical maintenance and modification resources away from other safety programs to meet the TCAS II schedule, and allows the FAA to evaluate the operation of TCAS II in the total air traffic control environment. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial congressional and public interest.

Abstract: This action amended the type certification requirements for both normal and transport category rotorcraft. The changes revise airworthiness standards for systems, propulsion, and airframes and introduce safety improvements, clarify existing regulations, and standardize terminology. The changes are based on some of the proposals that were submitted to the FAA by the European Joint Airworthiness Requirements 29 group. These amendments are intended to encourage the European community's acceptance of the Federal Aviation Regulations' rotorcraft type certification requirements and to obviate the development of a new and different European standard. These amendments will achieve increased commonality of airworthiness standards among the respective countries.

2105. IMPROVED STRUCTURAL REQUIREMENTS FOR PRESSURIZED CABINS AND COMPARTMENTS IN TRANSPORT CATEGORY AIRPLANES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1424; 49 USC 1425; 49 USC 1428; 49 USC 1429; 49 USC 1430; 49 USC 106(g); PL 97-449

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule upgrades the airworthiness requirements for pressurized compartments on transport category airplanes by (1) amending the criteria for evaluation of the secondary effects caused by openings in the pressure vessel, and (2) extending the area of consideration to include openings anywhere in any pressurized compartment. There are no changes to the sizes of the openings that must be considered. This final rule is the result of recent service experience and is intended to make the pressurized compartment load requirements less design-dependent and more objective. It requires evaluation of openings in any pressurized compartment and examination of the effects of differential pressure loads on any critical structure inside or outside the pressurized compartment.

Abstract: This revision would realign restricted areas in the Eglin AFB area to increase the availability of airspace for civil users. In addition, certain portions of the realigned restricted areas would be available, when not active under Section 93.81, Special Air Traffic Rule Airspace. This project is being removed from the Agenda until the FAA's Regulatory Review Board, which establishes priorities and sets timetables for rulemaking actions, designates this project as an agency top priority and establishes a timetable for a rulemaking action. Abstract: This final rule clarifies the regulation dealing with the two-way radio communication requirement for operations in an Airport Radar Service Area (ARSA). Pilots will be able to identify which air traffic control facilities they are required to contact for entry into an ARSA. This final rule will ensure that the correct air traffic control facility is aware of all aircraft operating in an ARSA and will tend to reduce the potential for traffic conflicts.

Abstract: This final rule establishes a Terminal Control Area (TCA) at Tampa, FL. The TCA will consist of airspace from the surface or higher within a 25-nautical-mile radius of Tampa International Airport up to and including 10,000 feet above mean sea level. This action will increase the capability of the air traffic control system to separate aircraft in the terminal airspace around Tampa International Airport. Tampa International Airport is currently served by an Airport Radar Service Area which is rescinded concurrent with the establishment of this TCA.

Abstract: This final rule established, for the period July 11, 1990, through August 6, 1990, temporary prohibited areas overlying competition sites and other locations during the 1990 Goodwill Games in the State of Washington. The FAA, based on the recommendations of the Department of Defense and the Goodwill Games Law Enforcement Joint Operations Committee, believed these prohibited areas were necessary: (1) for the security and protection of participating athletes, dignitaries, and other persons attending the Goodwill Games; (2) to minimize the possibility of interference with sporting activities, participants, and spectators; (3) for the protection of security and law enforcement aircraft operating within these areas; and (4) to prevent an unsafe congestion of sightseeing and other aircraft over those locations.

Abstract: This rulemaking responds to a petition filed by the North American Transportation Consultants (NATC) on behalf of explosive carriers seeking an amendment to the FHWA dromedary box regulations contained in 23 CFR 658. The NATC is requesting that truck tractors equipped with dromedary boxes designed for the transportation of class A or B explosives, when empty or carrying such explosives, be subject to Federal rather than State length limits when in combination with semitrailers operating on the National Network. Explosive carriers often transport certain portions of their cargo in a dromedary box in compliance with Federal hazardous materials regulations. Under the existing regulation, truck tractors equipped with dromedary boxes, decks, or plates may operate on the National Network with semitrailer lengths authorized under the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA) only if the dromedary equipment was installed on the trailer by December 1, 1982.

Abstract: This rulemaking document proposes revisions to the current requirements contained in 49 CFR 390.21 concerning the marking of motor vehicles. Three areas are being considered for possible revision: (1) the applicability of the marking requirements to all commercial motor vehicles operated in interstate commerce, (2) postcard type registration of motor carriers, and (3) the treatment of rental vehicles. The third area of concern is being considered in response to a request for interpretation filed by the Truck Rental and Leasing Association (TRALA). This rulemaking is considered significant because of the public interest in commercial motor-carrier safety.

Abstract: This proposed rulemaking would revise the FHWA regulation on construction contract equal opportunity compliance procedures in order to clarify changes in policy and overall program implementation. Additionally, the proposal has been written with the consideration that the FHWA no longer has equal employment opportunity (EEO) contract compliance responsibilities under Executive Order (E.O.) 11246, but clearly has the responsibility to ensure that federally assisted highway contractors are providing equal opportunity under 23 U.S.C. 140. The proposed regulation should provide greater uniformity in the equal opportunity contract compliance program and should provide greater flexibility in overall program administration.

Abstract: Sections 207-209 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 establish a process whereby any State law or regulation pertaining to commercial motor vehicle safety in interstate commerce will be reviewed and analyzed by the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Regulatory Review Panel (Safety Panel). The Safety Panel is to determine if such law or regulation has the same effect as, is less stringent than, or is additional to or more stringent than the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations. The proposed regulations would provide guidelines for a continuous regulatory review of State laws and regulations; would establish deadlines for a State to achieve compatibility with the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations; and would establish procedures for the Federal Highway Administrator to determine whether or not a State law or regulation may be in effect and enforced with respect to interstate commercial motor vehicle safety.

Abstract: The American Association of State Highway Transportation Officials (AASHTO) is revising and updating the publication entitled "Policy on Geometric Design of Highways and Streets, AASHTO 1984." It is anticipated that this action will, after receipt of public comments on the proposed action, designate, in whole or in part, the revised AASHTO publication as being acceptable to the FHWA for application in the geometric design of highways and remove the out-of-date version from the acceptable list.

Legal Authority: 23 USC 315; PL 97-424, Sec 411; PL 97-424, Sec 416

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 658

Abstract: The FHWA is requesting public comment on how, under Section 411(h) and 416(b) of the Surface Transportation Act of 1982 (STAA) (Pub. L. 97-424, 96 Stat. 2097), the Secretary may determine which safety or efficiency-enhancing devices are to be excluded when measuring the length and width of vehicles for compliance with federally mandated dimensions. The present system of employing rulemaking proceedings is too time-consuming and cumbersome to meet the needs of industry and is needlessly burdensome for FHWA. Therefore, a new approach will be proposed.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC app 2505; 49 USC 3102

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 394

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing to amend the definition of "reportable accident" for motor carriers operating in interstate commerce by changing the criterion for reporting accidents resulting in only property damage under Part 394 of the Federal Motor Safety Regulations (FMCSRs). The current dollar value assessment would be replaced with a towaway criterion. "Towaway" is defined as "one or more vehicles incurring disabling damage as a result of the accident and transported away from the scene by a tow-truck or another vehicle." Integral to this definition is the term disabling damage. This amendment would not affect the requirement to report accidents involving injury or death. This action is being taken in an effort to standardize and simplify State and motor-carrier industry accident-reporting procedures by removing the uncertainty of estimating a dollar value amount. The FHWA is also soliciting comments on two other potential changes: (1) revising the Federal definition of a reporting accident to be consistent with the American National Standard Institute (ANSI) D-16 definition (cont)

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: PL 99-570; 49 USC 3102; 49 USC app 2505

Abstract: Section 12009 of the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986 establishes 21 requirements under the Commercial Driver's License (CDL) program which States must meet before October 1, 1993 to avoid losing a portion of their Federal-aid highway funds. This regulation will delineate the criteria and standards which the FHWA will use in determining whether a State is substantially in compliance with the 21 requirements. In addition, the rule will include a procedure governing initial and subsequent reviews of State compliance with these requirements.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: PL 99-570; 49 USC 3102; 49 USC app 2505

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 383

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: To reconcile the training needs of the motor carrier industry with the requirements of the commercial driver's license (CDL) program and the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986, the FHWA is proposing additional minimum Federal standards for State-issued learner's permits that allow drivers to be trained in the operation of commercial motor vehicles (CMVs). Among the alternatives under consideration: Applicants for Commercial Driver Instruction Permits (CDIPs) might need to possess drivers' licenses and undergo record checks analogous to those now required for CDLs; CDIP transactions might be entered in the Commercial Driver's License Information System (CDLIS); and CDIP holders might be explicitly subject to the same disqualifications as CDL holders. Since driver training is nationwide in scope, the FHWA is proposing options that would allow a State to issue a CDIP to a driver trainee, or a 90-day CDL to a trained driver, without regard to his/her State of domicile.

Abstract: This rulemaking action proposes to amend existing regulations contained in 23 CFR 657 by changing the requirements for State enforcement plans and certifications as well as the FHWA evaluation of State operations under the enforcement plans. The revised requirements will rely on available truck weight data and enforcement records. The revisions will result in evaluations and certifications being based more closely on the approved plans.

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing revisions to the requirements for private motor carriers of passengers and the drivers of private motor vehicles of passengers. The proposed revisions would require private motor carriers of passengers and drivers of private motor vehicles of passengers to operate under the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR). However, the paperwork burden of these requirements will be minimized and several parts of the FMCSR will not apply to either private motor carriers of passengers or to drivers of such vehicles. This rulemaking is significant in that it is controversial, involving bringing new carriers under the regulatory scheme

Legal Authority: PL 100-202, Sec 9105

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 383

Abstract: This action was initiated to improve identification systems for truck and bus drivers as identified by the Congress in the Truck and Bus Regulatory Reform Act of 1988. Alternatives that were considered included retinal eye scans and advanced fingerprint technologies. After (1) further review (2) a careful analysis of public comments submitted to the ANPRM and (3) a review of demonstration project results, the FHWA has determined that current technology has not progressed to the point where an identification system could be established nationwide in a cost-effective manner and still provide the benefits for which a system was intended. Therefore, the ANPRM will be withdrawn. This rulemaking was considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 23 USC 315; 49 USC 303

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 771

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The need for rulemaking in this area has been caused by recent court decisions. The courts have delayed or halted several important Federal-aid highway projects on the grounds that the proximate effects or impacts from a given highway would constructively use land from a park or historic site. In each instance the FHWA had determined that there existed no constructive use. This determination was based on an analysis of proximity impacts and whether the impacts would substantially impair the functions or values which qualified the property for protection under Section 4(f) of the DOT Act. The FHWA has been operating under an informal policy directive on constructive use since 11/12/85. This rulemaking action would formalize existing policy on constructive use, and future court decisions would address the regulation rather than be based on ad hoc interpretations of specific project facts. This action is considered significant because of substantial public interest in environmental matters.

Final action must be taken by 10/31/89.

Abstract: The FHWA is requesting comments on several issues relating to the appropriate use of emergency warning devices for commercial motor vehicles in response to Section 9108 of the Truck and Bus Safety and Regulatory Reform Act of 1988 (Pub. L. 100-690, 102 Stat. 4181). Issues include the use of fuses as an alternative or supplement to bidirectional emergency reflective triangles, as well as all aspects of emergency warning devices, including the type allowed and exemptions and/or condition for use. On 11/9/89, a notice of termination of rulemaking was published at 54 FR 47092 regarding the use of fuses as an alternative or supplement to bidirectional reflective triangles. Based on available information and public comments, it was determined that no enhancement of motor carrier or highway safety would be served by revising current regulations. The remaining issues will be addressed in a forthcoming final rule.

A revised publication approved by the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO) entitled "A Policy on Design Standards—Interstate System, AASHTO 1990" would be substituted for the previous version of these standards last revised June 20, 1987. If the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) adopts the 1990 document, the new AASHTO publication would constitute the FHWA's policy on geometric design for all federally assisted construction and reconstruction projects on the interstate highway system.

Abstract: The FHWA and NHTSA established an advisory committee to develop a report which included a recommended rulemaking proposal concerning a uniform system for handicapped parking. The committee developed its recommendation using a negotiation process. The committee is comprised of persons who represent the interests affected by handicapped parking regulations. The NPRM addressed: the use of the International Symbol of Access on handicapped plates and placards; fees for plates and placards; and the recognition of out-of-State handicapped plates and placards. It is intended that the problems facing the handicapped traveler would be greatly reduced.

Abstract: Due to amendments to the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSRs) which have occurred in the past few years, certain information and terminology currently found in the written examinations for drivers is no longer correct. Consequently, the FHWA is amending the written examination, which is given to driver applicants by motor carriers subject to the jurisdiction of the FHWA, to correct the examination's information and terminology. While the revisions are nonsubstantive in nature, they will improve the usefulness of the written examination.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing to amend Part 395, Hours of Service of Drivers, of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR's) to include an exemption for tow-truck operators responding to an emergency situation at the request of a law enforcement or emergency response official. This action is being taken in response to a petition submitted by the Towing and Recovery Association of America, Inc., (TRAA) which requested relief from the hours of service requirements of Part 395 for tow-truck operators responding to the emergency situation. This amendment would provide needed flexibility to tow-truck operators responding to highway emergencies. This rule would also arrange the definitions in Section 395.2 alphabetically; add the definition "on call"; and consolidate the exceptions and exemptions in Section 395.8 of the FMCSR's.

Abstract: This rulemaking action will amend Section 391.49 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR's) to permit certain licensed health care professionals to perform physical examinations of commercial motor vehicle drivers. The FHWA is addressing this issue in response to the numerous requests received from motor carriers, medical facilities, physicians, physician assistants (PA's), and nurse practitioners (NP's) to allow PA's and NP's to perform physical examinations under the supervision of licensed doctors of medicine or osteopathy. This action would permit drivers to have their physical examinations performed at more convenient times and locations and perhaps at a lower cost. This action would require health care professionals, who perform the physical examination, to become more knowledgeable of the FMCSR's requirements. The certification and determination that a driver is physically qualified in accordance with the requirements of 49 CFR 391 would remain with the licensed doctor of medicine or osteopathy.

Abstract: This document amends 49 CFR Part 396, Inspection, Repair and Maintenance, of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR's). The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) delayed the compliance date to July 1, 1990, when motor carriers are required to implement the periodic inspection requirements contained in the final rule, Inspection, Repair and Maintenance, published on December 7, 1988, (53 FR 49402). On December 12, 1989, the FHWA clarified that provisions of the final rule were to be complied with by December 7, 1990 (53 FR 49396) except as provided for in Part 393. This document also included recent interpretations, made minor technical amendments to clarify the rule and eliminated certain items from the inspection report. These interpretations were made in response to many requests the FHWA has received to clarify the intent of the final rule. The elimination of some of the items that were to be included in the inspection report was made to simplify the recordkeeping requirements. The final rule (delay in compliance date) became effective (cont)

Abstract: By an Interim Final Rule published on 11/24/88, the FHWA amended 49 CFR Part 393, Parts and Accessories Necessary for Safe

DOT—FHWA

Final Rule Stage

Operation, of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR's). The amendment allows Mexican motor carriers operating commercial motor vehicles in border commercial zones time to comply with the requirement that every commercial motor vehicle be equipped with brakes acting on all wheels. This action will facilitate the flow of trade and traffic between the two countries without interruption. The FHWA also removed the exception (Paragraph (b)) from 393.1 which deferred application of Part 393 to certain Mexican commercial motor vehicles until November 18, 1989. In this Interim Final Rule the FHWA requested comments on all issues addressed. The FHWA will further review the issue along with public comments before deciding whether further action is necessary.

Abstract: On November 21, 1988, the FHWA issued a final rule (53 FR 47134) requiring motor carriers to have an anti-drug program. This program includes testing drivers who operate commercial motor vehicles (CMV's) in interstate commerce for drug use. The final rule set forth the classes of controlled substances, the types of tests to be conducted, and through reference to 49 CFR 40, Procedures for Transportation Workplace Drug Testing Programs, procedures for testing and reporting of the test results. On November 6, 1989, the FHWA published a notice (54 FR 46616) that stated the FHWA policy regarding implementation of certain provisions of the anti-drug program in view of a preliminary injunction issued on January 6, 1989, enjoining the FHWA from implementing random and certain mandatory post-accident testing of commercial motor vehicle (CMV) drivers. The notice also clarified the types of testing that must be implemented by December 21, 1989. Implementation of the random and certain mandatory post-accident testing provisions of the 11/21/88 final rule will be deferred until further notice.

Additional Information: The rulemaking actions published on the subject of Controlled Substances Testing and listed under Supplemental Timetable were published under RIN # 2125-AA79. The initial Final Rule published on 11/21/88 was considered major under EO 12291. It has been determined that the regulatory actions issued 11/06/89 and 02/01/90 regarding the drug testing program were only clarifying the initial rule. Therefore, they were considered nonmajor and nonsignificant. A final rule published on 12/27/89 at 54 FR 53294 deferred the compliance date to 1/2/92 for carriers domiciled in a foreign country.

Abstract: This rulemaking proposes to designate as specialized equipment van-type, drop-frame beverage semitrailers whose length, when equipped with an upper coupler plate that extends in front of the semitrailer, exceeds 28 feet, as illustrated in the appendix to the preamble. The resulting configuration would be subject to certain limitations in that the kingpin may not be mounted more than 28 feet from the rear of the semitrailer, exclusive of rear-mounted devices not measured in determining semitrailer length, and the upper coupler may not extend beyond the semitrailer's swing radius (measured from the center line of the kingpin to the front corner of the semitrailer). The rule would prevent States from imposing an overall length limit on such vehicles operating in semitrailer or double-trailer combinations and would guarantee tractor-semitrailer combinations of such vehicles the same access to points of loading and unloading as "pup" semitrailers in 23 CFR 658.19(a).

Abstract: The FHWA had requested information and comments on the existing FHWA regulation governing reasonable access by commercial vehicles with lengths and widths authorized by the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA) as amended. A Supplemental NPRM was published requesting public comment on a report released by the Transportation Research Board (TRB) concerning issues relating to reasonable access. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest. The amendments define "terminal" and establish minimum access requirements to and from the National Network in all States for STAA-defined vehicles.

Abstract: The 1988 NPRM proposed to consolidate and update existing requirements for highway and transit projects. The proposal consisted of two parts. The first updated the process for determining which projects can be exempt from highway sanctions in accordance with the Clean Air Act (CAA). The second part would have updated the process for assuring that transportation plans, programs, and projects conform to an air quality implementation plan, and that the transportation control measures are given priority. Due to revisions to the CAA currently under consideration by Congress, any amendments to existing regulations would differ substantially from the proposal published in 1988. Therefore, the FHWA decided to withdraw the 1988 NPRM.

Abstract: A supplemental NPRM would have amended the General Materials Requirements regulation by prescribing policies and procedures for product and material selection and use on Federal-aid highway projects. These requirements were being revised to accommodate several policy changes and clarifications issued by Washington Headquarters to the field during the past several years. Upon further review, the FHWA has determined to withdraw the 1981 NPRM. Currently, innovative contracting practices, including product and material selection, are being tested under a special experimental project in conjunction with the Transportation Research Board (TRB). It would be premature to issue an NPRM before the project concludes.

Abstract: The 1984 ANPRM addressed FHWA's programming and authorization policies and projects under the Federal-aid program. One provision would have implemented section 117(e) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (Pub. L. 100-17). Since the ANPRM was issued, the Federal-aid highway program has undergone statutory and policy changes. Any further rulemaking in this area would have to be based on more current information and public comment. Therefore, the 1984 ANPRM was withdrawn.

Abstract: The FHWA determined that the issues associated with its authority to permit motor carriers to self-insure needed to be examined. Upon further review, the FHWA has determined that no further action is necessary in this area. Therefore, the June 18, 1986, ANPRM was withdrawn. Along with the withdrawal of the 1986 ANPRM, a final rule was issued which made permanent an interim final rule under RIN 2125-AB67. That rule permitted on an interim basis certain for-hire motor carriers of property to satisfy FHWA's financial responsibility requirements by providing evidence that they have received approval from the ICC to self-insure and have maintained a "satisfactory" safety rating assigned by the FHWA. Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102; 49 USC app 2502

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 383

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This technical amendment corrects two of the driving record requirements which a State must impose on commercial driver's license (CDL) applicant before waiving the driving skills test. First, an applicant must certify that, during the two-year period immediately prior to applying for a CDL, he/she has not had more than one conviction for a serious traffic violation committed in any type of motor vehicle. Second, for the same period, the applicant must certify that he/she has not had any conviction for an accident-related violation of State or local traffic laws, and has no record of an accident in which he/she was at fault. All other driving record prerequisites to the substitute for driving skills tests in 49 CFR 383.77 remain without correction.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.108

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This effort is being undertaken to provide a performance requirement for roadway illumination that is based on the driver's needs for safe nighttime driving. It will require that the vehicle provide proper, safe illumination. This is in contrast to the present performance that is required of each headlamp under Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 108, Lamps, Reflective Devices and Associated Equipment. The intent is to move away from a design-restrictive requirement to a performance-based requirement. Further, the requirement would be developed to assure acceptability as a revised standard. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its safety implications.

Abstract: Standard No. 301, Fuel System Integrity, has as its purpose the reduction of deaths and injuries occurring from fires that result from fuel spillage during and after motor vehicle crashes. Although vehicles using methanol or ethanol are covered under this standard, there are certain properties of these fuels which are different than those of gasoline or diesel fuel, and are not addressed under this standard. The purpose of this notice is to solicit comments to help NHTSA determine whether specific rulemaking is needed relative to the fuel system integrity of vehicles using methanol or ethanol as a motor fuel. NHTSA wishes to have any necessary safety standards in place to support the safe introduction and operation of alternative fuel vehicles, and not impede the development and advancement of such vehicles and associated technology. Abstract: Standard No. 301, Fuel System Integrity, has as its purpose the reduction of deaths and injuries occurring from fires that result from fuel spillage during and after motor vehicle crashes. However, CNG and propane, when used as motor fuels, are not covered under the current requirements of this standard. NHTSA desires that any safety performance standard which may be established for the fuel system integrity of vehicles using CNG or propane as a motor fuel be in harmony with the activities and regulatory authority of others to the extent possible. This notice announces a public meeting to obtain comments on the potential establishment of safety performance standards for vehicles powered by CNG or propane, as well as serving as an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (ANPRM) for that purpose. The purpose of this ANPRM is to explore approaches that might be used if the agency were to establish a safety performance standard for the fuel system integrity of vehicles using CNG or propane as a motor fuel. The cost and benefits are unknown at this time. This action is significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This standard, which is applicable to passenger cars, light trucks, and school buses, specifies requirements for the integrity of motor vehicle fuel systems. The purpose of the standard is to reduce deaths and injuries caused by fires which result from fuel spillage after motor vehicle crashes. This evaluation follows up and expands on a prior study on passenger cars which showed that, while the regulation was effective in preventing deaths and injuries, the incidence of crash fires appeared to be increasing. This evaluation will also provide the initial assessment of the regulation as it applies to light trucks.

The Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act (P.L. 98-547) requires a Report to Congress five years after promulgation of the Federal Motor Vehicle Theft Prevention Standard.

Abstract: This standard, which applies to passenger cars, requires identifying numbers or symbols to be placed on major parts of high theft passenger motor vehicles. A comprehensive evaluation will be performed to determine the effectiveness of the regulation in reducing the incidence of motor vehicle thefts and to estimate the costs of manufacturing and applying the identifying information. The evaluation of the regulation is required by the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act and calls for a Report to Congress five years after promulgation of the standard.

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 105 requires vehicles to have a brake failure indicator lamp which illuminates upon a failure within the brake system. This failure may be the result of a gross loss of pressure (Par. S5.3.1(a)) or a drop in the level of brake fluid in any master cylinder reservoir compartment to less than a specified safe level (S5.3.1(b)). The standard does not specify which mode of failure must be specified. This mode selection is left to the choice of the manufacturers. A petition from Mr. Sinclair Buckstaff, Transamerica Consultant Engineers (Buckstaff) requests that a loss of pressure indicator be made mandatory with a fluid level loss indicator to be optional (preferably mandatory) also, along with the pressure failure indicator. Buckstaff maintains a master cylinder internal failure can occur wherein no failure indication would ever occur if only a fluid level loss indicator were installed on the vehicle. The petition is under consideration.

Abstract: The agency has granted a petition from the United States Army Tank Automotive Command (ATAC), to amend Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 106, Brake Hoses, and Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 116, Brake Fluids. ATAC requested that Standard No. 106 be amended to require brake hose compatibility with a fluid that includes DOT 5 characteristics and that Standard No. 116 be amended to require compatibility of DOT 3, DOT 4, and DOT 5 brake fluids with elastomeric seals and cups internal to hydraulic brake system master and wheel cylinders. The agency believes that the changes suggested by ATAC warrant further consideration.

2197. + HEAVY DUTY VEHICLE BRAKE SYSTEMS (FORMERLY TRUCK AND TRAILER BRAKE SYSTEMS)

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392 National Traffic & Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966; 15 USC 1407 National Traffic & Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.121; 49 CFR 571.105

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Proposed action would establish a new brake standard for all trucks, buses, and trailers with a Gross Vehicle Weight Rating (GVWR) over 10,000 pounds. This standard would replace Standard No. 121, Air Brake Systems, and that portion of Standard No. 105, Hydraulic Brake Systems, that applies to vehicles with a GVWR over 10,000 pounds. It would also establish new requirements for heavy trailers having other than air-actuated brakes. In developing the standard, the agency will consider compatibility with international regulations. Research programs in support of this new standard and possible future upgradings of the standard will investigate such long-term advanced braking system concepts as antilock systems, automatic brake adjustors, load-sensing proportioning valves, air driers, and retarders for heavy trucks, buses, and trailers. This rule is considered significant because of the level of public and congressional interest. It is necessary to prevent and reduce the severity of accidents involving heavy vehicles by providing increased accident avoidance capability.

Abstract: Action proposes a New Standard No. 135, "Passenger Car Brake System," which would replace Standard No. 105, "Hydraulic Brake System," as it applies to that vehicle type. New Standard would differ from the existing one primarily in that it contains a revised and shortened test procedure based on a draft harmonized international procedure developed by the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (ECE). This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest; in light of comments received, a second SNPRM will be issued.

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 208 requires safety belt systems in the front outboard seating positions of passenger cars to adjust automatically by means of emergency locking retractors. Horkey and Associates petitioned the agency to prohibit the use of emergency locking retractors as it is alleged they do not provide adequate protection against occupant rebound in rear impacts. The petition, and a related one from

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1407; 15 USC 1410

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 552; 49 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard (FMVSS) No. 301 specifies requirements for the integrity of motor vehicle fuel systems so that fires that result from fuel spillage during and after motor vehicle crashes may be reduced. This standard applies to passenger cars and school buses, and to multipurpose passenger vehicles, trucks, and buses that have a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less. The California Highway Patrol (CHP) petitioned the agency to specify requirements in FMVSS No. 301 to reduce fuel spills from the fuel tank or fuel lines on heavy trucks and truck tractors over 10,000 pounds. The fuel spills, according to the CHP, are due to damage caused by road debris. On May 2, 1988, the agency published a grant of petition for rulemaking in the Federal Register for the CHP petition. However, the agency is granting the petition pending the results of its forthcoming investigation of fuel-tank fires in over-the-road trucks, on which research is presently underway.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.106

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 106 requires hoses, end fittings, and hose assemblies, except under limited circumstances, to be marked in a manner providing source identification for the hose, fitting, or assembly. Paragraphs S12 and S13 provide two exceptions. Paragraph S12 exempts "assemblies" from individual labeling of the "components." The "assembly" must still be labeled as specified in the appropriate paragraphs S5.2, S7.2, and S9.2. Paragraph S13 exempts hoses, fittings, and assemblies, if each or all are installed in a vehicle to which the standard applies (i.e., new vehicles, factory assemblies) from the individual requirements for labeling these components or assemblies. Rulemaking is to be initiated to clarify these requirements as they apply to the labeling of components or assemblies which use "reusable" fittings. A conflict may exist as to whether these materials with "reusable" components are considered to be "assemblies."

Abstract: Accidents involving heavy trucks have a disproportionate (higher) fatality rate than all other motor vehicles. This rulemaking proposes to reinstate stopping distance performance requirements in Standard 121 so as to help improve heavy vehicle braking performance and hence reduce the number of accidents involving these vehicles. Although a court decision found that Standard 121, as it then existed, was unenforceable, additional accident data and technical review have persuaded NHTSA that the court's requirements can now be met.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.208

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In 1966, NHTSA added a provision to Standard No. 208, Occupant Crash Protection, allowing vehicles that fail one or more of the injury criteria in the standard to still be considered as complying with the standard if the manufacturer could show it had exercised "due care" in the design and construction of the vehicle. The Motor Vehicle Safety Act requires all safety standards to be expressed in "objective terms." Further, the courts have held that compliance with safety standards must be determined by objective measurements and without recourse to any subjective determinations. The inherently subjective nature of a "due care" determination precludes the use of that concept as an aspect of compliance with the safety standards. Therefore, the "due care" provisions would be proposed to be deleted from the crash protection standard.

Abstract: This notice proposes the establishment of uniform procedures governing approval, implementation, and management of State highway safety programs. It would implement the Department of Transportation rule (49 CFR Part 18) concerning the administration of grants with State and local governments, as it applies to highway safety programs, update and codify existing procedures and delete obsolete provisions. This action would combine or reference, in one source, the major requirements which apply to State highway safety programs. This proposed rule would not establish any new administrative requirements. The proposed action would combine or reference, in Title 23, Chapter II of the Code of Federal Regulations, the major requirements which apply to State highway safety programs. While a significant goal of this proposed action is to achieve uniformity in the procedural implementation of the Section 402 program, it does not impose procedures which vary significantly from those currently followed by the States and Federal Regional Offices.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.108

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: NHTSA proposes a comprehensive review of headlighting requirements of FMVSS No. 108 which may be simplified, while being consistent with motor-vehicle safety. The agency has concentrated its efforts into five principal areas. This action addresses the first of these, which is the feasibility of a standard directed toward onboard original-equipment headlighting performance rather than toward performance of individual aftermarket headlamps in a laboratory environment. This action is considered significant because of safety implications. Based on comments received, a second NPRM was issued.

Abstract: In response to a petition for rulemaking, the advance notice invited comment on possible amendments to the regulation with respect to the manner in which light trucks, vans, multipurpose vehicles, and certain other vehicles are classified. The October 17, 1988 Notice of Proposed Rulemaking proposed two alternative vehicle classification approaches for those vehicles now categorized as light trucks, multipurpose passenger vehicles, and passenger cars. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: NHTSA has proposed the requirements for light trucks, vans, and multipurpose passenger vehicles intended to reduce the risk of fatalities and injuries in side impacts and other crashes where the side protection of the vehicle is a relevant factor. The contemplated requirements would be part of the agency's efforts to address the serious problem of side impacts. 2243. + STOP-SIGNAL ARMS ON NEW SCHOOL BUSES; NEW STANDARD

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Many injuries occur to school-age children when drivers of other vehicles do not see the children or the school bus as the children are approaching or leaving a school bus. An average of 13 fatalities per year were reported resulting from pedestrians being struck by vehicles other than the school bus as they are approaching or leaving the school bus. The objective of this proposed project is to develop a new motor vehicle safety standard that will require installation of stop-signal arms on all new school buses as recommended in the National Research Council's report "Improving School Bus Safety." Stop-signal arms are stop signs with flashing red lights that extend from the left side of the school bus when it stops to load or unload students. This will probably necessitate additional equipment and possibly more training for some drivers. This action is significant because of substantial public interest, and possible Federalism implications.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 23 USC 401

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 1325

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation will implement an improved National Driver Register (NDR), the purpose of which is to assist chief driver licensing officials of participating States in exchanging information regarding the motor vehicle driving records of individuals. The objective is to prevent the issuance of driver's licenses to individuals whose licenses to operate a motor vehicle have been withdrawn or denied, especially those convicted of drunk driving. By participating in the NDR, State Driver licensing officials may better identify problem drivers and deny them access to the nation's highways, thus making them safer. Annual cost to the Government will be between $5 and $7 million. This action is considered significant because of the impact on transportation safety.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1657; 15 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 533

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.208

Abstract: Petitions for reconsideration of the final rule issued 07/25/86 (51 FR 26688) have raised the question of whether the Part 572(E) dummy's chest deflection limit of 2 in. is appropriate for belt restraints. The rulemaking will address the petitioners' issues. The intention is to upgrade the chest-deflection injury criteria for unrestrained occupants when vehicles are tested for the Standard compliance with the Hybrid III Dummy. More recent data have raised concerns about equivalence of the Hybrid II and III test dummies in unrestrained conditions; these concerns warranted an interim final rule mandating use of only the Hybrid II test dummy until further research is completed in September, 1993.

Abstract: The Truck Trailer Manufacturers Association has petitioned the agency to amend the standard to remove extendable and drop frame container chassis from the partial exclusions applying to heavy hauler trailers. The petitioner believes that the reasons for excluding heavy hauler trailers from certain requirements of the standard do not apply in the case of container chassis. The NPRM proposed to amend the standard accordingly.

Abstract: A petition was received requesting that an amendment be made which would require that automatic transmissions be designed so they do not slip out of the "park" position. Although the issue would assume significance had the petition been granted, because of safety implications, the petition was denied. Petitioner failed to demonstrate how his proposed remedy would cure the problem of driver failure to properly place the vehicle in PARK. Abstract: This amendment is intended to reduce the potential for accidents caused by shifting the transmission lever on parked vehicles with automatic transmissions. The amendment requires that an automatic transmission vehicle with a "park" position must have a keylocking system that prevents removal of the key unless the transmission is locked in "park" as the direct result of removing the key. This is in response to a petition for rulemaking relating to an inadvertent knock-out-of-gear accident resulting in a fatality.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

Abstract: Consumers Union petitioned to restore the bumper-damage criteria to the 1982 protection level of 5mph or, if this is not possible, to require automobile dealers to provide repair cost and insurance premium information related to the bumper systems on the passenger cars that they sell. However, the public and consumers obtain the maximum feasible reduction in costs with the current bumper standard. As to the alternative request, no consistent positive correlation was found between damage induced in laboratory bumper tests and insurance accident repair costs, and premium rates are not influenced greatly by vehicle damage susceptibility.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 25, 1988.
Rental and leasing companies who are self-insured are required to report to the agency October 25th of each year.

Abstract: This action requires theft reports only from rental and leasing companies with combined fleets of 50,000 or more vehicles. This will result in only the largest rental and leasing companies being required to file theft reports, instead of the approximately 4,000 companies currently required to do so. NHTSA determined that reports from the largest rental and leasing companies will provide the agency with the representative sampling of the theft experience of rental and leasing companies, while reducing an unnecessary burden on smaller such companies.

2281. STANDARD 301; FUEL SYSTEM INTEGRITY, TESTING PERFORMANCE

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401; 15 USC 1403; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.301

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 301 specifies requirements for the integrity and security of vehicle's entire fuel system, including the fuel tank, fuel pump, lines and connections in front and rear, or lateral barrier impact tests; also fuel loss must not exceed one ounce per minute in a static rollover test following these barrier crash tests as well as not exceeding these limits after and incidental to the crash tests. Thomas Feahney petitioned the agency to amend the Standard to include simple functional testing to assure performance equivalent to fuel systems made of high density polyethylene. After considering comments to the ANPRM and conducting further research and analysis, NHTSA determined there was not sufficient evidence of a safety need to warrant further rulemaking, and this action was withdrawn.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.108

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: A petition from Truck Safety Equipment Institute (TSEI) primarily requested NHTSA to update references in Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 108 to latest version of Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) standards for stoplamps and turn signal lamps. This amendment incorporates by reference the current SAE standards.

Additional Information: Overall effective date of the rule is 12/01/90. Requirements for stoplamps and turn-signal lamps with a larger minimum luminous lens area on certain vehicles is effective 12/01/91. On 05/29/90 (55 FR 21819), the Federal Highway Administration published a notice to the effect that it will continue to adopt the appropriate section of the Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard into the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations. The final action of 05/15/90 inadvertently used RIN AC65 instead of RIN AC88.

2284. ESTABLISH A STANDARD FOR SAFE ENTRY AND EXIT REQUIREMENTS FOR COMMERCIAL VEHICLES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401; 15 USC 1403; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The International Brotherhood of Teamsters has petitioned the agency to commence rulemaking to establish safe entry and exit requirements for commercial vehicles. NHTSA determined that issuance and implementation of a safety standard for entry and exit under the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act would significantly improve safety. Manufacturers already use Federal regulations and other guidelines in design and manufacture of these vehicles.

Abstract: This final rule expands the special performance requirements for belt systems equipped with automatic locking retractors (ALRs) to encompass the working of the entire safety-belt system instead of focusing on the retractor mechanism alone. This is in response to two petitions for reconsideration of the final rule for heavy trucks (07/06/88, 53 FR 25937).
